Senate committee report tells of kickback schemes

Medicaid riddled with fraud, abuse

WASHINGTON (AP) — Kickback schemes are present "in every aspect of the Medicaid system" and a law against them is not being enforced, a Senate committee reported Saturday.

The Senate Committee on Aging, in the latest of many congressional attacks on the federal-state health program for the poor, said: "There is new and mounting evidence that the (Medicaid) program is not only inefficient but riddled with fraud and abuse."

However, only one case has been successfully prosecuted under a 1972 law against offering or accepting Medicaid kickbacks, the panel said.

The committee's report said many pharmacists are forced to pay nursing home operators a certain percentage of the price of nursing home prescription drugs in return for the business.

While the kickbacks are most frequent in nursing homes, "increasing evidence points to hospitals, medical practitioners, clinical laboratories and other suppliers," the committee said.

The report, a summary of findings from the committee's more than 50 hearings on the Medicaid program over the last seven years, told of evidence of widespread kickbacks in California, New York, Florida, Illinois and Wisconsin.

"Kickbacks ... have the effect of increasing the cost of the Medicaid program," the report said. "They undermine the quality of services which are offered since operators become more concerned with rebates than with care."

The committee said it sent a questionnaire to all California pharmacists and 200 others around the nation. "Sixty-three per cent of all pharmacists responding indicated an actual experience or a positive belief that kickbacks were widespread," the report said.

The panel reported written comments from pharmacists from all parts of the country "with actual names of pharmacists and nursing home operators.

"In some cases, they made incredible admissions relating to their participation in forced profit sharing, allegedly to secure and maintain a nursing home account," the report said.

However, the committee's report did not identify the pharmacists by name or state.

The committee said these were among the comments made by pharmacists:

—"I'm afraid to testify. My biggest account is a nursing home. If I lost this businss, who will sustain me?"

—"In one pharmacy we served about 12 nursing homes. We were required to pay 25 per cent to the operator of several of the homes and lost the business of three of them when we attempted to cut the kickback to 20 per cent. The volume loss was in the vicinity of $5,000 a year."

—"This kickback in nursing homes is an absolutely rotten practice. And it is demanded by I would estimate at least 95 per cent of homes in Southern California. Certainly, all large chain-type operations demand it. These kickback demands are not only limited to drug services. All suppliers to nursing homes are required to participate — milk suppliers, laundry, food suppliers."

The committee said the policy of allowing the nursing home to act as the middle man between the pharmacy and the Medicaid program "creates an inviting atmosphere for abuse."

The committee said that under this arrangement Medicaid administrators do not know what they are paying for. "The bill does not come from the pharmacist, but from the nursing home, and it is often unitemitzed. Close scrutiny of a bill is extremely difficult, if not impossible," it said.

The panel recommended adoption of pending legislation to make it a felony to solicit or accept Medicaid kickbacks. The 1972 law make it a misdemeanor punishable by one year in jail and $10,000 fine.

Penalty for water overuse?

Conserve, or else . . . Pomona Valley district urges surcharge plan

By BOB NAGEY
PB Staff Writer

Valley residents who don't conserve water will be penalized from now on, if the Pomona Valley Municipal Water District has anything to say about it.

Stan Kawa, executive manager of the district, says his directors have asked the Metropolitan Water District to come up with a plan that will levy penalties on all users in the Southland by April 1.

Under the plan, those who fail to conserve at least 10 per cent of the water they have been using would have to pay double for the unconserved portion.

Kawa said the MWD board is now considering whether to apply surcharges starting April 1 or May 1, "but certainly before summer use begins."

As the penalties are absorbed by water agencies, they will be passed on to consumers. Meter readings, comparing current months with the same months a year ago, will be used to determine whether conservation is taking place, according to Kawa.

The water official said the MWD was asked to start the round of penalties to insure equal treatment for all of Southern California.

"It would not make sense for the PVMWD to levy a penalty on its 300,000 customers while other parts of the Southland could use water without any restrictions," Kawa explained.

He estimated that the average customer who used as much water this year as last year would have to pay an additional $18 to $20 a year for the overage.

"I don't think most people understand the problem," he contended. "We had announced some months ago that if everyone cut back his use of water by at least 10 per cent here we would not have a water shortage. But at the rate water is being used, we may run dry."

Those who not only do not conserve water but deliberately waste it — in this case use more water than last year — the penalties would be triple.

Kawa says up to now the use of water in 1977 has been about 12 per cent higher than for the same period in 1976. He said if residents don't begin conserving "we may run out of water in certain storage reservoirs.

"We are concerned that our water sales are not indicating sufficient effort by citizens to reduce demand," he declared. "We feel a surcharge is needed to bring the shortage home sufficiently."

Kawa said when drought conditions no longer exist the surcharges can be removed.

Two women kidnaped for $500,000; man nabbed

TULSA, Okla. (AP) — Two women — the wife of a Tulsa businessman and her employe — were missing for a second day Saturday in what authorities said was a kidnaping designed to extort $500,000.

One suspect was arrested when a call to the businessman was traced to a mobile home in Jenks, just south of here. Dist. Atty. S.M. Fallis Jr. said Larry Chaney, 34, would be charged with kidnaping.

He was being questioned by state and local officers trying to locate the two women.

The missing women were identified as Mrs. Phillip H. Ashmore, 35, and Kathy Anne Brown, 21. Miss Brown was employed by Mrs. Ashmore in the family's extensive horse breeding operation.

Phillip Ashmore was told in a telephone call Thursday night that the women had been abducted, authorities said. He was directed to leave $500,000 in unmarked $100 bills at a location near Jenks on Friday night.

At the urging of state, federal and local officers, reporters withheld the story until after the arrest of Chaney on Saturday.

Ashmore arranged to have the money dropped inside an old rodeo arena near Jenks, authorities said.

Two hours later, another call told him the money was in the wrong place and he would get a later call telling him where to place it.

That second call was traced and Chaney, who authorities said was in the contracting business, was arrested early Saturday.

The money, which had been stuffed into two bags, was picked up by authorities and was not replaced, investigators said.

Mrs. Ashmore is the daughter of Haskell Gaither, publisher of The Jeffersonian, a Pryor, Okla., weekly newspaper.

Hang glider crashes into peak; pilot hurt

A 26-year old Glendora man was reported in critical condition in the intensive care unit of San Antonio Community Hospital Saturday evening after he suffered a broken neck in the crash of his hang glider a quarter mile east of Cucamonga Peak.

Scott Newmam, 408 E. Lindfield St., Glendora had been soaring at around the 5,000-4,500-foot level in the east flanks of Cucamonga Canyon around 2 p.m. Saturday. Deputies at the West End Sheriff's Office were summoned to the area by a 2:46 p.m. call that a hang glider had crashed.

Deputies John Roberts and Paul Kellner of the Sheriff's Mountain Rescue Team were airlifted to the scene by the Sheriff's helicopter where they found paramedic Don Reed of the Kniffen Ambulance Service already in attendance.

Deputies theorized that Newmam's craft may have suffered structural damage while in the air causing the crash. One of the cross braces on the hang glider was broken, deputies said.

Newmam crashed on a 40-degree slope about 150 feet down the face of one of the peaks east of Cucamonga being about a four-hour walk from the north end of Beryl Avenue in Alta Loma.

Deputies said Newmam appeared to have serious internal injuries in addition to the broken neck.

Swallows back; spring is here

SAN JUAN CAPISTRANO (AP) — Like chills that grip the orange groves in late fall, like smog that chokes Los Angeles in the summer, there are other harbingers of change that lend a sense of seasons to sunny Southern California.

The swallows have returned to San Juan Capistrano, and spring is here.

The birds, who winter in Argentina, finished their annual trek to their summer home here Saturday.

Former cop claims police, FBI plotted to kill King

LOUISVILLE, Ky. (AP) — The House Select Committee on Assassinations is investigating allegations from a man who claims several members of a police department and FBI agents plotted to kill Dr. Martin Luther King Jr., Rep. Gene Snyder, R-Ky., said Saturday.

Snyder said he met the man "face to face" and that "he appeared to be rational, a logical kind of man."

Snyder said he got a letter from the man and listened to a tape the man said he made of the alleged assassination plot. Snyder refused to say whether the man or the police department involved were in Kentucky.

Asked why the man contacted him and let him listen to a copy of the tape recording, Snyder said, "He may have just been looking for someone with nerve, a fighter."

Snyder read part of the letter and used the word "blank" where the man had used names.

"I retired from (blank) police department in (blank) after serving (blank) years," Snyder quoted the letter as saying. "While I was in the police partment I was innocently involved in a conspiracy to assassinate Dr. Martin Luther King.

"Involved in this conspiracy were agents of the Federal Bureau of Investigtion, agents (blank), (blank) and (blank) and others that I did not know," Snyder said, continuing to read the letter. "Members of the (blank) police depertment, chief of detectives, captain (blank), lieutenant (blank), officer (blank), lieutenant (blank) of the homicide bureau and president of the FOP sergeant (blank)."

Mourn for 12 American pilots killed in war

Solemn ceremonies at Hanoi airport

HANOI (AP) — As he placed a furled stars and stripes on a small black casket with the name "Roy Bowling" painted in white letters, Rep. G.V. Montgomery brushed a tear from his eye and said, "We did not get everything we came for but this makes up for a lot."

Montgomery and a score of other Americans were officiating at the simple but solemn ceremonies at Hanoi's Gia Lam Airport Saturday morning for the remains of 12 American pilots who had died years ago in the Vietnam war and were now making their last flight — back to the United States half a world away.

Each casket received a flag, placed by the members and staff of the presidential commission that had negotiated their return.

Vietnamese officials, who had finally agreed to turn over the remains after years of bargaining, had taken the caskets earlier to the airport and helped set up the table where they rested. Then the Vietnamese respectfully moved away to the edge of th airfield so that the Americans clustered around the caskets and the huge U.S. Air Force C141 Starlifter could mourn alone.

Crew members of the giant plane, and military members of the commission's staff in full uniform, solemnly carried the caskets into the belly of the aircraft past the other saluting Americans.

In the background were reminders of the war these pilots had fought and died in. A concrete building still in ruins could be seen in a nearby paddyfield, bombed by U.S. planes during the war, according to Vietnamese officials. Standing on the airfield was a U.S.-built C130 transport plane once flown by the old Saigon Air Force but now in use by the war's victors.

But the most touching reminder of the war was the row of flag-draped black caskets containing the remains of the pilots.

Capt. Roy Bowling was from San Bernardino, Calif. He was shot down Nov. 17, 1965, when the war was entering its furious phase. He and the others were among more than 2,500 Americans missing and otherwise unaccounted for.

The passions that sent these young men to Vietnam in the first place, and then prevented their return home to America for so many years, seemed to have cooled now.

That was evident after the ceremony Saturday when the American commission and the Vietnamese officials they had been meeting for several days met over coffee at the terminal for the last time.

"We hope you come back soon," Deputy Foreign Minister Phan Hien told Leonard Woodcock, the U.S. commission chairman. Woodcock responded that he shared the same hope, and seemed to mean it.

HIJACKERS IN CUSTODY

Two hijackers surrender after seizing Turk plane

BEIRUT, Lebanon (AP) — Two teen-agers carrying small pistols hijacked a Turkish airliner to Beirut on Saturday but surrendered a few hours later to an unarmed Lebanese major. The 173 passengers, including six infants, were released unharmed.

Turkish Airlines officials said the hijackers, identified as Ismail Jamal Ashan and Mohammed Hassan Hannefi Guzel, both 18, commandeered the Boeing 727 on a domestic flight from the southeastern Turkish town of Diyarbakir to the capital of Ankara.

After landing about 500 yards from the war-scarred Beirut airport terminal, the hijackers demanded fuel and the equivalent of $300,000 in Turkish currency.

Later, after releasing the passengers, the hijackers asked to talk with Palestinian leaders and be taken to a refugee camp "where someone speaks Turkish, that's all." They finally surrendered about an hour later.

Lebanese police said the only person injured during the ordeal was the copilot, Duraki Etim, who was shot in the right thigh and hit in the face during the takeover. He was later seen smiling and walking through the terminal, with bloodstains on his shirt.

The jetliner carried a crew of eight, airline officials said.

"We made it clear to them that they would not get away with it," said Premier Salim El-Hoss, who personally directed operations.

Troops of the Arab peacekeeping force, which supervises the cease-fire that ended the Lebanese civil war, quickly surrounded the plane after it landed, and Lebanese security forces wearing bullet-proof vests took up positions nearby.

The hijackers spoke only Turkish and Kurdish and had trouble explaining their demands to the Arabic-speaking Lebanese. They made no specific threats and did not give any indication of their motives beyond the ransom demand.

After the plane landed, one of the hijackers appeared at the door of the first class compartment and began shouting at the troops in Turkish, witnesses said.

When he realized no one understood, he allowed the Turkish pilot, Kurai Ahmet, to speak to officers on the ground in English.

A Turkish-speaking news photographer was able to translate into Arabic for the authorities until a Turkish diplomat arrived at the airport.

After 1½ hours of negotiations, the two agreed to release the passengers but kept the crew aboard. They also demanded to talk to a Turkish-speaking Palestinian.

Another hour went by, and Hoss and the security chiefs were considering storming the plane. Finally the major, who was not identified, walked out to the aircraft and persuaded the youths to surrender.

The passengers were taken to the VIP lounge for a flight back to Turkey, airline officials said.

Abzug choice to head panel for women?

WASHINGTON (AP) — Former Rep. Bella Abzug is President Carter's choice to head the national commission supervising state conferences on women and sponsoring a national conference next fall, according to congressional sources.

The appointment is scheduled to be announced soon, along with names of others being placed on the 34-member commission, formally called the National Commission on Observance of International Women's Year.

Ms. Abzug, a designation she prefers, was one of four congressional observers on the commission when it was created by President Gerald R. Ford in early 1975 and she participated in the U.N. Women's Conference in Mexico City.

The Women's Year Commission is charged by Congress with assessing the barriers that block women from full participation in all facets of U.S. society and advising Congress on how to overcome them.

The state-by-state conferences, which began in Vermont last month, are one way this assessment is being made.

Ms. Abzug gave up her House seat last year to run for the Senate. She lost the Democratic nomination to Daniel Moynihan who then defeated incumbent Sen. James Buckley, R-Con-N.Y.

Saturday, Ms. Abzug said that she still is considering running for mayor of New York, and that polls show her the leading Democrat for that post.

Her comments followed reports from persons close to her that she has decided against entering the New York City mayoralty race.

Mystery surrounds bid

Plains farmer rejects $1 million land offer

PLAINS, Ga. (AP) — A farmer from President Carter's hometown put his land up at auction Saturday, tried to drive up the bidding by rejecting an offer of $1.25 million, then couldn't find anyone who would say they had authorized such a bid.

At the end of the day, William O. Cochran had sold four of his 1,056 acres.

The bid of $1.25 million was voiced by a Forsyth, Ga., farmer, Jerry Childs, who said he was acting in behalf of two attorneys from Farmersville, Ill.

Childs said Harris Carter, one of the agents involved in the land sale, contacted him Saturday and asked that he do the bidding for the attorneys. Harris Carter is not a close relation to the President.

"It feels pretty good when it's someone else's money," Childs, 47, had said.

But one of the Illinois men, Mark Fuchs, said he never authorized anyone to bid for the entire farm, and certainly had no intention of parting with more than a million dollars.

"We were contemplating maybe a five-acre tract and using it for commercial speculation," Fuchs said by telephone from his home.

Cochran had taken a few hours to consider the bid, then rejected it as too low and asked for a higher offer, although local farmers and real estate agents said the price offered was far higher than the land was worth for farming.

After Fuchs' denials, Cochran would not comment on the proposed sale. Childs was not available to elaborate on why he bid so high or why he bid on the huge tract.

The big spread went on the block only after Cochran rejected 48 of the high bids made on 49 subdivisions of the farm. He sold the four acres closest to Plains for $16,400.

There was even some confusion on that bid, which came from Alton Foster, a real estate speculator.

Foster said that after he bid on the four-acre tract he was approached by a man claiming to represent Billy Carter. The man, Foster said, asked that the President's brother be allowed to buy the land. Foster said he agreed to the proposal.

However, Billy Carter, in a telephone converstion from a relative's home in north Georgia, flatly denied that he had bought land or authorized anyone to buy land for him. The President's brother called speculation that he had purchased land "just rumors."

The price Childs had bid for the other 1,052 acres averages almost $1,200 per acre, which local farmers and real estate agents said is about $450 per acre above the farm value.

The proposed land sale was the largest in the Plains area since Carter was elected President. It had been promoted in nationwide advertising that included a picture of the home of Gloria Carter Spann, the President's sister.

The Cochran farm completely surrounds Mrs. Spann's home, and she had expressed fears that developing the land might force her to move.

Childs said he received nothing for his services as bidder for the unidentified buyers.

With a madcap, quixotic flair

Her name's Dixie Lee Ray; just call her 'governor'

By DAVID AMMONS
Associated Press

OLYMPIA, Wash. (AP) — Dixy Lee Ray, Washington state's first woman governor, has become this state capital's most significant winter storm. Her unconventional campaign style has been transformed into a madcap, quixotic first few weeks in office.

She has jabbed at and angered environmentalists, shaken state bureaucrats, chided President Carter, sparred with the press and puzzled nearly everyone. She is feisty, tough, and sometimes disorganized.

Miss Ray, 62, former chairman of the Atomic Energy Commission and assistant U.S. secretary of state for scientific affairs under Henry Kissinger, was an easy victor last fall.

An anti-politics, shake-up-government campaign paid off, and she moved into the governor's mansion with her widowed sister, Mrs. Marian Reid, and her silver poodle, Jacques.

She vowed "change, change and change" when she was inaugurated, and change there has been. Her nemesis, Ralph Nader, said comparing her and former Gov. Dan Evans, a quiet Republican, was like comparing "gubernatorial sanity and gubernatorial lunacy."

Miss Ray, who joins Ella Grasso of Connecticut as the only women to be elected governor in their own right, shrugs off the barrage of early criticism.

She told a reporter that she can be ruthless and will be "when a job has to be done and I'm convinced it's necessary."

A glimpse of what she meant came on the day before her inauguration when she gave all Evans-appointed government brass their walking papers. There were to be no holdovers. The bluntness and speed of the sackings aroused a cry of "Tuesday afternoon massacre."

She persuaded the Democratic-dominated state Senate to send back to her office the nominations of 124 persons who had been named to high government positions by Evans, but who had not been confirmed.

She was not ready with her own replacements, and several boards and commissions were left without quorums for days.

Republicans quickly branded it "a political spoils system" by a woman who had run as a nonpolitician. But Miss Ray ignored it.

"No one owns a job. From now on, we'll send them a Kleenex at the time they're fired if they're going to be a crybaby."

Many state newspapers editorialized against her moves. One said, "Even a thorough housecleaning should not entail throwing all the furniture over the balcony."

In her inaugural address, she called for a period of austerity while she studied ways to reorganize state government. A fortnight later, she slapped a freeze on state hiring.

"It is probably the most encouraging thing that has happened to this state in years," exulted state Sen. Hubert Donohue, who is writing the state budget. "Washington could be the first state to start to turn arthe planning falls to the politicians and the bureaucrats, who many claim are the root cause of the trouble in the first place.

Some solar energy use by 2020, study forsees

LOS ANGELES (AP) — A government-funded study called the "first 'whole-picture' look at America's energy future," foresees moderate use of solar energy by the year 2020 — but not as a direct source of electricity.

The report by Stanford Research Insitute is optimistic about using sunshine in place of scarce fossil fuels to heat water, warm houses and energize some industrial processes.

But Dr. John S. Reuyl, head of the team that completed the eight-month, $275,000 study, said the high cost of turning sunlight directly into electricity makes it unlikely that a national solar energy program envisioned by the Energy Research and Development Administration could reach its goal by 2020.

Referring to the government plan, known as ERDA-49, Reuyl said: "Anything like the ERDA-49 goal of 45 quads (quadrillions of BTU's, a measure of energy) ... will take extraordinary solar energy technology cost reductions or other economic incentives beyond those now contemplated, or, on the other hand, a larger-than-expected increase in non-solar energy prices."

When the first draft of the ERDA-commissioned report was released last August, it appeared to be quite optimistic about the role that solar energy could play in America's future. Reportedly, ERDA officials — viewed by some critics as having a vested interest in favoring nuclear power development — wanted to suppress the report because it indicated solar could compete economically with nuclear energy.

The final version of the report, released last month, casts solar energy in a less significant role, with little chance of being economically competitive with coal or nuclear power plants.

However, Reuyl denied that the differences between the draft and the final report were caused by pressure from any source. He explained that researchers, using a computer to create "scenarious" showing what effects on society various energy techologies would have, had overestimated the role of solar energy.

"That caused solar energy in the early scenario to appear to compete with nuclear technologies" although this was later found not to be likely, said Reuyl.

ERDA official Fred Koomanoff, a supervisor of the study, also denied any attempt to hold the report back. And the changes, he said, came after errors in calculations in the initial version were pointed out to the researchers.

The study picked three possible "scripts" for energy use in the next 50 years and made predictions of how society would be changed in each case. Here are the three scenarios — not recommendations or forecasts, but possible courses the nation might take:

— One, called the "reference case," in which present U.S. energy policy is continued, the total energy supply more than doubles by 2020, and the blance of different energy technologies is determined by their relative costs.

Solar energy would play a small role — about 5 per cent to 6 per cent — in this case, said the report, because the costs of coal, oil and nuclear power would be lower.

—A "solar emphasis" scenario. In this alternative "script," the researchrs assumed that some way could be found to reduce costs to the point where solar technology provided about 25 per cent of the nation's energy needs — the level projected by the ERDA-49 report.

Probably the only way to reduce costs that much, said the report, would be massive government subsidies to the solar industry, totalling some $30 billion in 2020.

— A "low demand" scenario, calling for a determined U.S. effort to conserve energy, an effort that would be bolstered by deliberately raising energy prices to encourage conservation.

The researchers emphasized that the report was not recommending one alternative over another, but one conclusion was that, "In terms of the time spans of history, our energy choices are narrowing rapidly."

"If society decides not to move toward dependence on nuclear energy, then there is only one other viable direction," a summary of the report said.

"After fossil fuels have been exhausted and except for the appearance of some totally new technology of which at present we have no idea, the alternative is a solar-dominated energy economy with moderate energy demands."

Meanwhile, ERDA has called for a blue ribbon panel to take a hard look at the solar research budget to see whether solar electricity systems are being overemphasized. Some people feel other solar energy methods, such as windmills, devices that use temperature differences in the oceans, and growing certain plants that can be converted to energy, will be more economical sooner.

Driver held in death of motorcyclist

A 41-year-old Temple City man was killed early Saturday when his motorcycle was struck by a pickup truck on Don Julian Avenue in City of Industry.

Sheriff's deputies arrested Daniel Ruiz, 18, of Hacienda Heights on a felony drunk driving charge after the 1:10 a.m. accident. Ruiz was the driver of the pickup truck.

Phillip Hamm was dead on arrival at Queen of the Valley Hospital, West Covina, after his cycle was broadsided by the truck. Deputies said Hamm's bike was turning westbound onto Don Julian from a post office driveway when it was hit by the eastbound pickup truck.

New church sanctuary under way

The Foothill Baptist Church in Upland has begun construction of a new sanctuary and office building to cost $450,000.

The sanctuary will be large enough to accommodate 1,000 worshippers and the platform will have room for a 50-voice choir.

The structure will be marked by the heavy emphasis of glass.

The Rev. Morris Yocum and Van Helmick, vice president of Atlantic and Pacific Mfg. Co., Ontario, chairman of the church's building program, recently spaded the site where the sanctuary will be located.

Others serving on the building committee are Paul Willems, Bill Smead, Dick Evans, Earl Siechert and Ken Bloom.

The church recently awarded a construction contract to Lyle Griswold of La Habra. The structure is expected to be completed next September.

D.B., Phillips Ranch high school sites to be discussed at meet

A meeting to discuss possible high school sites in the Diamond Bar and Phillips Ranch areas will be conducted by the Pomona Unified School District Monday at Diamond Point Elementary School in Diamond Bar beginning at 7:30 p.m.

Phillips Ranch developer Al Lessor proposed giving the district a 37.5 acre site at its last board meeting. The site is located on the border between north Diamond Bar and north Phillips Ranch between Mission Boulevard and the Orange (57) Freeway in hilly terrain now favored by weekend motorcyclists.

While cost of developing the site with grading could be expensive due to the hilly area, Lessor and others have proposed that the cost of preparing the site might be divided between Phillips Ranch, Transamerica Corp. (developers of Diamond Bar) and the city of Pomona.

The proposed site is within the Pomona municipal boundaries.

Present at Monday's meeting will be representatives from Phillips Ranch, Transamerica Corp., the City of Pomona, the Pomona Chamber of Commerce, the Diamond Bar Municipal Advisory Council as well as trustee Ken Ping and Supt. of Schools Charles Carpenter of the Pomona Unified School District.

All persons interested in a discussion of sites for a future high school in the Diamond Bar area are urged to attend.

Police policy study slated

A proposed study of the Pomona Police Department's operating policies and procedures will be considered for implementation by the Pomona City Council Monday night.

The study proposal is being recommended by Police Chief Richard Slaght and City Adminstrator Jerrold Gonce. Cost would be $13,000.

If approved by the council, it is expected the study would take about 23 weeks.

Other agenda items for the 8 p.m. meeting include a request from the Pomona Central Business District that the city take action to dissuade Union Pacific Railroad of its intention to demolish its vacant station on First Street at Thomas Street in downtown Pomona.

Major 'facelifting' studied in La Verne

The La Verne City Council is considering a major facelifting for the downtown area through the establishment of a new community redevelopment agency.

The proposal will be aired by the council at its Monday night meeting.

City Manager George Caswell says under the proposal the agency would be composed of members of the council so that there will be no conflict in objectives for the project.

The agency would determine how large the district would be, what it should undertake and how to obtain financing.

Right now, according to Caswell, the council has indicated it wants to breathe a lot of new life into the downtown area — about eight acres between Fifth Street and Arrow Highway — but the territory may be enlarged.

If the redevelopment district is formed, its assessed valuation would be frozen at current levels for taxing purposes. All new taxes generated from additional assessed valuations in the future would be used solely to finance future improvements. The moratorium would stay in effect until all the bills for the improvements are paid.

Caswell said several federal grants are available to help the city finance the face-lifting. However, one of the requirements is the construction of low and medium cost housing as part of the project.

He said the same agency could be used later to obtain funding, if necessary, for the acquisition of the Shea building at Foothill Boulevard and D Street for the proposed city hall.

At the meeting, the council also is expected to hear a report on a proposal to control soaring rental charges in the city's mobile home parks, as well as to make a determination on whether to permit the construction of a second screen at the Mt. Baldy Drive-In Theater.

Water report expected

A report on the Chino Basin Management Plan will be presented by Adolph Moskovitz, special water consultant, at the Upland City Council meeting Monday at 7 p.m. in the City Hall.

Also on the agenda will be a project proposal from Fred Taunton, recreation director, concerning consultation education and information services for senior citizens. The program is proposed for the new community center being developed in the downtown area.

The Foothill Development Co. will request relief from the building moratorium on two parcels of property in multiple residence zones.

One parcel is located between Fourth and Fifth avenues and the second is at the southwest corner of Mesa Court and Campus Avenue.

Fee-hike proposal slated

A request from the Pomona Valley Humane Society that dog license fees be raised 25 per cent beginning July 1 will be considered by the Claremont City Council Tuesday at 7:30 p.m.

Humane Society Executive Director Bruce Richards in a letter to the city of Claremont asked that his request be considered as an emergency issue.

"It is imperative that we order our new license fee applications and tags by the end of March," Richards said.

Richards asked that in order to maintain an animal control program for 1977-78 in the cities of San Dimas, Claremont, La Verne and Pomona, he would like to see license fees be raised as follows:

—For a spayed female or neutered male, up from $4 to $5.

—For a female or male, up from $8 to $10.

Breakfast meet

Bob S. Hazlett, La Verne, will speak at the Pomona Christian Business Men breakfast Tuesday at 7 a.m. at Sambo's in Claremont.

He will relate experiences as a pilot, machinist, garage owner and service station owner.

One purpose of the organization is to present Christian claims to the business world. All interested men are invited.

Additional information may be obtained by calling the chairman, Roger Peters, at 593-1438.

Local volunteers donate life's fluid

By VONNE ROBERTSON
PB Staff Writer

"There's a new club in town with no dues, no officers, no meetings and no fund-raising events," says Mrs. Margaret Hamilton, a volunteer at the Pomona Red Cross Blood Donor Center.

"The club is for regular blood donors who sign up to pledge blood from one to five times a year," she adds, "and we are getting a lot of members."

Within the past month, Mrs. Hamilton has recruited 50 members for her club. She staffs the canteen table at the donor center on Tuesday and Wednesday afternoons and talks with men and women who have just completed a donation of blood.

The repeat donor has become a vital part of the program, Mrs. Hamilton said, and will be even more important after July 1 when a new law become efffective which prohibits the use of paid donor blood unless no volunteer donor blood is available.

The Pomona Donor Center's production has increased by 45 per cent in the past two months when two telephone recruiters joined the staff.

Cal Poly Pomona students Carol Rusler and Tim Hynes are both working part time at the Red Cross to call previous blood donors and urge them to return to the program.

"We've discovered that people like to be personally asked to donate, because giving your blood is such a personal act," said John Rinset, Pomona Red Cross blood program chairman and assistant administrator at Pomona Valley Community Hospital.

Miss Rusler and Hynes also remind active donors of their next appointment at the Pomona Donor Center, 420 N. Reservoir St., on Tuesdays or Wednesday or at the PVCH Donor Center on Thursdays.

"The telephone recruiters directly stemmed from an increased need for blood in the Southland," Rinset said. "This year, the hospitals in Los Angeles and Orange counties expect to use over 300,000 pints of blood."

Rinset said two reasons for the increase use of blood are the greater number of open heart surgeries being performed and the increased use of blood platelets for leukemia patients.

"We are currently fracturing 400 donations a day for platelets," Rinset added.

The new state law which goes into effect on July 1 resulted because health officials felt that the use of commercial blood increased the incidence of hepatitis in patients receiving this blood.

Most hospitals have already reduced their use of commercial blood in anticipation of the enactment of the law, Rinset reported.

Persons wishing to join the donor club may call the Red Cross, 629-7455, or PVCH Donor Center, 623-8715, for an appointment.

JOINS THE CLUB

Mrs. Margaret Hamilton, volunteer canteen worker at the Pomona Red Cross Blood Donor Center, signs up Glen Powers in her new club which has no dues or meetings. Powers, of Pomona, also gets a free cup of coffee after donating a pint of blood — not a bad deal at the cost of coffee today, he says.

Hell's Angels 'getting bigger and better'

Street renegades travel new 'underground' byway

EDITOR'S NOTE: Sonny Barger, 38, is a model inmate at Folsom Prison, taking college-level courses, playing guitar and lifting weights. His wife, a former beauty queen, visits him. So, say authorities, do Hell's Angels. In fact, they say, he runs the renegade-bikers-gone-underground from his cell.

By TIM REITERMAN
Associated Press Writer

"They've been saying they could destroy the club for 20 years. The attorney general once said that if you got certain guys, the club would just fall apart. Well, they got us, but we're getting bigger and better." — Ralph "Sonny" Barger Jr.

OAKLAND, Calif. (AP) — When Hell's Angels chieftain Sonny Barger and some top lieutenants went to prison four years ago, many law enforcement officials predicted that the notorious motorcycle club soon would run out of gas.

The Angels, for the most part, stowed their "colors" — vests flying their winged skull patch — in closets and relegated their chopped Harleys to garages.

But largely out of the public eye, they have matured as an organized crime family with worldwide bases. Their membership has climbed, new chapters have been incorporated and legitimate businesses have become more commonplace.

That is the assessment of investigators who say the Angels have continued their prime activities — peddling drugs, guns, explosives and stolen motorcycle parts. And although the Angels reportedly have started killing their own with increasing frequency, the average age has crept into the 30s.

"The problem has simply gone underground," says a Santa Clara County undercover agent. "They used to be up front and riding down the street raising hell. Because of the heat on the leaders, their activity has gone underground. There's little difference between them and traditional organized crime."

In the 27 years since the Angels formed their band in the gritty steel town of Fontana, Calif., they have remained the most powerful and widespread renegade motorcycle club. If anything, trials and arrests of recent years have enhanced their reputation among bikers.

Investigators from a half dozen jurisdictions say that Barger, Angels president from 1957 until 1973, remains in total control although he currently is serving a 10-year-to-life narcotics sentence at Folsom Prison. They con-

HELL'S ANGELS — Hell's Angels from all over the country stream along in a lengthy funeral cortege near San Francisco for S.F. president "Harry the Horse" Flamburis, last January. The large turnout supported evidence that club membership and power is climbing, not declining as was predicted a few years ago. The club now has worldwide bases.

Hell's Angels go underground—tend he communicates with the club through visitors, who include club members and his wife, Sharon, a former beauty queen.

Barger, 38, works as a janitor in the honor cellblock. He is taking college-level courses, plays guitar and lifts weights. Prison officials say he is a model prisoner. Under the current sentencing law, the soonest he could get out is 1980, but he is waging court battles for another date.

"A lot of people listen to what I say. I've been around a long time," Barger said in an interview. "The club's bigger, got a lot more members and a lot more charters, especially in Europe. We have them in Switzerland, West Germany, Austria, Autralia, New Zealand and at least eight in California and at least a dozen across the country."

In 1973, Barger and several Oakland brethren were acquitted of murdering a Texas drug dealer, but Barger later was convicted of narcotics possession for sale. In the same year, lieutenants Sergy "Sir Gay" Walton and Gary Popkin were sentenced for drug possession, and secretary-treasurer Bert Stefanson was sentenced for transportation and possession of cocaine and explosives.

At least a half dozen members from the dominant Oakland chapter — and other chapters — already were in prison for crimes ranging from drugs and assault to murder. But what prompted authorities to predict the beginning of the end was the emergence of two informants — William "Whispering Bill" Pifer and George "Baby Huey" Wethern.

Pifer, who later died of throat cancer, had witnessed the torture slayings of two Georgia bikers. Wethern, a former Oakland vice president, provided graves at his Ukiah, Calif., ranch. He has been given a new name and location by investigators.

Their testimony helped convict several Angels from the East Bay area of Richmond, and they reportedly told investigators of the internal workings of a club never known to be infiltrated.

"If people didn't talk to police, they couldn't catch a cold. In every major case, they got an informant trying to save his own neck." —Barger.

The highly mobile Angels responded by shifting activities to other areas and trying to change their public image.

The San Jose and Los Angeles chapters rented billboards and waged a "No Hope with Dope" campaign, with leaders like San Jose president Phil Cross appearing before news media and college audiences.

"We had a wiretap and the Angels would be discussing a dope deal, then Cross would say, 'Hey. I've gotta split to be at the TV studio to do my number,'" according to Michael Sterrett, a special attorney with the federal Organized Crime Strike Force.

Within six months, Cross was indicted on drug charges. He pleaded guilty and was sentenced Dec. 9, 1975, to four years.

Sources say the switch began in the mid-1960's when the Angels found money dealing marijuana, LSD and other drugs in the emerging hippie scenes. They later emphasized heroin, cocaine and amphetamines.

Investigators also say there is a trend toward investment in legitimate business — catering services, motorcycle shops, bars and massage parlors. San Francisco Angels president "Flash Gordon" Grow recently was indicted on pimping and pandering charges related to his interests in a massage parlor.

"The guys have motorcycle shops and stuff and are struggling to make an honest living. When the cops put these accusations on them, they might as well be making an illegal living, robbing or whatever. Members are not going to get any peace one way or the other." — Barger.

When Barger started the Oakland chapter in 1957 at the age of 18, most members were neighborhood buddies in their late teens. But when some Angels started making a living at it in the late 1960's, retirements dwindled and "prospects" increased. Membership now is estimated to exceed 500 in California alone.

"'It used to be that you could get out by taking a beating," said a Santa Clara County district attorney's investigator. "Now if you try to get out, they kill you. Everybody knows too many dangerous things."

By nation's agricultural schools

Worldwide food shortage prompts research outcry

By WILLIAM PRATER
Associated Press Writer

PEORIA, Ill. (AP) — With U.S. farm surpluses gone and worldwide food shortages a possibility, the nation's agricultural schools are pushing for more research and the money to pay for it.

During the fat years of the past decade or so, most schools did little to grow. Now they're seeking more scientists, better laboratories and bigger budgets, and they're finding the federal government increasingly receptive.

Food, after all, figures in world power relationships as well as American export ledgers.

"In the '50s and '60s we had this big surplus," said Russell McGregor of the National Association of State Universities and Land-Grant Colleges. "The question was 'why should we spend more money on research when we've got food coming out of our ears?'"

For the past 20 years, he said, agricultural schools did not grow at all, but now things are different.

There is a need for food, and colleges and universities are gearing up to meet the increased demand. They are following up on the so-called "Green Revolution" of the late 1960s, studying "foliar fertilization" and "cell-free" agriculture and developing hardier varieties of old staples such as apples.

The agriculture school at the University of Illinois, anticipating a new era for research into food productivity, is seeking state financing for an eight-year, $115-million overhaul of its aging and crowded physical facilities.

Michigan State University is seeking a $3.2-million increase in the $10 million budget for its Agricultural Experiment Station.

Similar requests are being made throughout the country.

"We're all doing it. The only difference is in the packaging," said John Mahlstede, associate director of Iowa State's Agricultural Experiment Station.

Mahlstede said experiment stations routinely have sought budget increases since World War II, but the big difference now is that everyone is listening.

The federal government allocated $126.7 million to all experiment stations in fiscal 1977, 12 per cent above the 1976 budget. The National Association of State Universities and Land-Grant Colleges is seeking a 36 per cent increase for 1978.

Other pending legislation would appropriate up to $150 million between fiscal 1977 and 1979 under a competitive grant program for promising lines of agricultual research.

Under the 1975 Famine Prevention Bill sponsored by Rep. Paul Findley, R-Ill., Congress authorized a partnership between land-grant colleges and the federal Agency for International Development to find ways to solve the world's food problems.

Investigators list several unsolved murders and disappearances of Angels in the past several years. A former Oakland vice president and a former Vallejo president are among the missing.

"The club's attitude toward informants isn't too friendly ... The club is more of a lifestyle than a hobby. The people who come in as a hobby don't stay around long. All they have to do to get out is say they quit." — Barger.

Law officers say recent activity has been concentrated in Solano County, between strongholds in the San Francisco Bay area and Sacramento, where the Angels once were harassed into disbanding.

The Solano County district attorney's office reports that four Angels fugitives, including one wanted for murder, were captured there in the last few months.

"I'm afraid the Angels are still with us," lamented a San Francisco Peninsula investigator who worked the Angels for six years. "They could have been reduced to nothing but a beer-drinking bunch after the events of 1973, but there hasn't been a proper followup."

White promises of spring water few

California water: massive systems are running dry

By SUSAN SWARD
Associated Press Writer

OROVILLE (AP) — Up in the Sierra Nevada, miles above the Oroville Dam, the snowflakes fall, white promises of spring water. Months later the promise is fulfilled, and the water from those melted snowflakes pours out a tap in Long Beach.

To the north, other snowflakes fall in the Cascades above Shasta Dam. Several months later the water from the Cascades is pumped onto a farmer's field outside Bakersfield.

That water from the Sierra Nevada snow was moved through the $2.9 billion State Water Project, authorized by voters in 1960 to move surplus Northern California water to populous Southern California.

The water from the Cascades was transported through the $4 billion federal Central Valley Project first authorized by Congress in the 1930s.

Both processes are part of the massive, intricate system that is the world's largest water project — nurturing food crops for much of the nation and providing water for millions of Californians.

It's an engineering marvel, one so large that the astronauts who landed on the moon reported they could see the California project, the only man-made item they could identify from that distance. The system is studied by other states and nations, which send representatives to examine its towering dams and the water coursing down its cement-lined canals.

Understandably, California's two-year drought has put a spotlight on its water system — those hundreds of miles of pipes, five dozen dams and scores of pumping stations spread out across the state.

About 4,000 public agencies annually deliver customers 13 trillion gallons of water, nearly 40 per cent of it shipped in the federal-state system. The rest of the water is delivered locally.

Agriculture is the system's biggest user, each year gobbling up 85 per cent of the state's water, which is typically 60 per cent surface water from streams, lakes and reservoirs, 40 per cent groundwater drawn from wells

Once the water projects were built and the hoopla died away, most Californians — especially city people — just expected the water to flow when they turned on the tap. That was before the drought reminded Californians that fresh, clear water is not a limitless resource.

The federal government is cutting its Central Valley Project users by up to 75 per cent this year. The state is chopping its municipal-industrial users by 10 per cent, its agricultural users by up to 60 per cent.

But both federal and state officials feel they will each have over one million acre feet of water — about one million football fields of water one foot deep — in storage at the end of this year's dry season as a hedge against another dry year.

breakthroughs tripled wheat production in places such as India and Mexico. Applying the same principles to soybeans, Illinois researchers are developing smaller high-protein soybean plants. They say these "semi-dwarf" plants could increase yields by some 30 per cent because they would resist "lodging," or falling over which results in bean loss, and could be grown closer together.

In all, about 25 University of Illinois agronomists are involved in soybean research, in cooperation with the USDA.

Throughout the Midwest and South, scientists are studying "foliar fertilization," a method that allows growing plants, not just soil, to be sprayed with fertilizer. The process is being tested on rice, wheat and other crops and could be available to farmers next summer.

Other Illinois scientists are studying "cell-free" mass production of food by man-made photosynthesis. That could make reality of science fiction foods such as "seaweed steaks" and "vege-burgers."

Less mind-boggling but no less significant is a project at the University of Illinois Department of Horticulture. In cooperation with agricultural experiment stations in Indiana and New Jersey, scientists are developing three new apple varieties with genetic immunity to scab, a disease which can cause heavy crop losses.

One of the most outspoken advocates of the resurgence of agricultural research is Dr. Sylvan H. Wittwer, director of the experiment station at Michigan State.

In a report to Congress, Wittwer said research on crops which would provide natural fertilizer to the soil "has been neglected to the point of a national disgrace and tragedy."

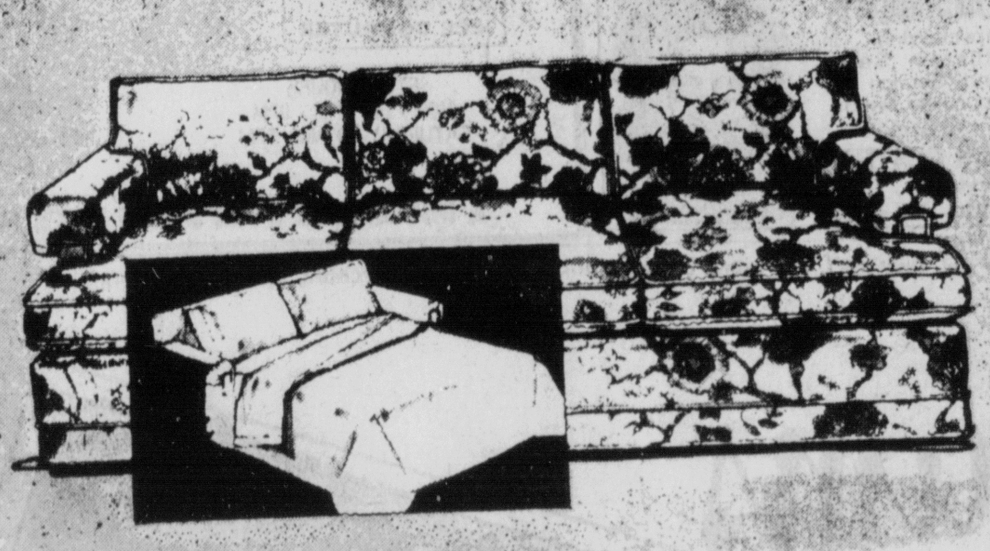

Calling for a new look at organic farming methods, Wittwer said "cheap fuel and the progressively decreasing costs of nitrogen fertilizer until the early 1970s gave a false front to the adequacies of energy and nitrogen supplies."

Meanwhile, he said, "little effort has been directed toward building crops" such as soybeans and alfalfa.

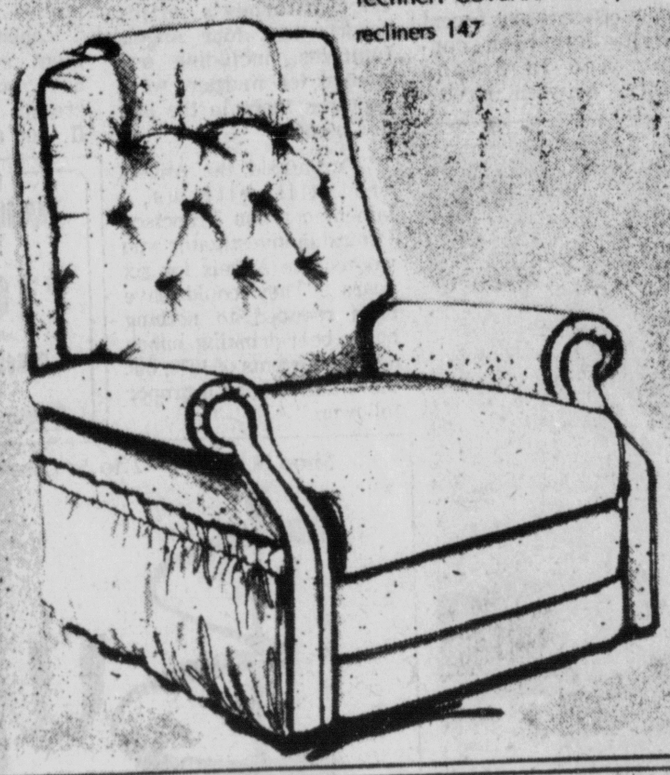

Through all the technical papers and calls for additional research comes the theme that the United States should increase its role as food basket for the world.

"The North American monopoly on grain shipments is far more concentrated than oil from OPEC (the Organization of Petroleum Exporting Countries)," he said.

Spring's white promises few, drought still looms—

ficials say, with some measure of pride, that this reserve shows that they took into account the possibility of lean water years when they built their projects.

Even so, if 1976 is another record dry year, the officials say about half the Central Valley Project water purchasers will be cut off and the state will only be able to meet 10 per cent of its agricultural demands and 60 per cent of its municipal-industrial needs.

The per cent of those cuts is dictated by state and federal water contracts and estimates of water supplies. Whatever the final cuts this year, they are certain to drive the cost of crops upwards.

Here is how the state portion of the water system works:

When the snowpack melts in the spring, its water flows into branches of the Feather River and then into the 770-foot Oroville Dam, where miles of bluegray water lap up against redbrown hills.

Oroville, biggest of 18 state dams, is the keystone of the project which moves 1.6 million acre feet of water a year. (An acre foot is about 325,000 gallons, approximately the amount used by the average family in a year.)

At Oroville Dam, a state technician sits in a modernistic control room at the base of the dam. He flips switches on a panel stretching across the room, releasing water into the Feather River.

That water flows along through the rural upper Sacramento Valley, merging from the Feather into the Sacramento River and down that river to the sprawling Sacramento-San Joaquin Delta.

Under state requirements, a certain amount of that water must flow into the ocean to block the intrusion of salt water that would harm farmland and wildlife into the delta.

At the state's Delta Pumping Plant, a squat concrete building in hills at the edge of the delta, another technician sets dials which release delta water flowing down the state canal.

After clearing the pumping plant, one of 15 in the system, the water destined for Long Beach and 150 other Southern California cities flows down the San Joaquin Valley in a portion of the 580 miles of canals build in California over the past 16 years.

It is stored at state-federal San Luis Reservoir and then, pumped by the state over the Tehachapis Mountains.

Metropolitan Water District, the state's biggest contractor with 11 million customers, uses about 90 per cent of the water pumped over the Tehachapis to Southern California.

Metropolitan delivers water to the homeowners and factories in Long Beach and 124 other cities, including Los Angeles. Thirteen other agencies distribute the water to 1.5 million other Southern Californians.

But that simplified account of how water moves in the State Water Project describes only about five per cent of the state's water needs in any year.

Shasta Dam, now at a record low after two years of drought, is the keystone of the federal Central Valley Project. The Bureau of Reclamation shares some canals with the state, but it has about 30 dams of its own, plus an elaborate canal and pumping system.

The bureau also delivers almost five million acre-feet of Colorado River Water annually to California, a supply that will not be reduced this year by the drought because of the massive capacity of the Colorado River system reservoirs such as Lake Meade and Lake Powell.

The state has great power over water, though, because everyone, including the federal government, must apply for a state permit to use stream water if they don't have on-stream rights or if they want to store it.

The federal Bureau of Reclamation, which sells Northern California and Colorado River water, meets about one-third of the state's water needs. While the State Water Project transports about 1.6 million acre feet a year, the federal government moves over 12 million acre feet.

The current legal dispute between federal and state water agencies gives an ironic twist in California's water history, since the state originally invited the federal government into the picture.

Explained Jim Welch, chief planner for the state Department of Water Resources:

"By 1930, it became apparent local development of water supplies would not be sufficient in California. A state water plan was developed and proposed for construction in 1930.

"Then the Depression came along. The state was unable to finance it and requested the federal government to finance it. This became the Central Valley Project," Welch said.

The state system's 31 contractors are 40 per cent agricultural, 60 per cent municipal-industrial. The bureau, on the other hand, primarily serves agriculture.

For example, the Central Valley Project, which moves northern water as far south as Bakersfield, has about 300 customers, 95 per cent of them in agriculture.

Those customers include the big Westlands Water District, which gets over one million acre feet a year, and the Summit City Public Utility District near Shasta, which gets 194 acre feet a year.

The state project is almost totally supported by those agencies which buy its water. The payments cover the project's operating costs and the bonds which voters approved to pay for the project.

The federal government works its water funding system differently. Part of the federal water project is subsidized by Congress, including costs such as flood control, and part of it is paid for by its customers.

On their federal water debts, municipal-industrial customers pay 3½ per cent interest, and agriculture customers pay no interest fee, said Ray Gaines, a Bureau of Reclamation official.

Under the federal subsidy system, about $416 million of the $4 billion cost of the Central Valley Project will never be repaid by the customers.

Along with the state and federal role in California's water picture, local agencies and private water companies play an important function.

There are 262 public water agencies banded together in the Association of California Water Agencies, whose members serve about 85 per cent of the state's water needs.

And there are about 400 private companies also in the business of delivering water in the state.

The public agencies are founded under state laws and have elected boards of directors. The private companies normally are profit-making firms which often get their water from groundwater sources.

The public agencies "look around and see where they can buy water at the most economical cost. They may contract with the state or federal government or do it themselves by building their own project, which a number have done," said Mickey Allen of the Association of California Water Agencies.

Water rates for state project water customers generally relate to how far away somebody is from the source of the water and whether any special water rights exist. Federal rates are computed on more of a flatcharge basis per acre foof, unrelated to the distance the water is transported.

The minimum state charge per acre foot is about $10.50. But state water reaching Southern California customers' taps may cost about $125 per acre foot because of transportation and pumping costs.

The minimum federal rates are about $3.50 per acre foot for agricultural customers and $9 per acre foot for municipal-industrial customers.

'Jaws'—monster that devoured Tokyo

Japanese movie boom subsides, film moguls face financial woes

EDITOR'S NOTE: Japan has no Hollywood as such, but it has been prolific as a movie maker, second in the world only to India. Now, the industry is in trouble because of changing times and tastes.

By KATHRYN TOLBERT
Associated Press Writer

TOKYO (AP) — The Japanese just don't have that old yen for movies anymore, and the film industry is feeling the pinch.

In 1960, the average Japanese went to about a movie a month. Now he sees less than two a year, compared with five or six for Americans. And in the last 15 years, the number of theaters in Japan dropped from 7,500 to 2,500. Nikkatsu, Japan's oldest movie company, has $27.6 million deficit.

Imports such as "Jaws" and "Towering Inferno" are making inroads in Japan, which long had been one of the few countries where domestically produced films made more money than imports. But last year, for the first time, revenue from foreign films exceeded that of Japanese movies.

The malaise has hit each of the Big Four Japanese movie companies — Nikkatsu, Toho, Toehi and Shochiku — which produced the bulk of domestic movies. They released 552 feature films in 1960 and 169 last year.

"Production costs are up tremendously, and it is very difficult to get investors for film making. The major companies are afraid to spend too much money," says Mrs. Kashiko Kawakita., head of the Japan Film Library Council.

The average budget for a film in Japan ranges from $300,000 to $800,000, peanuts by American standards where $1 million scrapes the bottom of the barrel and upwards of $20 million for "King Kong."

"There aren't as many people who want to spend a quiet evening at the movie theater," says Susuma Suzuke, secretary general of the Motion Picture Producers Association of Japan.

The industry, aware of the change in leisure time tastes, turned theaters into bowling alleys. Some of the major companies diversified, investing in condominiums, cooking schools, flower shops, golf courses, restaurant chains, sauna baths, car rental agencies and billiard parlors.

Now there are complaints that the companies are putting all of their money into far-flung enterprises instead of producting good films.

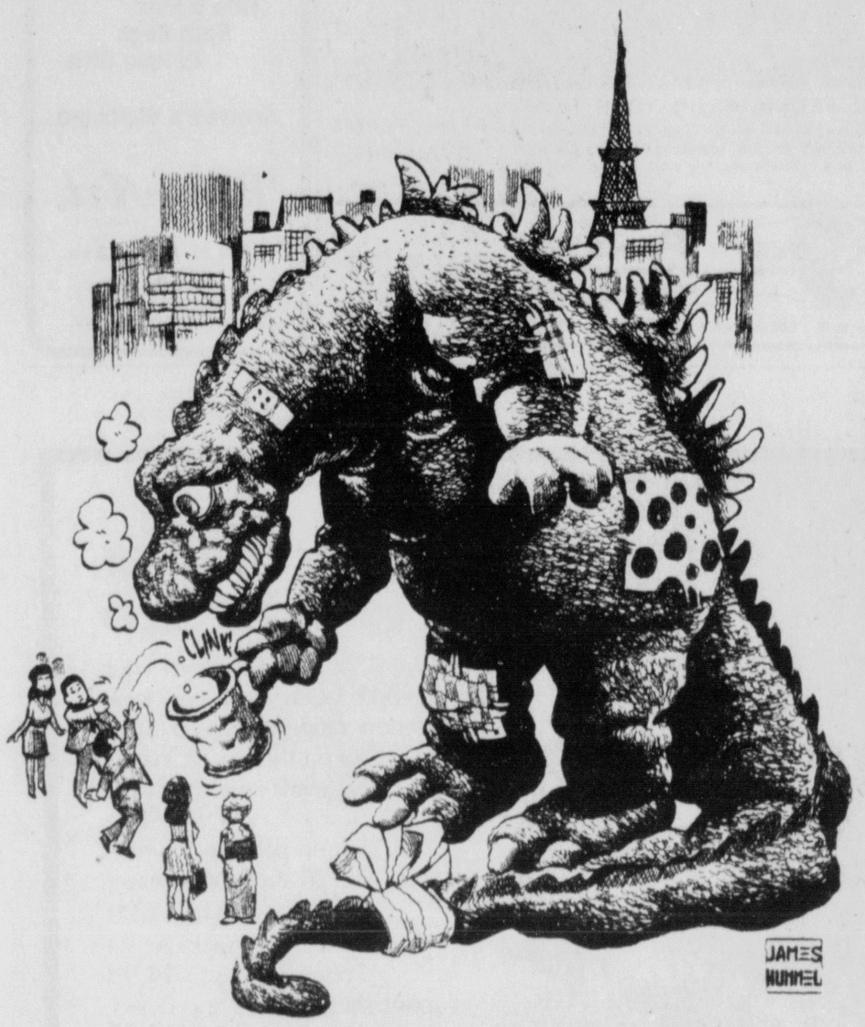

In Japan, unlike the United States, movie companies produce the films, distribute the films and book the films in the theaters which they own.

Isao Matsuoka, vice president of Toho, admits: "If we didn't own the theaters, it would be difficult to sell our films. If we made only good films, that would be fine, but they're not always good."

Porno films are forbidden, so the industry's board applies a strict code of ethics to avoid seizure and prosecution.

One porn film, "L'Empire Des Sens," was filmed in Japan and produced in France. By the time it got to Japanese theaters, it was edited to the point where heads were connected to feet.

The industry has gone to the government for help. In 1973, the agency for cultural affairs awarded $30,000 for the 10 best films. Two years later, the government dropped taxes on admission fees.

Japanese filmmakers hit hard times

If you're deathly afraid . . .

Reno woman 'counsels' victims of snake fear

By ROBERT W. WELKOS
Associated Press Writer

RENO, Nev. (AP) — King Kong tapping at your window or Alfred Hitchcock's birds scratching at your screen door are enough to give anyone nightmares, but probably nothing frightens humans in the real world more than a snake.

Just ask Nancy Adams. The 26-year-old master's level psychologist counsels people who are deathly afraid of snakes.

"I think part of the reason for a fear of snakes is that you never expect to see them," Miss Adams said. "I don't care what you see, if you don't expect to see it you're going to jump.

"There are some people who are incapacitated by their fear of snakes," she continued. "Often it is characterized by nightmares or really strong physiological arousal and fear.

"I think most people have fears of one kind or another," she said. "It's just difficult to understand the intensity of fear some of these people have."

Since last June, Miss Adams has worked under a federal grant counseling persons with snake phobia. Sessions are held at the University of Nevada.

Since then, she has counseled approximately 40 persons from the Reno area in an effort to cure them of their snake fears.

"Quite a number of people are afraid of snakes to the point where it interferes with their enjoyment of life," Miss Adams said. "They're not comfortable hiking or camping or going to the zoo or seeing a picture of a snake," she added.

"We're helping people to reduce those fears," she said. "I think it's very realistic but the types of people we work with are people who have fears so severe that it really interferes with their enjoyment of life."

People who sign up for Miss Adams' counseling service usually tremble at the sight of any snake, whether it be a venomous water moccasin or a harmless garter snake.

And, she noted, the persons seeking help have ranged in age from 14 to 65 and she has counseled as many men as women.

Miss Adams blames parents, the news media and myths as major reasons persons develop fear of snakes.

"I think a lot of fear comes from parents," she said. "It's amazing to see how often children look to their parents to see how they react."

She said motion pictures often depict snakes as something terrifying while, in reality, the snakes used in the filming are docile.

And then there is religion and mythology.

"If you look at all religions and myths, a snake is usually associated with everything from virility to the occult," she said. "Snakes are probably associated with more myths than any other creature."

Miss Adams said the snake counseling she provided free of charge usually required only to 10 hours of one-on-one discussions with the emphasis on learning theory. "Fears are learned and they can be unlearned," she maintained.

She noted that a psychiatrist would charge $40 to $70 an hour for curing snake fear.

Now that's a frightening thought.

DARING FEATS

Tumbling tricks are a must for stuntmen. Here, Tom Hartl, 12, of Pomona, demonstrates his prowess with a leap through the air. Meanwhile in photo below, his brother, Steve, 14, performs a daring jump from atop a 30-foot tree. The jump was perfected by the brothers and a neighborhood friend, Jamie Perry, 14.

In after-stroke resocialization

Stroke victims find 'life' anew

Editor's note: This is the first of two articles dealing with the causes of stroke, the prognosis for recovery and programs available for after-stroke resocialization.

By VONNE ROBERTSON
PB Staff Writer

A successful businessman was driving his car alone when something happened. Or rather, something which should have happened didn't.

He suddenly realized that he could no longer grasp the steering wheel. Nor could he lift his foot from the accelerator to apply the brake. His mind was functioning, but the body wouldn't respond.

Kyle Piercy of Glendora had just suffered a stroke.

The car was hit by a truck and crashed into a tree. Piercy spent the next 70 days as a patient in Queen of the Valley Hospital in West Covina.

At first, Piercy was unable to walk, to sit up or even to talk. Eventually, he was outfitted with arm and leg braces and canes and discharged home.

That was 8½ years ago.

Now Piercy still lacks a certain agility of step but his mind is sharp, his outlook bright and his dedication to supporting a program of after-stroke socialization is strong.

He serves as public relations chairman for the Organization of After-Stroke Resocialization in the valley and is a frequent speaker at stroke seminars and before service clubs.

It is predicted that 171 out of every 100,000 Americans will suffer a stroke this year. While the median age is 73, stroke victims may be very young.

Dr. Herbert Johnson, medical director at Casa Colina Hospital in Pomona, explains the causes and results of strokes.

"Strokes are caused by the lack of blood supply to a portion of the brain. This may be the result of a hardening of the arteries, a clot or a small brain tumor which closes off the supply of blood.

"Another cause, hemorrhage or bursting of blood vessels in the brain, frequently results from high blood pressure."

The resulting paralysis which usually accompanies a stroke depends on the area of the brain involved. If the left side of the brain is damaged, the right side of the body will probably be paralyzed and speech may be impaired.

A stroke on the right side of the brain would result in left-side paralysis and visual-spatial problems.

"If the back of the brain is involved, one can expect a loss of the side visual fields," says Dr. Johnson. "This limits driving since the person can't see what's coming from the sides."

Dr. Johnson explains that most stroke victims suffer a spastic paralysis of the arms or legs, in

Boys' daring dreams

Pomonans seek stunt prowess

By BOB SWETNAM
PB Staff Writer

All boys have their dreams and their heroes.

To be able to run like O. J. Simpson, rock-out like Elton John, throw a punch like Mohammed Ali, or jump a canyon like Evel Knievel . . . Oh, what a life!

But not everyone is born to be a king with a palace, an astronaut on the moon, a famous brain surgeon or a five-star general. Most must be content to grind it out at a nine-to-five job.

Sure, the boyhood fantasies linger on, but always with one eye trained on the everyday adult realities that must be faced.

Three Pomona boys, like most boys, have their dreams and heroes, too. They don't anticipate ever having to greet that ordinary occupation. Theirs is a world of excitement and danger. Their heroes are Read Rondell and Dar Robinson and a small band of other daring souls — none of them household names. These are professional stuntmen.

But Tom and Steve Hartl and Jamie Perry would give almost anything to follow in their footsteps . . . even if it meant jumping off of a building, or diving into a fiery wreck.

The three dream of someday becoming professional stuntmen.

They're quick to caution other youths not to attempt any of their feats without first acquiring a good deal of competent instruction and proper equipment.

Every day after school, weekends, too, the boys practice hour after hour perfecting their stunt routines. Although not nearly as sophisticated as the 190-foot falls and human fire tricks by their mentors in the movies, the three work diligently on tree falls, bar fights, tumbling tricks and bicycle stunts.

Their 30-foot tree fall is the most spectacular.

High atop a tree in their yard is a small platform. Below it a specially constructed mattress to break falls.

"We've been doing this stunt for about three years," said 14-year-old Steve Hartl seconds after falling headfirst from the top of the 30-foot high tree. "We started with small tree falls and gradually worked our way up. We read some books on how to set up stunts and talked to some professionals on how to do stunts safely. We learned how to break falls and how to fall without getting hurt."

The three practice their stunts seriously — rolls off house roofs, jumping over tables, falling down stairs and jumping out of moving cars.

"The professional stuntmen associations have our names," revealed Jamie Perry, 14. "We're hoping they might call one of us for a job if they ever need some stunts. We have done fire tricks like in the movies, but they're pretty dangerous unless you have good equipment."

Asked what heights they someday hoped to attain, they all replied "190 feet," which is the present top height for a fall by a professional.

A 12-year-old boy daringly diving 190 feet headfirst off a platform would indeed be a sight to see. But then there probably aren't many 12-year-olds diving out of 30-foot high trees either.

Paul D. Walker named

YMCA 'drive' chairman selected

Appointment of Paul D. Walker as honorary chairman and Charles T. Richardson as chairman of the steering committee to assist in launching the $760,000 fund-raising drive to expand and improve Pomona Valley YMCA facilities was announced by Al Smith, YMCA president.

Walker, retired chairman of the board of Pomona First Federal Savings and Loan Association, and Richardson, retired publisher of the Pomona Progress Bulletin, both have been identified for many years with YMCA and other valley public service projects.

Plans now are being formulated which will utilize more than 300 volunteer solicitors in a massive effort to obtain gifts or pledges in support of the campaign, according to James Kostoff, chairman of the fund drive, and Larry Woods, general director of the YMCA.

Most of the money obtained in the drive, the largest in the 58-year history of the metropolitan YMCA, will be used to expand existing facilities in the Central Branch in Pomona and to establish permanent buildings and recreation facilities in the Claremont and San Dimas-La Verne branches.

The theme of the fund-raising effort, "The Promise of Youth," was selected to remind Pomona Valley residents that "there must be sacrificial giving by those who care about the future of youth in the valley," Walker and Richardson said.

Paul D. Walker, left, and Charles T. Richardson discuss plans for a $760,000 Pomona Valley YMCA fund-raising campaign to improve and enlarge facilities at the Central Y in Pomona and the branches in Claremont and San Dimas-La Verne themed "The Promise of Youth."

Baby boom due to repeat

The United States is due for another baby boom, thinks one observer — the Pill, more women working and concern over population control notwithstanding.

The very fact that the birth rate has fallen to 1.8 children per woman, less than replacement level, almost insures it will happen, says University of Michigan economist and demographer Prof. Donald D. Lee.

"Today's children will comprise a relatively small age group when they become young adults during the 1980s and 1990s," he says "As a result, their job and income prospects will be improved. Feeling more prosperous, they will marry earlier and have more children. Families of three or more children will become common again."

He notes that during the Depression of the 1930s, the birth rate dipped to about 2.1 children per woman, exactly replacement level. Because there were so few children in that age group, they fared better with jobs and income when they reached maturity.

These young adults gave birth to more children during the postwar years. When the baby-boom children in turn began coming of age during the 1960s and 1970s, this much larger population found itself faring worse economically and because of it elected to have fewer children

As further evidence of the powerful influence of economics on the birth rate, Lee points out that the Depression-era figure of 2.1 was achieved long before many contraceptives used today were invented. The birth rate peaked in 1957 at 3.7 and then began a steady fall to the current 1.8 more than a decade before the environmental and women's liberation movements.

It isn't absolute income that affects a generation's birth rate, however, but how income compares with expectations. Because they are both fewer in number and are growing up in an era of economic uncertainty, Lee believes today's children will find themselves in better economic circumstances than they expect and will thus repeat the reproductive performance of the children of the '30s.

Winter as costly as it was cold

It's lucky that winter comes but once a year, and luckier yet that winters like the current one blow in maybe once or twice a century.

According to the U.S. Commerce Department, January's severe cold was chiefly responsible for a record monthly trade deficit and the biggest drop in the nation's economic indicators since the 1974-75 recession.

Due to weather-caused plant shutdowns and transportation tie-ups, exports declined 7.8 per cent during the month to give the United States a deficit of nearly $17 billion in its foreign trade balance. A 1.2 per cent decline in the composite index of leading economic indicators (jobs, building permits, orders for new goods, etc.) was the first decline in four months and, temporarily at least, put the nation's economic recovery on hold.

About the only thing that went up was oil imports, which increased 5 per cent in January.

That's only part of Old Man Winter's bill. Winter damage to roads and bridges is expected to add up to a cool $2.8 billion in 21 Eastern and Midwestern states, says The Road Information Program (TRIP), a highway industry research and information agency.

This is in addition to the cost of filling an estimated 55 million potholes and resurfacing pavement with minor damage, and doesn't include another $270 million for snow removal. It could be worse. Think what it would be like if the United States wasn't in the "Temperate Zone."

Thoughts

Rejoice with those who rejoice, weep with those who weep. Live in harmony with one another; do not be haughty, but associate with the lowly; — Romans 12:15,16.

"If civilization is to survive, we must cultivate the science of human relationships — the ability of all peoples, of all kinds, to live together, in the same world at peace." — Franklin D. Roosevelt, 32nd U.S. President.

A cheerful heart is a good medicine, but a downcast spirit dries up the bones. — Proverbs 17:22.

"Laughter is one of the best things that God has given us, and with hearty laughter neither malice nor indecency can exist." — Stanley Baldwin, former British Prime Minister.

"We must work the works of him who sent me, while it is day; night comes, when no one can work. As long as I am in the world, I am the light of the world." — John 9:4, 5. "He who would really benefit mankind must reach them through their work." —Henry Ford, American industrialist.

Our Man in Washington

Violence realest when closest

By TERRY WADE
PB Washington Writer

WASHINGTON — Terrorism. You never really think of that act with realism until suddenly you are confronted with bloodshed and horror.

Sirens are common in a city the size of Washington and even such an unusual thing as a gunman holding people in a downtown building draws little more than passing attention.

But when gunmen take three buildings, one less than a block from where you work, the passive attention suddenly becomes rapt and terrorism is no longer abstract.

In this television age there is something less than reality about bloodshed and terror. Because we are accustomed to right winning in the end no matter what the price, it is difficult to look out a window and believe everything really isn't all right in the world.

As nearly everyone knows Washington was under "seige" last week. Armed men held nearly 150 innocent men and women hostage for nearly three days under the pretense of religious direction.

One of the buildings the Hanafi Muslems held here was the District Building, about one block from our bureau office.

While we were watching the action at the District Building from the 10th floor of a building less than 200 yards away, our fascination with the red lights and excitement soon grew into grief and then to depression.

As word filtered out that one man had been murdered and others seriously wounded and as the terrorists warned of cutting off heads, the reality of the situation held the entire city.

Work didn't stop and life went on, but we were watching the activities out of the corner of our eyes and our minds were working.

What if the terrorists were right and this is just the beginning? What if this is not an isolated incident and there is an underlying grain of violence about to burst forth? What if? What if?

We will never be free of radical actions and reactions.

We can only hope that we do the right things by all the peoples we associate with and thus cut the odds that we will be victims.

We must also respond to terrorist activities with firmness and consistency. We must leave no doubt in future terrorists' minds what they will gain.

Carter's diplomatic ploy: truth

WASHINGTON — Two months after his inauguration, President Carter already has reached the first decisive turning point of his administration.

His several overtures toward resurrecting America's old image as the champion of freedom, according to intelligence reports, has stirred a profound response among peoples around the globe, but also a backlash of alarm from governments, friendly and unfriendly.

Stung by Carter's repeated condemnations of torture dungeons and concentration camps, Pravda warns that detente and disarmament will be endangered if he keeps it up. Uruguay and Argentina have canceled American aid programs. Idi Amin created a teapot tempest in Uganda. Brazil has withdrawn from a long-standing mutual security arrangement. Many members of our diplomatic corps are protesting privately that moral posturing does not make good foreign policy.

The resulting confrontation between idealism and pragmatism may give us the measure of Jimmy Carter sooner than expected. Is he a novice who has rushed into a diplomatic mare's nest from which he will retreat lamely as protests mount in the chancelleries of the world? Is he a quixotic exhorter of moral nostrums in which he will persevere whether or not they square with reality? Or is he perchance an unexpected statesman who recognizes the hidden power of moral force and who rightly gauges the depth and breadth of the human yearning he has touched?

One clue to the answer may be found in Carter's informed interest in the Soviet dissidents. His welcoming to the White House of Vladimir Bukovsky, the heroic veteran of Soviet insane asylums for the sane, was clearly a studied rebuke to the policy of his predecessor toward Aleksandr Solzhenitsyn. The Ford administration, to its grief, largely ignored the dissidents. Jimmy Carter has recognized them and the human surge they represent.

A second clue is his repudiation of Henry Kissinger's see-no-evil policy, which refused to recognize the profaning of human dignity all over the world. Carter has a sense of the shame to which millions of Americans have been reduced by a national policy that sought to compete on even terms in the squalid game of lies, assassinations and bribes.

At the same time, he has carefully distinguished his championship of dissidence from that of John Foster Dulles who, in the 1950s, encouraged the fires of revolution by offering hope of American intervention. Then, when those fires ignited in eastern Europe, he backed off.

Carter has disclaimed from the start any thought of brinkmanship, any notion of military intervention. He offers only the steady pressure that builds up from the constant reiteration of the truth. Dictators fear this.

Carter, of course, is beset with the dilemmas posed by the need for consistency in an incongruous world. Some of our principal allies are despotisms, such as Iran and South Korea; and so he rows with muffled oars around their abominations. He avoids decisions as to how long we shall go on giving the Kremlin material aid along with moral strictures. He edges toward the normalization of relations with Cuban Premier Fidel Castro, but does not know how to reconcile this with the grim reality that Cuba is the most complete tyranny in the Western Hemisphere, a tyranny that Castro is now exporting to Africa.

And so President Carter will be constantly in danger of running aground on the shoals of hypocrisy. Critics who deplore his jeopardizing supposedly tangible interests for the sake of such nebulous things as rights and freedom will make the most of the traps that inconsistency sets. He must expect to encounter trumped-up crises and dire forebodings from sensitive governments that equate any public discussion of their carnal houses with a return to the Cold War.

Certainly he will have to maneuver delicately and sometimes awkwardly among these obstacles. He will have to carry water on both shoulders for a time as he works toward the lights.

This in itself will not discredit his policy. The critical thing to watch is whether the President resolves the inconsistency problem in the direction of applying an ever-widening insistence on basic freedom among allies and adversaries alike as the price of U.S. cooperation — or in the direction of gradually surrendering all such tests to the fancied expediency of the moment.

Jimmy Carter has perceived, rightly we think, something hopeful going in the wind of the world, something that can be peaceably encouraged. He has embarked in an outwardly casual, unpretentious way upon a vast enterprise that may fail and that cannot succeed without public support.

Labor bill invites turmoil

Any fender-bender mishap on a commuter thoroughfare is not allowed to blockade traffic.

Motorists are expected to pull off the road, out of the way and negotiate their differences or await arrival of a mediator.

In other words, a collision or dispute involving two motorists is not allowed to disrupt traffic for everybody else.

Yet there is legislation on the move through Congress right now which would allow the most trivial labor disagreement — involving one grievance in one local of one union — to shut down the most gigantic construction project.

And while some union leaders are pushing this legislation to allow what's called "Common Situs Picketing," it is union workers in the construction trades who have the most to lose.

Union leaders are sometimes so eager for more administrative clout that they punish the membership.

The average construction worker in the United States does very well — when he's working.

In wages and fringes he averages $11.55 an hour — when he's working.

The average construction worker makes half-again more than the average worker in manufacturing — when he's working.

But unemployment in construction has been running TWICE the national average, 14.9 percent.

And there is the most unemployment, 27.1 percent, where the workers are completely unionized.

Now the leaders of some construction unions — instead of concentrating on creating work for their workers — are agitating for legislation which could shut down the most gigantic construction project at the whim of one picket.

They are promoting a sneaky effort in Congress — HR 3500 — to reallow secondary boycotts in the construction industry.

Whatever your job or your business you should not be squeezed between the jaws of somebody else's squabble.

A quarter-century ago the Taft-Hartley law so affirmed that secondary boycotts are unjust and illegal.

Yet now Rep. Frank Thompson, D-N.J., is running interference in Congress for those shortsighted union leaders who don't realize or don't care that they are going to create turmoil in their industry and compound already chronic unemployment.

The Common Situs Picketing bill is more than that — it is intended to be a wedge to force all American workers into a union.

It is the first thrust toward the objective of overruling those state laws which allow a worker the right to work without belonging to a union.

President Carter prefers to let Congress make this decision; meaning he would not, as President Ford did, veto such loaded legislation.

In an industry already choking on high labor costs and disrupted by periodic strikes, HR 3500 is a prescription for strangulation.

Power brokers lead Congress

WASHINGTON (NEA) — An old sport, long out of fashion, has been reintroduced on Capitol Hill this year by House Speaker Tip O'Neill and Senate Majority Leader Robert C. Byrd. The name of the game is hardball.

It's not a whole new genre; Sam Rayburn and Lyndon Johnson were all-star players in their day. But they've been gone for many a year, and congressional Democrats had more or less forgotten what it's like to have leaders who occasionally dust off the batter and nail unwary runners at first base.

O'Neill and Byrd could hardly be more different in style and personality, but they share an appetite for power and an eagerness to exercise it in a fashion never attempted by their immediate predecessors, Carl Albert and Mike Mansfield.

In less than three months, the garrulous Boston Irishman and dour West Virginian have clearly established their supremacy in the House and Senate and, in the process, have shown the new boy in the White House who is boss on Capitol Hill.

The two leaders are ubiquitous and indefatigable. All day long, they are talking to their colleagues — soliciting information, stroking, cajoling and counting their votes. O'Neill and Byrd abhor surprises; they don't intend to be blindsided and are taking every precaution to insure that they aren't.

Both collected some valuable chits from their colleagues by taking the heat for sliding through last month's $13,000 congressional pay raises without a roll call vote.

O'Neill quickly collected the due bill when some Democrats on the House Rules Committee got balky about the stringent new ethics code he had pledged to produce. He hauled the recalcitrant Rules members into his office, reminded them they owed him for one fat pay raise and threatened to blow the whistle on them on the floor if they didn't produce. He got his ethics package — intact.

Byrd demonstrated his clout in the Senate in similar fashion when some uppity liberals tried to challenge Russell Long's chairmanship of the Senate Finance Committee in a secret ballot vote of the Democratic caucus.

Russell Long is a cherished Byrd ally, and the majority leader didn't take kindly to the liberal effort to unseat the Louisiana Democrat, even though it produced a piddling six votes in caucus. He dusted off an old Senate rule no one had ever bothered to use before and forced a roll call vote on the floor over the Finance Committee chairmanship. Strangely enough, not a single senator could muster the courage to vote against Long in public.

"He knocked the wind right out of the reformers," one disgruntled Democrat said.

So far, O'Neill and Byrd have generally cooperated with President Carter in pushing administration appointments and bills. They whipped Carter's emergency natural gas legislation through Congress in short order, heading off unacceptable amendments. O'Neill helped Carter circumvent a reluctant committee chairman, Jack Brooks, to get authority to reorganize the executive branch. Byrd blocked a Senate vote on a resolution condemning Carter's pardon of Vietnam draft evaders. And the Senate leader forestalled a filibuster of Paul Warnke's nomination as head of the disarmament agency and chief SALT negotiator.

But the two leaders have also shown they will not play ball with Carter when either their personal political interests or the collective concerns of Congress are at stake. O'Neill exercised his lungs and his political muscle to knock Republican Jack Eckerd out of the top job at the General Services Administration after Carter had agreed to keep Eckerd on.

And Byrd cheerfully allowed the Senate to adopt an amendment to the President's public works jobs bill ordering Carter to spend money on 18 controversial water projects the President wants to delete from his budget. In fact, Byrd joined the majority in pushing through the amendment by a 65-24 margin.

O'Neill and Byrd are bound to face internal challenges to their authority as the session goes on. No leader can keep a tight rein on all those galloping egos forever. But neither the speaker nor the Senate majority leader is likely to lose many fights, and Carter had best speak nicely to both of them if he wants to get his programs through Congress.

Ann Landers

Television addiction assailed

Dear Ann Landers: We speak and read about all sorts of addictions in this day and age, but why isn't more said and written about the biggest addiction of all — television?

No effort is made to try to solve the ordinary problems that occur in every household because "the box" does all the talking. If an effort is made, the problem must be resolved in 20 minutes, because "Laverne and Shirley" is coming on. It's like going to the show every night of your life, only you don't have to leave the house.

Many adults seek instant gratification. Like self-indulgent children, they sit in front of the boob tube escaping the here-and-now — like the alcoholic or drug addict, only THEIR addiction is TV!

How many marriages are on the skids because either husband or wife must stay up to catch the late, late show, and then falls into bed too exhausted to give a spouse the attention she (or he) needs?

How many families spend the entire evening together in one room, yet each is alone to himself? In how many homes is the TV used as a baby sitter? How many families watch television during the dinner hour, when the events of the day should be discussed? How many children retire to their bedrooms to look at a TV that has been put there so there will be no conflict between the programs they want to watch and the ones their parents prefer?

The most common excuse for so much TV is "there isn't anything else to do." What a sad commentary that life is so empty that the most constructive thing we can do is vegetate in front of a box!

How much has TV helped to create a society of people who care for nothing except their own self-indulgence? How can the ordinary problems which beset the average family even begin to be solved if we aren't willing to pry ourselves loose from the TV and give ourselves a chance to start thinking of solutions?

Like alcohol and drugs, TV can be enormously destructive to personal relationships. Look at our society. Look at our crime rate — the beatings, robberies and killings, sometimes for only a few pennies! You do not need to be a psychiatrist to know that TV has played an important role in the increase of violent crimes in our country.

Many people will disagree with what I have written and point out that TV is a wonderful tool for education and does a super job of reporting the news, and they have a point. But the overwhelming percentage of TV hours are devoted to trivia and just plain garbage which includes smut, violence and offensive commercials.

I am an ordinary, average housewife, a mother and a grandmother. I have discussed this problem with relatives and friends. My family is not the only one that is suffering. It's very difficult to use the TV wisely when the man of the house is the biggest offender. How can you get your children away from the set when their father can find nothing better to do? It seems as if I have no control over my own environment because TV comes before everything.

I implore those who share my problem to offer a solution. — Mrs. U.S.A.

Dear Mrs.: Thank you for a provocative letter. I'll print the best response.

Do you feel awkward, self-conscious — lonely? Welcome to the club. There's help for you in Ann Landers's booklet, "The Key to Popularity." Send 50 cents in coin with your request and a long, stamped, self-addressed envelope to Ann Landers, P.O. Box 1400, Elgin, Ill. 60120.

Edison's first devise paid well

What did you know about the stock market at the age of 23? Likewise. But Thomas Edison at that age at least knew enough about it to dream up a stock ticker, his first invention. He got $40,000 for it. Not bad, considering the dollar then was worth many times what it's worth today, and there was no income tax.

How can you call yourself a student of American history, if you can't name the five U.S. presidents born west of the Mississippi? Nixon, Johnson, Eisenhower, Truman and Hoover. Why, I knew that in the first grade.

Of the world's biggest cities, those wherein food is said to be the cheapest now are Dublin, Buenos Aires and Bogota.

The only animal with a movable upper jaw is the alligator.

GAFFER

Q. "Why is an old man sometimes referred to as a 'gaffer'?"

A. Comes from godfather. And an oldwoman is sometimes referred to as a gammer short for godmother. But I don't believe I've ever heard the male version except in the redundancy "old gaffer," have you?

Q. "Quick, Louie, can you name the only sovereign queen of France?"

A. Won't bite on that one, sir. France has never had a sovereign queen.

The Scorpios can turn their own nervous drive to good money, if they try. Unfortunately, their passionate natures sometimes push them into highly emotional situations wherein the heart too frequently overrules the head. Or so say the stargazers.

BIRD'S ANKLE

Not everybody realizes that bird's knee is really its ankle.

Three countries in the Western Hemisphere are bigger than all of Australia. Can you name them? The United States, Canada, and, yes Brazil, too . . . If you address a letter simply to Cold Harbour, England, it could wind up in any one of 170 different localities thereabouts . . . Please list coffee, also, along with garlic and alcohol among those common foods that produce perspiration of a particular odor.

In old England, the word "fool" was a term of endearment endearment. A court jester, for instance, was referred to as the "fool" the way a large family now might refer to the youngest child as the "baby."

Dr. Miller

A big bargain or a fleecing?

DEAR DR. MILLER: We have a chance to get one of those big, pretty parrots real cheap. Fifty bucks. I checked around and found these birds, called macaws, sell for several hundred. The trouble is this bird is kept in a small room and is tied only by a leash on his leg. Could we just keep him on a perch in our living room, or would we have to buy a cage for him? A cage big enough for him would cost more than the bird. — L.L.

DEAR L.L.: There'd be occasions, and for that big bird they'd probably be numerous, when you'd want to confine him to a cage. So if you get him, it would be best to plan on investing in a big cage also. Before you get that powerful psitticine, however, perhaps you should determine exactly what why he's for sale so cheap.

Could be he's a doddering geriatric case, or he may be in precarious health for some other reason. Certainly a veterinary checkup prior to final purchase would be advisable. Could be he's healthy enough, but his habits may leave something to be desired. He may be, due to improper earlier care and training, highly aggressive, for example, and a macaw given the opportunity and inclination can lop off a finger with no great effort.

A not too uncommon habit with bored big psitticines is screaming and, believe it, one of these big birds screaming in your living room would break up whatever conversations might be going on there. So investigate first. A big bird bargain he might be — but it could also mean a feathered fleecing for you.

DEAR DR. MILLER: When I had Muffin in to the doctor in '75, he said he'd never seen a healthier 12-year-old cat. In the last few months, though, she runs around the room like she's having fits, stops, stares at me with a wild look in her eye, and sometimes lets out this wild, weird cry. What's bothering her? Will she turn on me? — A.N.

DEAR A.N.: Many cats who looked great in '75 are no longer alive, and many more others are in need of veterinary attention. Yours is one. Whether your pussycat is paranoid or in pain is up to her doctor to determine, if he hasn't already. It's only a remote possibility, but the fact that Muffin might attack should be an added inducement to get her in for help, and soon.

Erma Bombeck

Sign language for dentist?

Most people have a communications problem with their dentist or hygienist.

This is probably because one of the parties is trying to communicate under a slight handicap. That is: (a) his entire mouth has been put to sleep; (b) there is a hanger over his lip sucking out all the saliva; (c) a pair of hands are busy picking at his gums until he bleeds; (d) there is a smoking drill in the mouth which if it touches his tongue will cause great pain.

For some unexplained reason, a dentist or hygienist who speaks a conservative six words a year will suddenly realize he has a captive audience and break into twenty questions.

It has always bothered me that the victimee is at a decided disadvantage and has no recourse but to sit there and listen.

That is why I would like to see the following set of responses standardized and available to persons in the dentist or hygienist's chair.

A bite on the dentist's forefinger translates to: "You are standing on my tongue."

A knee brought up quickly to nudge his elbow: "You are pulling the wrong tooth, turkey."

Eyes closed, accompanied by a low snore: "Hearing about the septic tank you put in at your cabin is boring."

Entire body coming off the contour chair and remaining airborne for a full 15 seconds: "Yes, that tooth is a little sensitive when you tap it with a mallet."

Spit once in the sink: "I have one child."

Spit twice in the sink: "Two or more children."

A low moan: "No, I have never thought about braces at my age."

A high moan: "I'm not THAT old!"

Tears coming out of eyes and running down cheeks: "What do I have to do to convince you I'll floss after every meal?"

Hand and arm raised in a fully extended position above the head: Permission to leave.

Burying head in nose tissue for five minutes: A sign of hostility which when translated means, "I don't like you anymore. You're getting on my nerves . . . literally."

Clenched lips, rising to feet and heading toward the door: "It's been nice talking with you."

Dr. Lamb

Lack of hormone causes ills

DEAR DR. LAMB — I am completely confused and hoping you can help me. The doctor I go to for high blood pressure has put me on medicine to lower it. I go to another doctor for checkups after hysterectomy-surgery and he put me on Premarin.

I was really feeling great until the blood pressure doctor took me off Premarin saying it was keeping weight on that he was trying to get me to take off. I called the doctor who prescribed Premarin and he says I need it but stop taking it and see.

The results are I am having terrible hot flashes, wet sweats in the night and feel dragged out. Also I have gained 15 pounds. Is there an answer?

DEAR READER — In cases like this the patient usually benefits if the two doctors discuss the problem with each other. Busy days often make this difficult but it is the ideal.

Taking you off Premarin did not help you lose weight. On the contrary you gained weight which is bad for your blood pressure.

The estrogen in your medicine is particularly useful in stopping the hot flashes and sweating of menopause. You don't need large doses usually to achieve this effect. Possibly your doctor could give you a small amount of just estrogen or a synthetic estrogen to accomplish this for you.

Because of changes in metabolism during the menopause, whether it is induced by surgery or occurs naturally, it is difficult for some women to avoid gaining weight. The body metabolism and often one's physical activity slows down.

You must get on a weight control program and I am sending you The Health Letter number 4-7, Weight Losing Diet, which you can use to control your calories and still get a balanced diet. Stick to it with religious zeal and you will lose weight.

You could help yourself with an exercise program. Develop a daily walking program. Walk a total of three miles a day. If you weigh around 130 pounds that will use an additional 150 calories a day or the equivalent of over 15 pounds of body fat a year. The exercise plus the diet should help you solve your problem.

Others who want this diet plan can send 50 cents for it. Just write to me in care of this newspaper, P.O. Box 1551, Radio City Station, New York, NY 10019. Most people who have high blood pressure can help themselves a great deal by eliminating any extra body fat they have. Certainly 15 pounds could make a great deal of difference.

The diet plan I am sending is the basis for a permanent well balanced varied diet. Once you have reached your goal you can add other foods to the basic plan as long as you don't add so many calories for your level of activity that you start to gain weight again. The diet trains you to be able to stay slim rather than spend a lifetime of "feast or famine" and it is better for your health.

I would like to suggest too that you restrict your salt at least by not adding salt to your cooking. Estrogen tends to cause salt, and hence water retention, which your blood pressure doctor is trying to avoid. But that 15 pound weight gain is not water and you can eliminate the salt and water retention with medicines but not the calories stored as fat.

Happiness, to some, is a warm puppy. To others it may be a dry martini. And still to others, happiness may be the taste of a particular brand of cigarette. These examples point to one of the qualities of happiness: It can come from quite ordinary experiences. But happiness is also elusive.

A goodly number of people have traveled to my office door in search of happiness. Most of these people had discovered that puppies, no matter how warm; martinis, no matter how dry; or cigarettes, regardless of taste, did not provide a very long-lasting happiness. These people were alert to finding happiness. They also knew that some kinds of happiness do not last long.

Happiness has an importance for everybody, even though there isn't a very good definition for it. We can, however, usually say whether we are happy or not. We have also learned something about happiness: We know what it is not.

Happiness is not the same as pleasure. The world is filled with unhappy, restless jet-setters off in search of happiness. Happiness does not come from a passive kind of peace, either. A truce forged with the world through alcohol or drugs doesn't bring happiness.

Happiness is not self-conscious. It flows from a life of purpose, especially one that is centered around helping others. Happiness is bound up with effort and struggle. That is why it is present in the lives of husbands and wives who strive to love each other and their children, even when they have bills and other troubles to deal with every day.

Happiness is filled with paradox. To get it, one must forget trying to grab at it directly. Happiness is a by-product of getting absorbed in something worthwhile outside ourselves.

A further paradox of happiness is that even those who experience it realize that they cannot hold onto it for very long. Life has, as psychologist Abraham Maslow put it, "peak moments." Even these lessen as a more routine kind of feeling sets in.

Happiness cannot be acquired once and for all in this life. For this reason, wise men have always spoken of the "pursuit of happiness." The person who knows that happiness comes and goes is not frustrated. A deeper wisdom tells him that happiness is not gone forever. Happiness returns as a person recommits himself to life.

That evasive thing called "self-knowledge" can assist in understanding happiness. People who know themselves do not set goals that are either beyond or beneath them. One of the greatest sources of genuine happiness is in reaching a goal which was demanding and challenging.

Happiness flourishes on the shifting edges of life — whether there are men and women who are open to growth and ready for its challenges. Happiness comes, not by looking for it directly, but through a willingness to face life and live fully.

If today's hand had been played in a duplicate game some East players would have made four hearts, some would have gone down one at five, others would have defended unsuccessfully against four spades and a few might have beaten five-spade contracts.

A Canadian reader sent us this hand with a complaint about his partner's defense. He said the game was rubber bridge and did not ask us to comment on the bidding so we are dodging that very interesting subject and sticking to the play.

Our reader explains that he played his lowest heart, the six, on his partner's king at trick one and that his partner ignored his request to shift, whereupon South ruffed the second heart, knocked out the ace of trumps, eventually got rid of his six of clubs on North's fourth diamond and made his doubled contract.

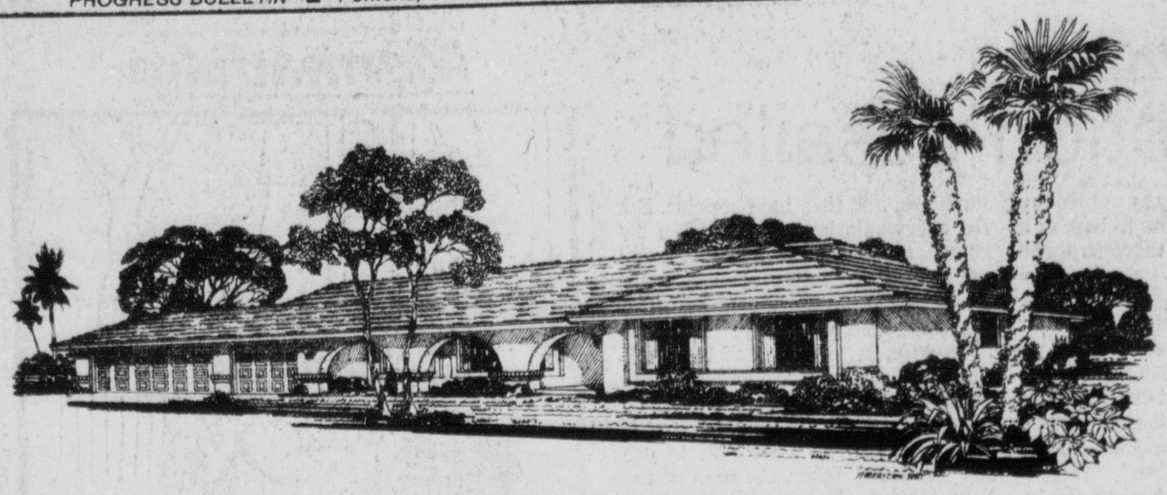

We agree with East that his partner should have shifted to a club, but we still have to blame East for what happened. Why let your partner do what you can do?

East should have put the ace of hearts on his partner's king and led the club back himself.

Ask the Jacobys

In his letter our Canadian reader did ask us if we approved of the double of five spades.

The answer is that we do as a rubber bridge bid. In match-point duplicate he should probably have passed and been satisfied to beat five spades one trick if he actually could do that.

LEWIS HOMES — CLAREMONT

With spectacular mountain view

Claremont development 'opened'

Lewis Homes Claremont, elaborately styled single-family homes with spectacular mountain views, was formally opened for sales this past week, it was announced by the building company's president Richard A. Lewis.

The development, which will eventually comprise 91 residences, centers just north of Base Line Rd. at 2147 Grand Ave., between Mills and Padua Aves., in Claremont.

Under construction are homes measuring from 2,130 to 2,305 square feet of actual living area, with three-car garages adding to their exterior dimensions. "And to give them a fashionable estate flair, we've set each home on a lot site of 13,000 square feet or more," Lewis said.

Pre-completion purchase price, including refrigerated air-conditioning, is scaled from $75,500 to $82,500. VA and conventional terms are in effect. Occupancy is scheduled for June.

Lewis Homes-Claremont will feature one- and two-story stylings as well as split-levels. Five plans will be offered, designed in 13 different exterior motifs. Floor plan arrangements will include three or four bedrooms and two or three baths.

Shake roofs, tiled entries, mirrored wardrobe doors in master bedroom, and wood-burning fireplaces are features called for in the design drawings. Family rooms and ceramic tile eating counters are other appointments noted.

Lewis cited the "cultural environment" of the development, pointing out that it is just 1¼ miles from the Claremont Colleges.

Lewis Homes-Claremont may be reached from the San Bernardino Freeway by exiting at Indian Hill Blvd. in Claremont. From there the route continues approximately three miles north to Base Line Rd. and 1¼ miles east (just beyond Mills Ave.) to Grand Ave.

Walker & Lee is in charge of sales, with the sales office at the site open from 10 a.m. to dusk daily. Information is also available by calling (714) 626-7589.

For housing industry in 1977

'Spectacular' growth predicted

Real estate

1977 will be another year of spectacular housing growth in California.

Its growth is accounting for a full quarter of the national recovery from the housing depression of 1975.

It's forcing an upward revision of the U.S. housing forecast for 1977.

Elsewhere, the bitter winter has opened a gap between demand and product of single-family homes. Traffic and sales continued strong despite it in all the good markets, but production was set back even as far south as Atlanta and Houston.

Builders and real estate brokers throughout the Sunbelt expect a long-term benefit from this winter. They see the makings of another housing boom in fugitives from the freeze and the deep snow.

Funds available for mortgages this year should be close to an all-time high.

And upgrading is accounting for a third of the current inflation in housing costs.

These are some of the findings of Advance Mortgage Coro Corporation's current quarterly survey, "U.S. Housing Markets," which compares housing trends in 17 major cities and the major regions. Advance mortgage is a subsidiary of Citicorp., New York.

Last year's California housing trend, "U.S. Housing Markets" notes, was striking not only in its improvement over the year before but in the way it gained momentum. The annual rate of fourth-quarter permits was a third higher than the full-year rate and the December rate was higher still. It expects the year-end rate to be sustained through 1977.

(A total of 220,000 permits were issued in California in 1976, a 68 per cent increase. In comparison, the U.S. growth rate last year was 32 per cent. Just over 142,000 of the state total were single-family. For 1977, "U.S. Housing Markets" projects some 310,000 total permits and some 200,000 single-family.

(Because of the strong California trend and the exceptional December and January activity wherever else weather permitted, "U.S. Housing Markets" has revised upward its projections for 1977 to 1.9 million total starts, including 1.4 million single-family. It should be the third best year for single-family units but easily the best year ever for square footage.

(The 1976 U.S. figures were: Total starts: 1,550,000. Single-family: 1,167,000. Multifamily: 383,000.)

"Housing production was lost this winter and inventories worked down, and not just in the snowbound North," Advance Mortgage president Robert J. Mylod observes.

"Virtually no concrete could be poured in December and January in Washington and Atlanta. Dallas production was set back a week. Houston was hurt by more than two months of constant rains.

"From the mountain states west, the winter was milder than normal. Denver and Phoenix builders reported excellent December and exceptional January business. That might be an augury of what demand will be across the country when good weather resumes.

"Throughout the Sunbelt, there is speculation that this winter is the start of a turn in their markets. They expect people running from a new Ice Age to swell their population growth and housing demand."

MONEY POOL

Even though a record volume of mortgages was closed in 1976, thrift institutions have a larger pool of lendable cash than ever before, Mylod says.

"This should be another record year for savings flows, the third in a row.

Already in January, some institutions had taken in 30 per cent of their savings budget for the entire year.

"Thrift institutions in many areas find it difficult to put all their funds to work. In the South, they're reported 'choking with money.' Now commercial banks are making a significant re-entry to the home mortgage market.

"The decline in conventional mortgage rates has been modest so far — to an average 8¾ per cent in the fall. We expect the average will be closer to 8½ per cent in the next few months and the usual spring upturn in rate should be smaller than normal."

DEMAND

One byproduct of the backed-up demand in markets like Southern California, Houston and Chicago, Mylod notes, has been a rise in speculative buying.

"Some of the people putting their names in lotteries or lined up at new tract openings don't intend to live there. When the homes are ready for moving in, they'll resell. Others, including some professional spectators, are buying homes to rent for one to three years and then resell at the appreciated price.

"Another effect has been a general upgrading. Buyers reach up into higher brackets to get more inflation hedge. Builders feel less urgency to serve the low end of the market. The Census Bureau price index reveals that the most recent new homes sold for 15 per cent more than the year before. (This spread must be even wider in California and in the luxury price ranges.) But the index also shows that the price of a comparable home has advanced only 10 per cent. The rest of the inflation is upgrading."

PRODUCTION

"U.S. Housing Markets" expects the lost winter starts will be made up over the next three quarters. One of the striking aspects of the current single-family boom, the survey notes, is that there are few reports of shortages or bottlenecks.

"This year, apartment construction and non-residential construction are still well below normal and there is a substantial pool of unemployed construction talent, especially in the East."

Alta Loma development

Joint venture 'set'

Ira C. Norris of INCO Homes, Inc., and Harry Crowell, president of Crowell, Leventhal, Inc., have announced the formation of a joint venture to develop a new single family home community in Alta Loma.

The 157 home community to be called Indian Oaks is located north of the intersection of Archibald Avenue and the San Bernardino Freeway in 19th Street and Ramona Avenue. Construction is expected to begin immediately on the first unit of 41 homes. Financing is being provided by Ontario Savings and Loan Association. Opening sales prices will range from $45,000 to $55,000.

Under terms of the joint venture, INCO Homes is responsible for land acquisition, obtaining approvals, product planning, marketing and sales. Crowell, Leventhal is responsible for site preparation, construction, purchasing, quality control and home delivery.

An established housing producer in Los Angeles, Ventura and San Bernardino Counties for the past 18 years, C/L Inc., delivered approximately 400 homes, 100 apartments, and a major commercial development in 1976. The company is headquartered in Upland and has built thousands of homes in the area. The company reports that nearly 40 per cent of its new home sales come from referrals from previous buyers, one of the highest rates in the industry. C/L Inc., which has enjoyed an increase in sales volume and profits every year in business, also produces apartments, shopping centers, and other real estate development projects.

INCO Homes is a regional homebuilder in Southern California producing single family detached and attached homes in the moderate price ranges. It is headed by founder Ira C. Norris, a well known housing executive who has been responsible for the development of approximately 4,600 homes in California, Illinois and New Jersey during his 20-year business career.

Chaffey classes listed

A spring-quarter real estate course, Urban Planning and the Development Process, is slated for 6 to 10 p.m. Tuesdays, starting April 5, at the Chaffey College Ontario-Montclair Center (OMC).

The four-unit course deals with the ways to cope with city hall on matters of planning, zoning, protecting and enhancing the value of property. OMC is at 4650 Howard Street, Ontario.

Covered in the course is government control and its impact on private property in the context of the current real estate boom. The instructor is Steve Ross, city planner for the Orange County Environmental Management Agency.

Registration for off-campus classes will be at OMC and Corona High School (Star Room) from 4 to 8 p.m., March 25-28-29-30-31.

UCLA expansion set

Tentative approval has been given by the UCLA Extension Office to expand its Real Estate Department to the East San Gabriel Valley / Whittier / Pomona-Ontario area.

An advisory committee is being formed by the father-daughter team of Earl M. and Melody Marshall, who were instrumental in getting the school to make their move to the East side.

Earl is the past president of both the San Gabriel Valley Board of Realtors and the Hacienda Heights Walnut Valley Board of Realtors, the latter of which he had a major part in founding. He is also a Real Estate Certificate Institute (RECI) member, a Certified Commercial Industrial Member (CCIM) candidate and has a GRI designation.

Melody holds a degree from Pepperdine University, Malibu, and at 23, manages the successful residential resale division of her father's office. Earl oversees the investment division of the firm, participates in real estate exchanging and acts as a real estate counselor. Their firm is Century 21 Earl M. Marshall Realty in Hacienda Heights.

Steve Garrison, of Garrison Investment and Development Company in the City of Industry. He has BS and MS degrees from Cal Tech in Pasadena.

Garrett Craig, who has a degree from Cal Poly Pomona, a teaching credential, and is working on an MBA at Cal State University at Los Angeles.

The proposed schedule of courses includes a 12 week "Commercial and Investment Real Estate" course, a one day consumer course, "Homebuyer's Clinic" geared specifically to the non-professional courses, still to be determined.

There is a need for interested real estate professionals and public to help complete the formation of the committee, and to serve as instructors for the courses. Anyone interested should call Earl or Melody Marshall at (213) 330-4531.

Trends up in building

Robert Arquilla, president of the National Association of Home Builders, said today the housing statistics for February were "bright rays of sunshine breaking through a dull winter."

Housing starts last month rebounded to an annual rate of 1,791,000 units with the single family rate moving up to 1,422,000 units, second highest monthly rate on record.

"The starts rate, combined with the jump in the building permit rate, and the reports of high rates of sales in single family homes is very encouraging," the Chicago home builder said.

Arquilla noted that multifamily starts were still poor, putting a drag on the overall housing market. But he pointed out that multifamily permits — indicators of future activity — rose from an annual rate of 281,000 units in January to 341,000 units in February.

Prices jump for resale of homes

Those who believe the price of a home for resale is increasing out of proportion to other commodities may be surprised to discover that the price for a pound of their favorite coffee is increasing at 11 times the rate of housing.

While the median price of an existing home in January rose 1.1 per cent over December, housewives, during that same period, paid 12 per cent more for coffee. And, resale home prices are not expected to rise significantly in the months ahead, but the outlook for coffee prices is bleak.

The January median resale home price hit $52,889 — $592 above the December price of $52,297. Meanwhile, the average cost for a pound of coffee, according to a leading West Coast supermarket chain, went from $2.08 in December to $2.33 in January. As if that increase was not sharp enough, it hit $2.54 in February (9 per cent higher than January) and $2.84 in March (11.8 per cent higher than February). That's a jump of 36.5 per cent from December to the present.

Existing home sales statistics are compiled by the Research Department of the 100,000-member California Association of Realtors, which conducts the monthly survey in order to check current housing trends. The survey is based on data taken from a cross-section of 30 Boards of Realtors from throughout California, representing 38.8 per cent of CAR's membership.

Existing home sales in the $40,000-$49,999 price range led all other price classes, with 20.5 per cent of those who bought homes in January making purchases in this range. Next was the $50,000-$59,999 price class, with 16.8 per cent, followed closely by the $30,000-$39,999 range, with 15.2 per cent. Existing home sales in January from the 30 reporting Boards totaled 7,750 up 1,164 from December.

The survey reveals that one and two bedroom homes constituted 21.5 per cent of January's resale home market; three bedrooms, 54.4 per cent; and four bedrooms or more, 24.1 per cent.

Foundation donation set

Members of the Optimist and Opti-Mrs. clubs of Walnut have donated $1,000 to the Alisa Ann Ruch Burn Foundation, a part of the Sherman Oaks Community Hospital Burn Center, in the name of Los Angeles County Fire Station 61.

Station 61, situated in City of Walnut, now is listed on the donor' wall of the foundation.

The burn center is only one of 20 in the nation that offers complete treatment for burns 24 hours a day.

Goals of the foundation are to instill in the public an awareness of the primary causes of burns, and how to prevent them.

The goals are also to help the medical and health-care professions gain more knowledge in the treatment of burn victims, fund research into more effective treatment for burn victims and assist in the rehabilitation of burned patients whose treatment has progressed beyond the acute or emergency stages.

The foundation was founded in 1971 in memory of an 8-year-old girl who died after suffering third-degree burns in a backyard barbeque accident.

which the limbs are contracted and move without control.

While braces do help with spastic paralysis, the doctor says, they result in jerky, slow movements.

Unfortunately, said the physician, strokes often occur to people having other health problems and this tends to affect their prognosis.

If the stroke victim survives for a week or two, then there is a fairly good prognosis. But the extent of his rehabilitation will depend upon many factors including attitudes, life styles and brain damage.

Most important for the recovery of a stroke patient, Dr. Johnson says, is the support received from the family and the community.

"Many stroke patients remain non-functioning, not because they didn't have the potential, but because they lacked the facilities or opportunity for retraining," says Dr. Johnson.

Many hospitals, such as Casa Colina, have programs to help the patient learn some basic skills before he is discharged. The ability to cope with certain functions may make the difference between being discharged home or to a continuing care facility.

"Individual motivation is important, but support is vital," Dr. Johnson adds. "We must involve the family and help them get rid of fears and uncertainty."

"The community is just beginning to see the need to become involved in the rehabilitation of these people," Dr. Johnson said.

"But more help is needed in the way of volunteers, facilities, transportation and moral support."

The OASR has three community centers, in Pomona, Glendora and Ontario, to provide social programs but more such centers are needed, according to the physician.

Fashion show scheduled

An afternoon of nostalgia is in store for guests of Soroptimist International of Pomona when the group presents a fashion show and luncheon in the GOSH Pavilion at Griswold's Thursday.

"Down Memory Lane" is the theme for the second philanthropic activity planned this year by the Pomona club at noon. On the way to the indoor setting of the luncheon where a hospitality period will begin at 11:30 a.m., guests will stroll past many collector's automobiles and memorabilia provided by Hudson Motor Car Co. of Fontana from the W.D. Albright collection. Near the tree-lined lagoon an authentically restored 1904 four-cylinder Hudson will vie in interest for its age and nostalgia factor with its garage mate, a 1919 Essex.

At 12:15 p.m. luncheon will be served in a floral pastel garden setting while gentle music of yesterday will be provided by a strolling quartet.

In a swirl of rustling petticoats and saucy bustles the old fashions, interspersed with outstanding new ones, will be described by Rose Marie as the show begins at 1:15 p.m.

Rose Marie Bailey has for a long time been collecting authentic old fashions which date back 200 years. Being shown are elegant textiles intricately detailed with embroidery, beading and lace. Accessories include capes and shoes, handbags and parasols as well as outstanding millinery. Many are authentic while some are expert and artful reproductions. As professional models twirl and posture, tenor Harold Bailey accompanied by Charlene Jamison will provide background music of the period being spotlighted.

Benefiting from this gala fund-raising event are Pomona Valley's Gateway House, Inc., and Get About Transportation Service.

Gateway House was created for the young teenage mother and her child. There is cooperative living provided for seven such young women receiving welfare which enables each to meet her monthly living expenses while completing her education or vocational training.

Get About Transportation Service assists at least 25,000 physically or financially handicapped senior citizens by providing van service to essential appointments.

Soroptimist International of Pomona has designated as its major projects for this year the donation of $2,500 to Gateway House in Pomona and $1,000 to Get About Service.

Tickets may be purchased from Soroptimist members. Reservations may be made by calling 624-1675 between 9 a.m. and 5:30 p.m., or evenings by calling 623-2544.

Mrs. Mary Wenker is chairman for the event and assisting her are Mmes. Miriam Cunningham, Gerry Thompson, Mable Rowland, Wilma Temple, Maryalice Jones, Matilda Siddell, Bette Lutes, Rita Garcia, Rita Butherus, Betty Sanford, Lucille Bucher, Toni Wood, M.D., Miss Evy Melgaard and Miss Pat Bolin.

Charlotte shocks No. 1

By Associated Press

North Carolina-Charlotte carved its niche among major college basketball's elite Saturday by stunning top-ranked Michigan 75-68 in the Mideast Regional final of the NCAA basketball championships.

"This is just an unbelieveable experience," said Lee Rose, coach of the Cinderella 49ers, after the biggest victory in the 12-year history of the school's basketball program sent Charlotte into next weekend's final four shootout at Atlanta. There they will join two of the sport's more familiar names, North Carolina and Marquette, and another upstart, Nevada-Las Vegas.

North Carolina earned its berth in the finals by racing to a big first-half lead and then holding off Kentucky 79-72 in the East Regional at College Park, Md.

Marquette kept Al McGuire in the coaching business for one more week by rallying in the second half to beat Wake Forest 82-68 in the Midwest Regional.

Nevada-Las Vegas, the top scoring team in the country at an average of 108 points a game, pulled away from surprising Idaho State in the second half and posted a 107-90 triumph in the West Regional final at Provo, Utah.

The national semifinals, to be played next Saturday at the Omni in Atlanta, pit 17th-rated UNC-Charlotte, 28-3, against No. 7 Marquette, 23-7, and No. 5 North Carolina, 27-4, against No. 4 Nevada-Las Vegas, 28-2.

The shocking upset of Michigan was the latest chapter in Charlotte's meteoric rise in the sport. The school of 8,000 students, a branch of the University of North Carolina, first came to attention last year when the 49ers lost to Kentucky in the final of the National Invitation Tournament

The big man for Charlotte was center Cedric "Cornbread" Maxwell, a smooth 6-foot-8 senior who scored 25 points, dominated the boards with 13 rebounds and showed poise in bringing the ball upcourt against Michigan's aggressive pressing defense.

Maxwell, who got his nickname because he resembles the star of the movie "Cornbread, Earl and Me," pro player Jamaal Wilkes, said he learned to handle the ball in the streets of his hometown, Kingston, N.C.

Michigan, beaten in the NCAA finals by Indiana last season, finished with a 26-4 record. All-American guard Rickey Green topped the Wolverines with 20 points.

Marquette Coach McGuire, who has announced his retirement for the end of this season, will work another week thanks to a second-half comeback that erased a 35-31 halftime deficit.

Reserve center Bernard Toone came off the bench for Marquette when Jerome Whitehead picked up his fourth foul with 16 minutes left and scored six straight points to put the Warriiors up by five. They never trailed again.

Bo Ellis led Marquette with 20 points, Butch Lee had 19 and Toone finished with 15. Jerry Schellenberg topped Wake Forest with 19 points.

North Carolina opened a 15point lead in the first half and was ahead 53-41 at halftime before Kentucky pulled within six with 15 minutes to go. The Tar Heels then went to their fourcorner offense and held on, thanks to some stunning free throw shooting, hitting 33 of 36 — including their last 21 in a row and 16 straight in the second half.

Senior John Kuester ran North Carolina's offense in the absence of injured, foul-plagued All-American Phil Ford and scored eight of his 19 points in the closing 5½ minutes.

Nevada-Las Vegas, another school which has climbed to national prominence only recently and has never made the final four, trailed 52-51 at the half to unranked Idaho State, which had eliminated UCLA in its previous outing.

But the Rebels pushed their running game into high gear in the second half and wore down the Bengals.

Forward Eddie Owens, who scored 13 of his 24 points in the second half, had a steal and a stuff shot, then forced another turnover and hit a jumper to move Nevada-Las Vegas to a 65-57 lead with 14:25 left. The Rebels were off and running. Eight minutes later, they were ahead by 21 and only a fourcorner control offense in the final minutes kept the score down.

Fydrich can't control temper

By The Associated Press

Mark Fidrych was for the birds.

"The Bird," Detroit's colorful pitching ace was raked for 12 runs in the second inning Saturday as the Chicago White Sox outlasted the Tigers 18-15 in a wild and woolly exhibition baseball game. While the White Sox were blasting Fidrych, Fidrych was blasting the umpires—verbally.

"I don't think I've ever had an inning like that," he said. "I just blew up. I shouldn't have done that. I pulled a temper tantrum. You shouldn't do that. I should have blocked it out of my mind and kept at 'em.

"It was bush. You pull that stuff off the field, not on it. People pay for a ballgame, not to see a guy throw a tantrum. I felt like I was in high school the way I was getting on the umpire (plate umpire Ted Hendry). He's only human. I told him to go suck a big pill. I'm surprised he didn't kick me out of the game."

Manager Ralph Houk yanked Fidrych after the disastrous inning in which he threw 56 pitches—"That's half a game!" Fidrych said in amazement— and allowed eight hits, including Royle Stillman's grand slam, and hit three batters. A pair of errors by first baseman Mickey Stanley made 10 of the runs unearned, though.

"I should have taken my medicine," Fidrych said. "But you know how you have to get something out of your system. I just had to blow. Everything started building up and that's when I cracked. I should have kept my composure. That's the difference between the majors and the minors. Mickey Stanley didn't go nuts when he made his mistakes, but I did. You'll never see me do that again."

Fidrych wasn't the only Tiger hurler who had a bad day. Relief ace John Hiller, who relieved him, was creamed for third-inning homers by Richie Zisk and Jim Spencer, offsetting Detroit home runs by Ron LeFlore, Rusty Staub, Stanley, Phil Mankowski and Tim Corcoran.

Rookie Clint Hurdle homered as the Kansas City Royals edged the Cincinnati Reds 10-9 while Joel Youngblood and Dave Revering connected for the losers.

Sam Ewing homered as the fledgling Toronto Blue Jays, Canada's spring training champs, made it 2-for-2 over Montreal despite a home run by Tony Perez of the Expos.

Torrid rookie Randy Elliott had two singles and a triple— his spring average is a mere .722—and scored the winning run on Johnnie Lemaster's single in the San Francisco Giants' 6-5 triumph over the Milwaukee Brewers.

'Names' catch McCullough

JACKSONVILLE, Fla. (AP) — Surprise leader Mike McCullough backed off with a no-birdie, four-over-par 76 Saturday but was completely undaunted by the horde of the game's greatest players who suddenly surrounded him in the third round of the $300,000 Tournament Players Golf Championship.

"Another player in the field said, 'Mike McCullough is either coming unglued or he's having his bad round,'" observed McCullough, who hasn't even come close to winning in five previous years of tour activity.

He now finds himself in a tie with Tom Watson and is strongly challenged by such glamor names as defending champion Jack Nicklaus, Masters champ Ray Floyd, always-dangerous Hale Irwin—the man McCullough was quoting—and J.C. Snead.

"Well," said McCullough, "I'll have to wait until tomorrow to see which it is, coming unglued or having my bad round.

"They say I'm like a rabbit in a pack of wolves. I think that's an appropriate comment.

"I do have one thing in my favor. I'm the only man in the field who has shot a 66 (in Thursday's opening round), and I can still remember that.

"I have a lot of good players around me, but all I can do is play my best."

"I think anybody around the lead can shoot 73 and win," said Watson, who gained a share of the top spot with a wildly-erratic, two-over-par 74 that included bogeys on two of his last three holes and an earlier double-bogey seven he called "a disaster."

"I don't feel like I'm playing well enough to be in contention, but then I guess no one else is, either. I'll just have to make some putts," said Nicklaus.

"McCullough could have played himself out," said Irwin. "You just can't play four good rounds on this golf course. It could be he's just having his bad round today, or it could signal his demise."

The winds were much lighter than the howling gales which turned Friday's second round into a joke. But they were still strong enough to test and torment the game's premier performers and, to a large extent, were responsible for the suddenly, tightly-knit group in contention for the title in the event that ranks as the annual championship of the touring players.

Watson, already a two-time winner this year, and McCullough, who hasn't even challenged seriously in five years of tour activity, were tied for the top at 216, even par on the 7,174 yards of reclaimed swamp and marsh that make up double-tough Sawgrass.

Mark Hayes was only one shot back at 217 after a third round 71. Floyd, with a scrambly 74, and the dangerous Irwin were next at 218, two over par. Irwin, who has a happy habit of playing the tougher courses very, very well, had the best round of the hot, sunny, breezy day, a three-under-par 69.

Nicklaus followed at 219 after a par 72 that produced a series of scowls and unhappy shakes of the head from the man who has won two of the three previous TPC events.

"It was the kind of round where I couldn't sustain anything," Nicklaus said. "I'd make a putt and miss a putt."

He and Irwin both fell victim to a 24-hour virus, Nicklaus on Thursday and Irwin on Friday. Both came very close to withdrawing.

Presidents supports Olympic commission

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Carter has given his support to work done by a special commission on Olympic Sports to upgrade America's amateur athletic system.

In a letter to Michael T. Harrigan, the commission's executive director, Carter thanked the panel "for its work on focusing national attention on the importance of amateur sports and physical fitness in the lives of our people.

"I support the view that efforts should be made to resolve organizational and other problems relating to amateur sports programs," said Carter. "It is my hope that because of the commission's efforts, more people will become actively involved in sports and physical fitness programs."

The letter, which arrived at the commission on Tuesday, the day it went out of business, comes at a time when the recommendations of the 22-member President's Commission on Olympic Sports have received criticism from two of the major organizations involved in amateur athletics—the Amateur Athletic Union and the U.S. Olympic Committee.

The two-volume, 613-page report of the commission recommended, among other things, the restructuring of the Olympic movement in the United States and the creation of a strong, nongovernmental central sports organization. The report was made public Jan. 13.

Dodgers win in 12 innings

SANTIAGO, D.R. (AP) — The Los Angeles Dodgers scored three runs in the 12th inning on three hits and two errors to defeat the New York Mets 5-3 in an exhibition baseball game Saturday night.

The winning rally came against rookie Dwight Bernard, the fifth New York pitcher. Jerry Koosman allowed one run over the first five innings while Doug Rau of the Dodgers blanked the Mets in his four-inning stint.

Rick Monday of the Dodgers and Leo Foster of the Mets each had three hits.

The Mets scored their first two runs off rookie Lance Rautzhan after the Dodgers nicked Koosman for a 1-0 lead in the second inning. Los Angeles tied it in the seventh with a run off rookie Jackson Todd.

Charlie Hough, the Dodgers' ace reliever, picked up the victory although he yielded a run in the bottom of the 12th.

Angels even record

PALM SPRINGS, Calif. (AP) — The California Angels scored an unearned run in the sixth inning Saturday to beat Oakland 2-1 and square their exhibition season record at 6-6.

Wayne Gross, a Cal Poly Pomona product, hit a ninth inning home run off Luis Quintana to prevent the A's from being shut out.

The Angels reduced their roster to 38 following the game by sending shortstop Rance Mulliniks and first baseman Willie Mays Aikens to Holtville, Calif., for reassignment to a minor league club.

Gary Ross, the Angel starter, shut out the A's over the first five innings in his fourth impressive start of the spring. The right-hander has allowed only one run in 13 innings.

California scored in the first inning when Danny Briggs tripled and scored on a sacrifice fly by Dave Chalk.

In the sixth, Chalk scored the winning runafter reaching base on a bunt single. He moved up on an error and scored on a single by Bob Jones.

Shortstop Bobby Grich is expected to make his first appearance of the spring for the Angels in today's game.

The Angels announced that outfielder Bobby Bonds who injured his left leg Friday at Tempe, Ariz., would be out six or seven days. Outfielder Rusty Torres will be sent to Orange, Calif., Monday to have a circulatory problem in his right hand checked.

Pitcher Paul Hartzell was given medical approval to begin throwing lightly for a week.

Birdsong key to NIT

NEW YORK (AP) — Houston's Cougars are slight favorites to beat St. Bonaventure Sunday for the championship of the new-look National Invitation Tournament—the nation's oldest post-season collegiate basketball classic.

Houston's hopes, say both Cougar Coach Guy Lewis and St. Bonaventure mentor Jim Satalin, could rise or fall on the play of Houston's Otis Birdsong, the tournament's leading scorer with 78 points in three games.

Despite Birdsong's point production, Lewis laments that the 6-foot-4 guard is not playing up to par. Birdsong's 26-point per-game average for the tourney is four shy of his season average.

"If Birdsong is having a bad tournament and he has a good game against us, then we are in for bad, bad trouble," said Satalin. "He is one super player."

The Bonnies appear to be peaking as they move into the NIT final against Houston. Satalin's squad, 23-6, has won 17 of its last 20 games.

"We've played exceoptionally well in getting here," Satalin said in assessing St. Bonaventure's route to the NIT championship showdown. "We played our last six games on the road and won five of them. We're playing the best we have all season."

Even if St. Bonnie finds a way to contain Birdsong, Satalin's quintet will find that Houston, 29-7, isn't strictly a one-man outfit.

Lewis points to the play of Mike Schultz (47 points and a tourney-high 46 rebounds) and Cecil Rose (43 points) as factors in the three earlier Houston victories in the NIT.

"They've come through for us and picked up any slack left by Otis," said Lewis, one of the nation's veteran college basketball coaches. He is looking for career coaching victory No. 401 in Sunday's final.

"It wasn't easy getting here," said Lewis. "We started with a one-point win, had another one-point win and then had to struggle against Alabama (by six points) in a real exciting semi."

Alabama, the pre-tourney favorite upset by Houston in the semifinals Thursday night, meets Villanova, beaten by St. Bonaventure the same evening, in Sunday's consolation final, with game time at Madison Square Garden at 11 a.m., EST. The championship match follows, starting at about 1 p.m.

Lewis cites St. Bonaventure players Glenn Hagen, Greg Sanders and Essie Hollins as some of the reasons the NIT final "will be a very hard game."

Sanders is the Bonnies' top scorer in the tourney with 64 points while Hagen and Hollins each have contributed 60 points.

'New' Bugner takes on Lyle

LAS VEGAS (AP)—The boasting and chiding is over, it will be two big men in the ring this afternoon before a national television audience, going for the money and a possible future shot at the heavyweight title.

It will be the "new" Joe Bugner, the fourth-ranked heavyweight in the world, going against muscular power-puncher Ron Lyle of Denver, ranked seventh.

Bugner, 52-7-1, the British and European champ, has had only one fight since he "retired" from the ring after turning in a disappointing performance against champion Muhammad Ali in Malaysia nearly two years ago.

Lyle, 34-4-1, has lost three of his last six fights, but the losses were to Ali, former champ George Foreman and to third-ranked contender Jimmy Young.

Bugner weighed in Saturday at 229¾ pounds for the scheduled 12-round main event on the five-fight card at Caesars Palace. Lyle tipped the scales at 218 pounds.

Bugner is unofficially rated a 2-1 favorite by local bookmakers—but betting on athletic events held within the state of Nevada is illegal.

Bugner is unofficially rated a slight favorite in the match. In this state were gaming is legal, it is illegal to gamble on sporting events within the state or on teams from the state.

Bugner has trained hard for the past week, while Lyle ended his sparring sessions Wednesday, saying he had done his heavy work back home in Denver.

Bugner has declared himself the real "White Hope," and has said he is a new man.

The metamorphosis is a mental one, rather than physical.

Bugner, just 27, said he has grown up, matured, and has changed his style.

Bugner said he will be more agressive than he has been in the past, but don't look for him to walk right out an begin flailing with Lyle.

Bugner and his manager-trainer Andy Smith are too smart for that.

Smith said Bugner will let Lyle fight his normal battering ram style for the first few rounds, look for the opening, then put Lyle away.

Lyle doesn't put much stock in Bugner's new image, and believes he has the power to put the Hungarian refugee down for the count, and the stamina to go the distance if need be.

Lyle's trainer, Sammy Boardman, says Lyle is in the best shape of his career, and that his power is as awesome as ever.

Boardman said he actually fears that Lyle may hurt Bugner, but Smith said he would start to worry if Boardman wasn't making such comments.

Lyle has knocked out 23 opponents, and decked Foreman twice before being knocked out himself in what Ring Magazine dugged the "Fight of the Year" in January 1976. Bugner has knocked out 33 opponents, and Smith said he has learned a lot from his 27 rounds with Ali.

Both camps have predicted that the fight will not go the distance, which should give the television (NBC) viewers a chance to see some of the preliminaries, which will be fought after the main and semi-main because of the television schedule.

Biola will open women's tourney

By BILL LANGLEY
PB Sports Editor

Host Cal Poly isn't the only California team participating in the national small college women's basketball championships this week.

Biola College is also represented in the 16-team field with the Eagles meeting tough West Georgia in the opening game at 5 p.m. Tuesday.

Betty Norman, who has been coaching at Biola for 10 seasons, is excited about her team's chances in the national tournament.

"We're a much stronger team this season than we were last year when we won one game at the national tournament in Ashland, Ohio," she said. "I feel we are very competitive and have a good chance of upsetting West Georgia in the first game."

West Georgia comes to California as the Region 3 champions after nipping defending national champion Berry (Ga.), 91-89, in three overtimes last week.

"We might as well play the strong teams first," Norman said.

Biola brings a 20-5 record into the national tournament sponsored by the Association of Intercollegiate Athletics for Women (AIAW) and is entered in the brackets as the hostess school.

Hostess Cal Poly beat Biola, 67-57, at Cal State Fullerton last week for the Region 8 title so Biola fills the Broncos' automatic spot as the home school.

"I hope both Cal Poly and us go as far as possible in this tournament," Norman said. "It's important for our Region so we can get seeded in next year's tournament. It's our responsibility to do well."

Biola has a good idea of what to expect in the tourney. The Eagles took a road trip to Oklahoma, suffering an 100-60 loss to powerful Phillips.

"We made the trip to get stronger and it has helped us," she said.

Norman is also very happy to have the national finals so close to home.

"I think it's great Southern California fans can see teams from different areas of the nation," she said. "You will find the teams from the East run more of a fast break, run-and-gun offense."

She also predicts a very competitive tournament.

"When you get to a national finals, anybody can upset anybody," she said. "Idaho State's win over UCLA is a good indication of that."

Biola has only one senior in center Heidi Wayment, who is averaging 18 points a game.

"We're young but improving," Norman commented. "I feel our last loss to Cal Poly will give us more enthusiasm for the finals."

Mulcahy predicts

Two weeks ago, Pomona-Pitzer track coach Pat Mulcahy predicted that, according to his calculations, his team would edge Westmont, 73-72, in the two schools' dual meet encounter.

Well, the Sagehens met Westmont Saturday and, when the results of the final event were in, Pomona-Pitzer had scored a — you guessed it — 73-72 victory.

John Armstrong came up with strong performances in the 880, mile, and three-mile runs.

The runner won the 880 with a 1:54.4 clocking, took the top spot in the mile at 4:15.8 and placed second in the three-mile in 14:38.9, about 13 seconds behind teammate Terre Harnett.

Jeff Signer (long jump), Chris Hammond (high jump), Kent Namikis (triple jump), and Bob Menicucci (shot put) provided the Sagehens' impetus in the field events by capturing first place in their respective events.

Particularly impressive was Namikis' mark of 45-1 in the triple jump.

In the women's meet, Jenny Stary (formerly of Claremont High) won three events: the 880 (2:31.7), javelin with a throw of 141-7 (qualifying her for the nationals), and the high jump (4-10).

And in a meet held Friday, Point Loma was a 95-49-29 victor over Claremont-Mudd and Chapman, respectively, in its tri-meet.

Sebring favorite upset

SEBRING, Fla. (AP) — "We won by attrition. Our game plan was to just run steady, and it worked," Brad Friselle said Saturday night after he and George Dyer drove to an upset victory in the 12 hour Sebring sports car race.

Friselle was following the turbocharged Porsche 934 of race favorite Peter Gregg around the track at the eight hour mark and saw the left front wheel come off Gregg's car to turn the race around. The Friselle-Dyer Porsche Carrera was 25 miles behind the Gregg-Jim Busby car at the time.

"That's all we needed," said Frisselle. "It was about 100 yards in front of me. I was afraid for Gregg at first, but he got the car under control okay.

"I knew they lost the wheel because there were so many sparks. The whole front suspension was on the ground," he said. "I knew they were in trouble, but I didn't know it would stick."

Friselle's car, a fender torn up from a minor collision early in the race, had the lead before Gregg could get back on the course and then moved away from the field.

It finished the race five laps ahead of the runnerup Carrera of Diego Febles and Hiram Cruz, with Gregg and Busby finishing third. The average speed was 101.322 miles an hour for 234 laps.

Gregg and Jim Busby came in third after numerous pit stops late in the race.

An estimated 40,000 spectators surrounded the twisting, 5.2-mile circuit made up of abandoned airport runways and watched Porsches sweep the top 10 positions in the 25-yearold event.

It was similar to last year's 12-hour odyssey when nine of the top 11 finishers were Porsches.

Dyer, of Woodside Calif., and Frisselle, of El Segundo, Calif., were five miles back of the turbocharged Porsche 934 of Gregg and car owner Busby when Gregg lost a wheel as the race completed eight hours.

By the time Gregg limped the car back to the pits on three wheels and the crew spent 25 minutes replacing an oil cooler and induction system cooler, Dyer and Frisselle were a lap ahead.

The lead grew to four laps, 28 laps later, as Gregg had to make another pit stop to replace a broken oil cooler. The Carrera driven by Febles, of Puerto Rico, and Cruz, of Miami, moved into second temporarily at that point before Gregg rallied again.

Before losing the wheel, the race was a runaway for Gregg and Busby. A couple of minutes before the wheel nut fell off, Gregg completed eight hours with a margin of more than 40 miles over third place Febles and Cruz.

Claremont spikers place second, fourth

THERMAL — Claremont High's boys' and girls' track teams placed second and fourth, respectively, Saturday at the Coachella Valley Relays.

Wolfpack junior Derek Britton led the rest of the runners by 10 yards when he won the 100-yard dash in 10.0 seconds, a good time on Coachella's poor track.

Britton also anchored a winning effort in the mile relay (3:32.8) and the 'Pack also captured the long jump relay. Claremont was second in the pole vault relay and the 440 relay and third in several other events.

Redlands won the boys' meet with 94 points to Claremont's 77.

Martha Brownlee and Kristin Sorrensen each high jumped 5 feet, 2 inches to give the 'Pack girls second place in the high jump relay and they were also runnersup in the mile relay.

Cypress wins title

FRESNO (AP) — Cypress won its first large schools California Community College basketball championship Saturday beating Santa Barbara 78-75.

Skyline of San Bruno won the small schools title, upsetting Mt. San Jacinto 92-84 as Dave Davis and Ted Scott combined for 60 points.

Cypress, 28-1, from Orange County, took advantage of cold Santa Barbara shooting to move ahead 30-14 with six minutes left in the first half. But the Vaqueros, 31-4, cut that deficit in half by intermission, trailing 39-31.

Cypress, top-ranked going into the tournament, increased its lead to 14 early in the second half at 47-33. But Santa Barbara rallied in the final minutes and closed the gap to three as the buzzer sounded.

Flyers beat Kings, 5-3

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Rick MacLeish and Bobby Clarke sparked a third-period rally that saw the Philadelphia Flyers erase a 3-1 deficit and earn a hard-fought 5-3 victory over Los Angeles in National Hockey league action Saturday night.

Philadelphia winger Gary Dornhoefer started the rally with a deflection goal early in the third and Clarke tied it less than two minutes later. The teams battled on even terms for ten minutes until MacLeish got what proved to be the game winner as he skated through the crease and beat Kings' goalie Rogie Vachon cleanly.

Clarke added an insurance goal 2½ minutes later with a 20-foot backhander on a solo effort.

The Kings had breezed to a 3-1 lead through the first two periods as wingers Don Kozak, Mike Murphy and defenseman Bob Murdoch had beaten Flyer goalie Bernie Parent.

Sports briefs

NORMAN, Okla. (AP) — Iowa State, thanks to some last-second heroics by a Penn State wrestler, clinched its fifth national championship in nine years during consolation action of the 47th NCAA Wrestling Tournament Saturday afternoon.

The Cyclones had three wrestlers in the late-night finals and their nearest challenger — Oklahoma State — lost all chance of a team victory when Erick Waise dropped his 177-pound consolation match to Jerry White of Penn State. Waise was ahead 4-3 until a take-down by White reversed lead.

Meanwhile, Iowa State's Mike Land took third place in the 126-pound class to push the Cyclones team point total 90.5. That sewed up the Cyclones seventh national title.

TAMPA, Fla. (AP) — Veteran righthander Gary Nolan, whose contract was earlier renewed by the Cincinnati Reds with a 20 per cent cut, signed a one-year contract Saturday, the club announced.

Nolan, 28, earlier had refused to sign saying he was interested in the security of a multiple year contract.

INDIANAPOLIS (AP) — "I had to keep talking to myself to keep my foot off the brake," Gordon Johncock said Saturday after shattering the 200 mile-anhour barrier at Indianapolis Motor Speedway with an unofficial track record of 200.4 m.p.h.

Johncock, the 1973 Indianapolis 500 winner and the defending U.S. Auto Club national driving champion, ran several laps at better than 199 m.p.h. in his new Mustang-DGS, then he returned briefly to the pit area for a few adjustments and went back out for his history-making ride.

"I went flat out all the way, but I'm still kind of amazed," said the 40-year-old Johncock, who earlier this week was doubtful the long-sought barrier would be broken this year.

The official record—which may be set only during qualifications for the Indy 500 or during the race itself—is 199.071 m.p.h., set in qualifications in 1973 by two-time 500 winner Johnny Rutherford. Johncock held the previous unofficial mark of 199.6 m.p.h., also coming in tire tests.

Leopards keep rolling

By DON BRADLEY
PB Staff Writer

La Verne College mixed in some power with good pitching to sweep a doubleheader from visiting Redlands, 7-3 and 3-1, Saturday afternoon.

The pair of victories kept the Leopards' SCIAC record spotless at 8-0. They are 11-4 overall.

The light poles are ready to go up but won't be ready for Tuesday night's game with Lewis & Clark College of Oregon. That game will be played at Upland's Memorial Park at 7 p.m.

In other action, Pomona-Pitzer dropped a pair at Whittier, 2-0 and 7-1.

La Verne spotted Redlands a run in the first inning of each game but came right back to score itself when Leo hitters came to bat. In each case Leopard pitching tightened up the rest of the way.

Jim Vallone kept nine hits scattered in the opener and Steve Goggans allowed only four scattered singles in the nightcap. Goggans is now 3-0 and Vallone 2-1.

Rob Challinor homered for Redlands in the first inning of the opener. But the Leos came back with two in their half of the inning.

Bob Waldusky walked and Wayne Redfearn smashed his fifth home run.

The Leos iced it with a five-run second after two were out. Billy Hughes doubled and scored on Pat Proulx' single. Waldusky smashed a roundtripper and the shaken Bulldogs' pitcher, Joe Zamudio, issued passes to Redfearn and Steve Polan. Both scored on Dave Nash's double.

Two of the Bulldogs' four singles sandwiched around a walk accounted for Redlands' only run in the nightcap.

But Waldusky led off with another fourbagger when La Verne came to bat. Rick Oliver cracked a homer in the fourth and Waldusky hit his third of the day leading off the sixth.

Goggans, who struck out eight, had his arm tigthen up in the ninth and Doug Thomson finished up.

"We left a lot of men (10) stranded in the second game and I'm disappointed in that," said coach Ben Hines. But Waldusky (3-for-6 and four RBIs) did a hell of a job for us."

La Verne travels to Redlands Tuesday afternoon and plays Lewis & Clark that night.

At Whittier, Pomona-Pitzer avoided a no-hit game when Doug Holton blooped a hit over the infield in the third inning. Loser Ken Creager allowed but five hits.

The Poets overpowered the Sagehens in the nightcap. Frank Bencomo had three hits including a double and triple to top Whittier hitters.

The 'Hens, now 0-5 in the conference and 0-8 overall, host Whitter Tuesday.

Panthers win with daring

Chaffey College's baseball team pulled off a daring double steal in the fourth inning for the decisive run as the Panthers edged Southwestern, 3-2, in Mission Conference play Saturday.

The win improved Chaffey's record to 5-1, best in the conference.

In other junior college action, MSAC outslugged Fullerton 9-6 and Citrus shut out Palomar, 3-0.

Rick Fellhauer collected three hits as Howard Garcia and Greg Walton added two to pace Chaffey's 14-hit attack. Even though the Panthers jumped on Southwestern for two runs in the first inning, they gave up two in the bottom of the third to knot the score.

Then in the top of the fourth, a walk to John Torrez and a single by Fellhauer set up the decisive double steal.

Citrus collected its second win in seven Mission encounters thanks to the six-hit pitching of Hank Ritchey. The righthander struck out ten Comets, surrendered just six hits and issued only one walk enroute to his fifth victory in six decisions.

Jay Schellin and Brad Ducich contributed two hits apiece to spark the Owl offense. MSAC scored one in the eighth and added two more in the ninth to pull away from Fullerton for its second triumph in four Orange Coast Conference games.

Joe Koval, Dale Adair, and Mark Canavan paced the Mountie attack, contributing two hits apiece.

With the victory, the Mounties upped their overall record to 11-6.

Foreman leaves hospital

SAN JUAN, P.R. (AP) — Grinning and waving to a small crowd of fans, George Foreman strolled out of a local hospital Saturday a day and a half after suffering heat prostration and a mild concussion during his upset loss to Jimmy Young.

The former heavyweight champion took time to autograph a picture for one of his supporters and chatted with several of them before departing for his Texas ranch.

The 28-year-old Foreman said he'll take at least a month off to rest before resuming training. He said he was feeling fine and that he hadn't been hurt during the 12-round bout Thursday night with Young, a fight that has devalued his fortunes in the heavyweight picture.

Foreman, looking relaxed in a blue jumpsuit, said he doesn't expect any trouble in lining up another fight after his unexpected loss by unanimous decision to the 28-year-old Philadelphian.

Accompanying Foreman Saturday was the fighter's neurosurgeon, Dr. Jorge Davila, who said he ran brainwave checks on the boxer to make sure the concussion was not serious.

Los Serranos Tournament to aid City of Hope

By PHIL ROCHE
PB Staff Writer

Kevin Sullivan, secretary-manager at Los Serranos has announced that a host of celebrities will be on hand for Chino Chapter City of Hope tournament on Tuesday, April 19.

Leading the list of sports stars who will play at Los Serranos on that day is Bill Sharman, L.A. Lakers general manager, former Lakers' coach and NBA hall of famer.

Others who will turn out for this worthy tournament are Dennis Ralston, tennis star; Dr. Les Horvath, Heisman trophy winner from Ohio State; Glenn Davis, three-time All America at Army; Ted Shroeder, Wimbledon and U.S. Singles champion; Big Jess Watson, 6-8, 285 pound tackle from Washington State; and Fred Claire, vice-president of the L.A. Dodgers, and former sports writer for the Progress-Bulletin.

All proceeds from the tournament will go to the City of Hope.

Chuck Gillanders, a 6 handicapper, and Paul Miller, 13 from Meadowlark, won the member-guest tournament last Saturday at Los Serranos with a net 63. In second place with a 64 were William Miller, 15 handicapper, and Rod Larsen, a 10 from California C.C. Tied for third were the teams of Jim Peterson and Tony Antonelli of El Rivino, Guy Kidd and Larry Bemoll of Pomona National, Elliot Lane and Toshio Mayeda of Victoria C.C.

Bonnie Woodrow and Alta Hutchins won first flight honors in the recent La Mancha Best Nine event. Other winners were Barbara Kohn, Mae Wellborn and Marie Downing.

Thirty players have already qualified for a run at $225,000 offered in the MONY (Mutual of New York) Tournament of Champions. This prestigious event will be held April 14-17 at La Costa Resort Hotel, Spa and Country Club. Only winners of major PGA tournaments in the last 12 months, plus the British Open, are eligible.

The Price is Right tournament sponsored by the La Verne Chamber of Commerce will be played Friday at San Dimas Canyon. Entry is $15 for golf and dinner, $10 for golf and cart alone. Checks can be made out to La Verne Chamber of Commerce, 2078 Bonita Ave., La Verne.

Highly recommend this tourney. It's almost always well run and those who have played in it once inevitably return.

First flight low gross winners at Western Hills Invitational were Marge Georgenson of Hacienda C.C. and Jane Booth of California C.C.

Janet Maple and Mary Olson of Candlewood won second low gross; Kay Robinson and Jacquie Crews, Friendly Hills, won first low net. Norma Schy and Sue Nelson, Canyon Crest, were second net winners.

Second flight winners were Carol Dunn, Mary Smith of Canyon Crest, Barbara Wilson, Barbara Ennis of Redlands, Betty Gonnella, Alice Brady of Candlewood, Carmen Distefano and Tillie Bracci of South Hills.

The 7th annual 90/10 Shotgun shootout — La Verne vs. San Dimas — will be held Friday, April 8, according to Bryce Bailey, San Dimas recreation director.

The event, which will be held at San Dimas Canyon, begins at 12:15 p.m. Entry per player is $14 with a $25 total for husbands and wives. Dinner only is $5.

Entry includes green fees, cart, dinner, awards and trophies. Interested persons can contact the Parks and Recreation departments of San Dimas or La Verne.

Former Claremont stars Dave Brownlee and Jon Fiedler are travelling the pro tour with the American Golf Association these days. Bill Hanks, assistant pro at Marshall Canyon, reports that Brownlee has "been in the money" in just about every tournament.

Dave finished sixth in the recent Texas tournament with rounds of 71-73-71 to win $500.

Incidentally, Bruce Perrin, popular assistant pro at Marshall Canyon, will be back on the job in April.

Tim Berry, former assistant pro at South Hills C.C. in Covina, is sharpening his game these days. He went around Via Verde Friday blasting his 3-iron off the tees while his driver was being repaired. Conservatively speaking his 3-iron shots were out there 220 to 240 yards.

Tanner hears same queries

BRADENTON, Fla. (AP) — The Pittsburgh Pirates' players have become mimics.

Everytime a baseball writer starts an interview, you can hear it from every corner of the clubhouse.

"How is Tanner different from Murtaugh?" they shriek. "How is this camp different?"

And they're right. Those are the first two questions asked nine times out of 10.

Chuck Tanner, new manager of the Pirates, just smiles and waits for the shouting to end. Then, he tries to answer the query he must be hearing in his sleep.

"It's not different really," Tanner insists.

"I use a lot of Danny's ideas," Tanner says, referring to the late Pittsburgh skipper who died shortly after resigning the job last fall.

"I'd like my record at the end of my career in Pittsburgh to be as good," Tanner continues. "He'll go down as one of the greatest managers in the game. He came in when the Pirates were at a low ebb, and helped Joe Brown (former general manager) build winners.

"We played the Pirates a lot every spring when I was with the White Sox (at Sarasota, 10 miles from the Pittsburgh camp) and I kind of knew the Pittsburgh players. Danny and I had a fine relationship. He wanted me to come over here and succeed him."

But despite Tanner's assertion, there is a difference in the Pirates' camp under Murtahgh, and the one now under Tanner. Murtaugh was a low key guy. He rarely played on emotions. He looked upon his players as professionals paid to do a job. He planned the strategy, made the lineup, talked to a player only when he felt it necessary. He ran a loose ship, but at the same time his players new they had to toe the line.

Tanner is more than a rah, rah type. You expect him to grab a megaphone and lead a cheer. You know, "Give me a 'P'...give an 'I,' etc. He wants a lot of chatter, a lot of noise. He literally oozes optimism, even if there is no reason to be optimistic.

"If you don't feel optimistic then go back to the farm," says the ebullient Tanner. "If you're not optimistic there is no use leaving home. If I was the owner and the manager wasn't optimistic I wouldn't want him to work for me. You have to embue that philosophy in your veterans as well as younger players. You have to get the whole system thinking and acting positive."

Tanner admits he is trying to change the Pittsburgh image. He sent letters to his players, shortly after being acquired from the Oakland A's in exchange for catcher Manny Sanguillen and a reported $100,000. "Pittsburgh made a great trade," Tanner jests about the dealing of a player for a manager.

"I wrote my players: 'Pittsburgh has always been known for lumber (hitting). What I want at the end of the 1977 season is for people to say what a fine defensive team we have... what a fine running team we have. I want us to have pride in these areas. I don't want extraordinary things. I want the ordinary things done extraordinary. Then, we'll have a fine year."

TAMPA, Fla. (AP) — There may be more to your favorite baseball player than meets the eye.

While Joe Fan often thinks of his hero in one-dimensional terms, the off-field interests of today's athletes are as varied as their antics.

While some get ready for a post-baseball profession, others keep their minds active with unique hobbies.

Cincinnati's Joe Morgan, only the second National Leaguer to win the Most Valuable Player award twice, is earning a degree in physical education with a goal of coaching a college baseball team.

Detroit slugger Rusty Staub is a gourmet cook and owns his own restaurant in New York City. It's called "Rusty's" and the menu ranges from shrimp du maison to cream of leek soup.

Atlanta relief pitcher Mike Marshall has a master's degree in kinesiology, the study of body movement. He once helped Minnesota Vikings quarterback Fran Tarkenton nurse a sore elbow back to health.

Texas Ranger reliever Paul Lindblad forgets about gopher balls while dabbling in mechanical drawing. San Francisco infielder Darrell Evans is a stamp collector.

Well-traveled American League catcher Elrod Hendricks is a water painting enthusiast, while St. Louis relief star Al "The Mad Hungarian" Hrabowsky loses his serious side as a surfer.

Veteran pitcher Woodie Fryman is at home on the range. He owns a 400-acre burley tobacco farm in Kentucky and operates a dairy.

Chicago Cubs infielder-outfielder Peter LaCock, son of television personality Peter Marshall, studies oceanography in his spare time.

Pitcher Bill Greif of the San Diego Padres is into hypnosis, while Cincinnati relief ace Rawly Eastwick has a fascination for psychic phenomena.

Others find relaxation in simpler subjects.

Three new films set

NEW YORK (AP) — Melvin Frank recently signed an agreement to make three motion pictures for 20th Century-Fox, including a remake of Alec Guinness' "Kind Hearts and Coronets," the film company announced. The second picture, "The Team," will be a portrait of a team of Hollywood writers who eventually become directors and independent producers.

MICHELANGELO MASTERPIECE — This solid marble recreation of "La Pieta" by Michelangelo Buonorroti is on view at the Palace of Living Art at the Movieland Wax Museum in Buena Park. The eight-ton work was carved from Carrara marble taken from Michelangelo's own quarry near his hometown of Pietrasanta, Italy.

PVAA shows student art

The Pomona Valley Art Association will hold its 25th Student Art Show in the gallery, 300 S. Park Ave., Pomona, Wednesday through April 16.

A reception for the students, parents and teachers will be held at the gallery from noon to 2 p.m. Saturday. The public is invited.

As in the past, Pomona First Federal Savings & Loan Association gives art scholarships to the winners. Twenty-four winners in junior and senior high school categories will study at the gallery with Barbara Vandale in April and July.

Gallery hours are 11 a.m. to 4 p.m. Monday through Thursday, 11 a.m. to 6 p.m. Friday and 9 to 11 a.m. Saturday.

CCAA plans art field trip

The Chaffey Community Art Association will hold a field trip to Los Angeles next Sunday to view the Chicano mural art. CCAA will be assisted in the project by the Pomona Valley Art Association.

Members and guests will leave the parking lot of Padua Hills Theater, Claremont, at 9:15 a.m. The buses will return to Padua Hills at 1:30 p.m. at which time the CCAA will serve luncheon and the musicians and dancers of Padua Hills will entertain.

Reservations can be made with Joyce Goerner at 622-9987. Tickets at $5 cover the bus trip and the luncheon.

"The mural art of East Los Angeles has had much acclaim," says Robert George, CCAA president and chairman of the Ganesha High School art [illegible] to the great Mexican muralists Orozco and Sequeiros. Originating as mere grafitti, the murals became the embodiment of bold and colorful folk art."

Docent Council promotes art

To touch an African witch doctor's mask, to view American Indian pottery and baskets or meet a sandstone lion 2,000 years old are some of the art adventures local school children enjoy through the women of the Docent Council of the Fine Arts Foundation of Scripps College.

Founded in 1967, the council each year hosts several thousand children on the Claremont College campuses, providing them with guided tours of a wide variety of exhibitions at Lang Gallery and Clark Museum, Scripps; and Montgomery Galleries, Pomona College. The volunteer docents prepare for their tours in a study program directed by David Steadman and Mrs. Ann LeVeque, directors of the galleries.

Currently, tours of the annual Ceramics Exhibition in Lang Gallery, and an American Indian Exhibition in Clark Museum are being offered to the schools as enrichment to their art or social studies programs.

Doug Humble, artist, briefed the docents on the ceramics exhibitions which include the work of promising young ceramists invited from all over the country to show six works of great innovation and originality.

Mrs. Kay Warren, curator of the American Indian Exhibition, will conduct a learning session in Native American Artifacts in preparation for the tours.

Serving as the chairwomen are Mrs. Kenneth Friedenbach and Mrs. David Hopley.

Active docents include Mrs. Wayne Cameron, Mrs. Forrest Doucette, Mrs. John Esterline, Mrs. Winifield Foster, Mrs. G.W. Gallman, Mrs. George Gibson, Mrs. Albert Kay, Mrs. Howard Metzler, Mrs. Donald Middleton, Mrs. Gwin Shelton, Mrs. Raymond Soper and Mrs. Lester Stroh.

Ballad of a Home

Once upon a midnight dreary
While I wandered weak and weary
I strode upon a beaming light shining from windows bright.
Hark, I heard song and laughter coming from every rafter . . .
flinging open the solid door,
I decided to explore.
Behold, a living room with fireplace and kitchen with eating space.
Gazing at a table with flowers in bloom in the formal dining room.
Cozy fireplace of brick and raised hearth without a nick.
covered patio to enjoy the sun.
In the yard I spy,
trees and birds that fly.
Venturing down the bedroom hall,
3 large bedrooms I do recall,
This is where I come to rest, in the home that is the best.

"We never had it so good!"

Any 11 records or tapes—$1.00

plus shipping and handling

... and all we had to do was agree to buy 8 more selections (at regular Club prices) in the coming 3 years

First good thing: picking out 11 albums you really want. Not having to stop after just one or two, but going on and on.

Next good thing: the day they arrive. All at once. Opening the package. Deciding which one to play first.

Then a bunch of good things happen. With a big fresh collection of your favorite music and performers to play again and again. To lift your spirits when they need lifting. To match your mood when you're feeling great.

Go ahead. Choose 11 albums. For only $1.00, plus shipping and handling. By joining the Columbia Record & Tape Club now.

HOW THE CLUB OPERATES

Simply mail the application in an envelope, together with check or money order for $1.86 as payment (that's $1.00 for your first 11 selections, plus 86¢ to cover shipping and handling).

Every four weeks (13 times a year) you'll receive the Club's music magazine, which describes the Selection of the Month for each musical interest...plus hundreds of alternates from every field of music. In addition, up to six times a year you may receive offers of Special Selections, usually at a discount off regular prices.

If you wish to receive the Selection of the Month or the Special Selection, you need do nothing—it will be shipped automatically. If you prefer an alternate selection, or none at all, simply fill in the response card always provided and put it in the mail by the date specified.

You will always have at least 10 days in which to make your decision. If you ever receive any Selection without having had at least 10 days to decide, return it at our expense, for full credit.

Your own charge account will be opened...the selections you order will be mailed and billed at regular Club prices, which currently are: 8-track tapes and cassettes, $6.98 or $7.98; reel tapes, $7.98; records, $5.98 or $6.98—plus shipping and handling. (Multiple unit sets and Double Selections may be somewhat higher.)

After completing your enrollment agreement (by buying 8 selections within 3 years) you may cancel membership at any time. If you decide to continue, you'll be eligible for our generous money-saving bonus plan. Act now!

'A CELEBRATION'

Dr. Arnold Pike celebrates 25 years on educational television when actress Carol Burnett guests on Campus Profile, Sunday at 9AM on KABC, Channel 7. Dr. Pike began his first television series in 1952 when "Campus Farmers" debuted in March of that year on Channel 7.

On the March 20 program, Carol Burnett tells how she improved her health and stamina by giving up coffee, white bread and other processed foods for herb teas, whole grains and other health foods. She also reveals how her natural food diet along with yoga has helped her to avoid colds and enhance her alertness and endurance. Also on the program, Dr. Leonard Savage of the California Chiropractic Association explains how the thyroid gland affects metabolism and energy level and why an "empty calorie" diet of refined foods can diminish the efficiency of the thyroid and other glands.

Edward Asner stars as Huey P. Long, the populist-oriented Louisiana governor and U.S. senator whose controversial career was cut short by assassination, in "The Life and Assassination of the Kingfish," a fact-based World Premiere drama on the NBC Monday Night Movie (9-11PM). Nicholas Pryor, Gary Allen and Diane Kagen also star.

A Tomorrow Entertainment production written and produced by Robert Collins, the feature focuses on the shooting of Long in the state capitol in 1935 and through flashbacks, unveils his controversial career and the mystery surrounding the motivation of his assassin, who died at the hands of Long's bodyguards.

The drama centers on the final three years of the senator's life, following him through campaign tours and into fierce political infighting that created enemies for him in both Louisiana and Washington. The feature was filmed entirely on location in Baton Rouge, La., and its environs, including the actual site where Long was shot by the son of a dentist.

Meredith Baxter Birney, who stars as Nancy Lawrence Maitland, the eldest daughter of the Lawrence family on ABC's Family series, is a rarity...a native Californian, born in Los Angeles. She graduated from Hollywood High School where she majored in Theatre Arts, although at that time she never dreamed of becoming an actress—as she seriously thought about a singing career. After high school she continued to study voice and drama at Interlochen Arts Academy in Michigan.

When she returned to Hollywood she became interested in acting and soon appeared in the film, "The Interns." Other feature credits include "Ben," "All the President's Men" and the soon-to-be-released, "Bittersweet Love." She lives in Santa Monica, California, with her husband, actor David Birney. They have a daughter, Kate, two; and two children from her previous marriage, Ted, nine and Eva, seven.

Richard Bull and Michael Landon

'KINDLY STOREKEEPER'

Richard Bull, the kindly storekeeper with the mean wife and rotten children in Little House on the Prairie (NBC, Mondays at 8PM), was coaxed into enrolling at the Goodman Memorial Theatre in Chicago by a long-time friend who waxed so enthusiastically about what a wonderful experience it was and how much he was getting from it that Richard felt he just had to be part of that experience.

Well, in just two weeks that friend gave up the "wonderful experience" to become an insurance adjuster. Richard Bull, however, is going stronger than ever and is even more convinced that acting is a most magnificent experience.

Bull admits he was a little nervous the first time he worked with Mike Landon because Mike is not only the star of Little House but producer and sometimes writer and director. "But," says Bull, "Mike quickly dispelled the feeling. As a director and a producer, Mike knows what he wants and he gets it because he understands actors and their problems. As an actor he gives to his fellow workers."

The six-foot, blue-eyed actor was born in Zion, Illinois, but grew up in Chicago. After four months at Goodman, Richard went into the Air Corps and was stationed on Guam as a radio operator at a B-29 base. Following his discharge in 1946 he returned to the Goodman Theatre where he met his future wife, Barbara Collentine. They married in 1948, but not until Bill overcame what he terms his "greatest struggle."

"I had to ask Barbara's father for his permission to marry. We went up to her home in Madison, Wisc., and her father never opened his mouth once during the two days we were there. He was a feisty little Irishman who was not going to give his blessing to an actor. I really sweated out those days, but I made it."

Bull packed up his bags and moved East, where he finally settled in New York City by way of small theatre productions in New York state. After participating in stock at the Albany Playhouse where he was in "Lady in the Dark," Dick found parts scarce in New York City. He performed the usual "bread and butter" odd jobs that actors do to stay alive—"hang boy" in various cloakrooms, as a doorman at Billy Rose's, candy counter at Radio City Music Hall where he took over the job from Harvey Korman, washroom attendant at Leon & Eddie's and acting for students at a television school along with Charles Nelson Reilly. Richard moved to the better climate of Hollywood where he got his start by standing out in a crowd in George Stevens' "The Greatest Story Ever Told."

"I admired George Stevens so much," he recounts, "that I asked my agent to try and get me any part at all in the picture, no matter how small it was. And he took me literally, because what he got me was two lines! But I was also in a scene with a crowd from which Stevens wanted a big reaction, a big, big reaction. So...when the time came, I let it all out, and Stevens spotted me. He set up a closeup of my crying and shouting and reacting all over the place. And that opened a lot of doors for me. In fact, it led directly to the role of an FBI agent in 'The Satan Bug'."

CLOSE-UP

NATURE LOVER

"I could easily have been Grizzly Adams if I had lived in that era," say Dan Haggerty, an avid nature lover and star of the new NBC series The Life and Times of Grizzly Adams, Wednesdays (8-9PM).

In the weekly series, based on the 1974 theatrical release of the same title, the muscular 6'1" actor portrays James "Grizzly" Adams, a fur-trapper and mountain man who is being pursued for a crime he did not commit. Rather than face an inevitable jail sentence, Adams retreats to the wilderness where he adopts a new life style, and befriends wild animals including a bear cub who lives with him.

Haggerty was chosen for the lead because of his acting ability as well as his special love for animals. He started as an independent animal trainer hocking his furniture—refrigerator and stove—to buy his first lion cub. He supervised animals for Tarzan productions, which took him to Brazil for a year, and "When the North Wind Blows," where he worked with wolves, as well as other animals.

His knowledge of handling wild animals, such as his series companion, Ben, a 500-pound Grizzly bear, enables Haggerty to do scenes that most actors would find impossible. Haggerty credits animals for being where he is today. "Doing this series is comfortable for me because animals and I get along well," explains Haggerty. "They have been good to me and I love them.

"If it wasn't for them I don't know what I would be doing. They fed us (Haggerty, his wife Diane and daughters, Tammy and Tracy) and I traveled all over the world with them. As an actor, however, I haven't managed to leave Utah and Arizona.

When he is not working on the series, Haggerty—a lover of Nordic history—hunts, fishes, carves furniture and crafts leather. "I make fine furniture, leather clothes and shoes," says the modern day Grizzly Adams. "Nature has been good to me. I have good hands and I can use them."

Joining Haggerty in the action adventure are Don Shanks as Nakuma, his Indian blood brother, and veteran actor Denver Pyle as Mad Jack, his trusted friend. Together they teach Adams the ways of the wilderness. Shanks has portrayed an Indian in three films, "The Life and Times of Grizzly Adams," "Frontier Fremont," and "Guardian of the Wilderness."

MCA TV's six-hour mini-series, "Testimony of Two Men," will be a television landmark creating a kind of new excitement—the same kind of ground-breaking done by Studio One, Philco Playhouse, and Playhouse 90 in the 1950's, then the evolution of the original movie made for television which came about in the 1960's, and, recently, the quality mini-series such as "Rich Man, Poor Man," "Roots," and "The Captains and the Kings."

But, "Testimony of Two Men" is much more than great dramatic entertainment. The production, unlike other costly and lavish television films, is not for one of the established networks. "Testimony of Two Men" is being financed by and made especially for a group of independent stations, as well as various network affiliates representing the three major networks, who have dubbed the new project, "Operation Prime Time." These stations have chosen to compete for the prime time advertising dollars and their means of competition is the most expensive (per hour) production ever made for syndication. And, unlike any previous syndicated project, the stations paid in advance to finance the production because of their faith in the project. At the very beginning, all concerned knew that "Testimony of Two Men" would be dramatic, entertaining, commercial, and pre-sold.

The pre-sold element concerns the original Taylor Caldwell novel which was on the New York Times best-seller list for ten months and sold over half-million hardback copies. The paperback has sold over one and one-half million copies and goes into its twenty-eighth printing shortly. Taylor Caldwell has written more than thirty best-selling novels including "The Captains and the Kings," "Dear and Glorious Physician," "This Side of Innocence," and "Ceremony of the Innocent."

"Testimony of Two Men" is about a crusading doctor and his family. It is the story of his work and his passions—his fight to introduce modern methods of medicine to inept doctors and his struggle to overcome a disastrous marriage, a murder accusation and dramatic obstacles that prevent him from being united with the woman he loves.

DAVID BIRNEY brings to the role of Jonathan Ferrier, a crusading, idealistic but somewhat arrogant doctor, an instant recognizability to audiences because of his roles in the series, Bridget Loves Bernie and Serpico.

BARBARA PARKINS, who will age approximately thirty-five years as Jonathan's mother, Marjorie Ferrier, will also play the role of Hilda Eaton. Miss Parkins, rose to fame on television's Peyton Place, and the film, "Valley of the Dolls."

STEVE FORREST, star of the recent S.W.A.T series, plays Dr. Martin Eaton, the unrequited love interest of Miss Parkins, who will also age about thirty-five years in the role of a man who believes his illegitimate daughter to have been terminally aborted by Jonathan.

RALPH BELLAMY, stars as the inept Dr. Jim Spaulding who causes the death of a patient.

THEODORE BIKEL, is Peter Heger, a man with a strange attitude toward his beautiful daughter.

TOM BOSLEY, in the role of Dr. Louis Hedler, Chief of Surgery.

J.D. CANNON, who portrays the opportunistic Senator Kenton Campion, can be seen regularly on television's McCloud. His motion picture credits include "Scorpio" and "Cotton Comes to Harlem."

DAN DAILEY, who will play Father McGuire, earned an Academy Award nomination for the role of an alcoholic vaudevillian in "When My Baby Smiles at Me," and also appeared in several other top films including "Mother Wore Tights," "Wings of Eagles," "It's Always Fair Weather" and "There's No Business Like Show Business." He has two television series to his credit, The Governor and J.J. and Faraday and Company.

DAVID HUFFMAN, as the foppish and cynical Harald Ferrier, will play David Birney's brother and Barbara Parkins' son. Recently seen in "The Captains and the Kings," Huffman has also appeared in television series and specials including "The Gun" and "F. Scott Fitzgerald and The Last of the Belles."

RAY MILLAND, portraying the tycoon Jonas Witherby, recently appeared in the mini-series, "Rich Man, Poor Man, Book I" and "Seventh Avenue." An Academy Award winner for "The Lost Weekend," Milland's other film classics include "Lady in the Dark," "Dial M for Murder," "Kitty," "The Uninvited, and "The Thief."

MARGARET O'BRIEN, who plays the flighty Flora Eaton, was an MGM star as a child in "Journey for Margaret," "Meet Me in St. Louis," "The Unfinished Dance," and "Our Vines Have Tender Grapes."

LAURIE PRANGE will be Jenny Heger, a beautiful young woman who believes that the man she loves is responsible for the death of her mother. Ms. Prange, who will be seen shortly in the film, "Looking for Mr. Goodbar," has appeared on the television series, Baa Baa Black Sheep, Switch, and Barnaby Jones.

LINDA PURL, who has the meaty role of the selfish and promiscuous Mavis Eaton, has the distinction of starring this year in the most highly-watched film ever made for television, "Little Ladies of the Night." Miss Purl, also co-starred in the series, The Young Pioneers.

WILLIAM SHATNER, star of the perpetually syndicated Star Trek, and next year's film version of same, portrays the aristocratic Adrian Ferrier who is gradually drawn into shady politics.

SURPRISE!!—The shocked look on Michael Landon's face is the result of a very special gift from the cast and crew of NBC's Little House on the Prairie. Landon, who is the show's executive producer as well as its star, rides a bicycle all over the studio as he supervises all aspects of production. —and he was always losing his bikes, so the crew bought him something he can't lose—a ¾ scale 1901 Ford surrey with a fringe on top, complete with duster and goggles. But now they're having trouble getting him out of the car and onto the stage.

ASK THEM YOURSELF

Send the question, on a postcard, to "Ask," Family Weekly, 641 Lexington Ave., New York, N.Y. 10022. We'll pay $5 for published questions. Sorry, we can't answer others.

FOR EDWIN E. ("BUZZ") ALDRIN, former astronaut

I've heard reports we made money on the space programs because of technological gains. True? If so, in what areas? —S.G., Scottsbluff, Neb.

● Yes. I've heard many doctors say the medical benefits alone are worth more than all the money spent on Mercury, Gemini and Apollo. I think the space program was by far the best bargain we've ever had. When have we ever completed anything of comparable significance on time, reasonably close to original cost estimates and far surpassing expected results?

FOR JANET GUTHRIE, race-car driver

Are you bothered by the fear of crashing?—A.S., Albany, N.Y.

● No. I never think about the risks involved. All I think about is how much pleasure I'm getting from what I'm doing. It all boils down to whether or not you decide what you're doing is worth the risk. There's danger in driving, whether you're going from here to Uncle Henry's for Easter Day dinner—or racing on the track. I'm lucky. I think my job is worth the risk.

FOR RAQUEL WELCH, actress

I'm dying to know—do you do your own hair, or do you go to a beauty parlor?—Muriel Cassidy, Washington, D.C.

● Both, but most of the time I do it myself. The cut is so good that I can get away without going to the hairdresser. As long as it's shaped, I can set it myself (less time than going out to have it done). But I also enjoy the luxury of going to a salon and getting the full works—manicure, pedicure. During the fall, I have my hair streaked; I like the idea of highlights.

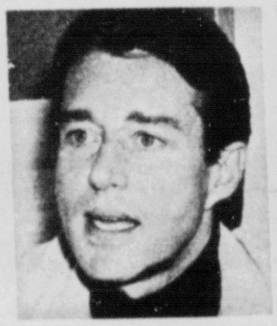

FOR LAWRENCE WELK, orchestra leader

Does music have anything to do with your youthful appearance?—Alan Edmondson, Boaz, Ala.

● Miracles can be performed by wonderful TV makeup and wardrobe departments. If my "youthful" image prevails off-camera, it might be due to a very happy life. I also had the good fortune and excellent judgment to marry a nurse. Jean has lovingly watched over my diet for 46 years, so I've had balanced and proper foods. And there's exercise. I take a daily swim, and I'm a golf nut, playing as often as I can.

FOR HALSTON, designer

What did you think of Rosalynn Carter's Inauguration dress?—J.B., Kingsport, Tenn.

● The only thing I objected to about the gown was that it was six years old. By wearing it, she was not supportive of the fashion industry or the economy. It was bad for both because what she was actually doing was telling everyone to wear their old clothes instead of getting new ones.

FOR DODY GOODMAN,
costar of Mary Hartman, Mary Hartman

How does your audience differ from afternoon "soap" viewers?—S.A., Bluefield, W. Va.

● We have a large male audience, most of whom have never watched the afternoon shows. And I guess in a way we get a better-rounded audience; daytime programs are watched only by women—older ones who aren't at work and younger ones in the middle of housework or watching children. We reach another segment of the population.

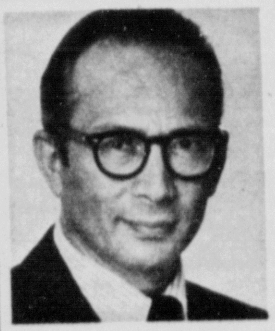

FOR ABIGAIL VAN BUREN, advice columnist

Do you feel your advice is accepted, or do people ask for it just for the sake of asking?—Mrs. E. B. Lape, Mansfield, Ohio

● There are those who do heed the advice they ask for. Others just "collect" advice from everyone they know, then do exactly as they please. Generalizations are dangerous because it really depends on the individual and there are no hard-and-fast rules.

FOR DR. BENJAMIN S. FRANK, author of The No Aging Diet

In your book you mention a man in his seventies discarding his glasses and reading without them after being on your diet. Why, then, do you wear glasses?—M. Conley, Ft. Myers, Fla.

● That patient wore glasses because of stiffness of the lens in his eyes, due to aging. As we get older, not only the lens but many other parts of our body stiffen. The "no aging diet" helps reverse many of these symptoms. I wear glasses because of a different problem—nearsightedness.

FOR THE "ASK THEM YOURSELF" EDITOR

How do the Dutch people feel about Prince Bernhard and his indiscretions?—M.B., Anchorage, Alaska

● Since the Lockheed bribes scandal surfaced a year ago and Bernhard (right) was stripped of his post as Inspector General of the military, he's been keeping a low profile. When he makes rare public appearances, the atmosphere is hostile. He recently annoyed his subjects even more by spending his 40th wedding anniversary with Queen Juliana (he was a minor German princeling before their marriage) on Austrian soil, instead of on home ground.

FOR REP. PAUL SIMON (D.-Ill.)

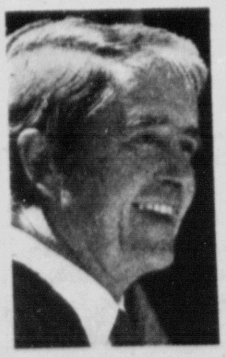

Are you ever confused with your namesake singer?—Scott Thomas, Kohler, Wis.

● Yes. In my first Congressional year, I received a letter from Case Western Reserve Univ. asking me to lecture on "music, how I compose, etc. Maybe we'll be so fortunate to hear samples of your well-known talents." Tongue-in-cheek I replied: "As for my music, I like the Boston Pops, and I compose on a Smith-Corona upright manual, never having liked electric typewriters."

PRO AND CON

Should Every Child Have A College Education?

PRO Kingman Brewster Jr., President, Yale University

Yes. Perhaps the most fundamental value of a liberal education is that it makes life more interesting.... It allows you to see things which the undereducated do not see. It allows you to understand things which the untutored find incomprehensible. It allows you to think things which do not occur to the less learned. In short, it makes it less likeiy that you will be bored with life and less likely that you will be a bore to those around you.

CON Caroline Bird, author of The Case Against College

No. College is not the place to decide what to do with your life or the place to be because you think a degree will get you a better job or more money. Who should go to college? Only people who like school, who actually enjoy studying. But most people would rather be doing something other than just sitting and hearing about how it's done. Finding a career is like finding love — you have to use a trial-and-error method. Out there, somewhere, is a job.

Robert V. Nilles

TAKE YOUR FAMILY AND STEP BACK INTO AMERICA'S PAST

Coast to coast, dozens of restored communities, complete even to costumes, celebrate everything from the planter's life in Colonial Virginia to nineteenth-century pioneer life to the whaling villages of New England to the frontier forts of the Old West.

"Courtesy of The Henry Ford Museum, Dearborn, Michigan"

Greenfield Village's century-old steam engine takes visitors along the two-mile perimeter of this famous outdoor museum.

An 1854 frontier fort established by Jefferson Davis at Fort Davis, Texas.

By Patricia Brooks

In the arsenal of the Virginia colony a young man in knee breeches checks the supply of powder. In the near-distance can be heard the shots of gunfire as the militia, in colonial uniform, drill and fire their muskets.

Outside, the clack of horses' hooves clatters on the uneven cobble of the old roadway as the carriage rolls by, the coachman tipping his tricornered hat to passersby along the way. At the end of Palace Green, the twinkling crystal chandeliers in the Governor's Palace seem to beckon visitors to a ball as the wigged and liveried "servants" wait in anticipation.

Meanwhile, on the main thoroughfare, the Duke of Gloucester Street, all the tiny shops are ahum with activity: the pewterer is polishing Revere-style bowls to a beautiful gloss . . . a weaver in colonial homespun busily spins her yarn, preparing it for the loom . . . a bookbinder labors lovingly over his leather covers.

The year is 1770 and you are there. Or easily can be. The scene described is a re-creation of times past. The place is Colonial Williamsburg, Va., but it could, with some modifications, be any number of historic museum villages around the country, where the past is being brought vividly to life to the delight of visitors.

"It's the best kind of family weekend outing," one New Jersey mother of five glowed, after a trip to Sturbridge Village in Massachusetts. "The kids loved the blacksmith demonstrations and copper bed warmers and kept asking, 'Is this what life was like when you were a girl, Mom?'"

There's probably not a state without one or more restored villages or old towns. Some are mere gimcrack commercial enterprises (more "story" than "history"). Others are authentic restorations where you can savor handcrafted artifacts and antiques and the memory of past events. Many are in idyllic rural settings where families can stroll and picnic.

So come along, step into the past, and have a look at a sampler of some of the finest of such villages.

Mystic Seaport, near New London, Conn. Nestled in an inlet off Long Island Sound, Mystic was a ship-building center in the 1700's. Its heyday, though, was as a mid-19th-century whaling port. (Opening scenes of Moby Dick were filmed here.)

Mystic's wide cobbled main street facing the harbor looks like an old seaside engraving with the cooper shop, sail loft, ropewalk, ship chandlery (full of ship supplies you may not have known existed) and countinghouse. At the Mystic Press, a printer cranks out a facsimile of a hundred-year-old newspaper on an ancient hand press. Children love to board the 1841 whaler, Charles W. Morgan, and to climb the decks of the square-rigged Joseph Conrad.

Greenfield Village, Dearborn, Mich. This is not a re-creation of a village but rather a large slice of history in a bucolic setting that telescopes three centuries of Americana. It began in 1929, when Henry Ford scooped up — just ahead of the bulldozer in some cases — 100 historical houses and other buildings and carried them to Dearborn.

Here you can explore Thomas Edison's actual lab and the Menlo Park scientific research complex, the provincial Illinois courthouse where Abe Lincoln first practiced law, the tiny cabin in which George Washington Carver was born, the Dayton, Ohio, bicycle shop and home of the Wright brothers, among many other dwellings of the famous. Nearby is the Henry Ford Museum, a dazzling collection of mechanical and decorative arts, ranging from 175 antique autos to examples of Paul Revere's silver-smithing. Special events and demonstrations change frequently at the village. No matter when you visit, something special is bound to be going on.

Old Economy, Ambridge, Pa. It's a surprise to find this remote-in-time village just 20 miles from industrial Pittsburgh. The Harmonist Society came to America from Germany in 1805 and founded three villages. Old Economy, the most successful, survived almost 100 years. Its importance in our early history has earned it National Landmark status.

A self-sustaining religious community whose motto was "Piety, Harmony, Brotherhood and Peace," Old Economy had its own textile plant, furniture factory, winery (a local product, Old Economy whiskey, actually outlived the settlement) and community store. Especially impressive is the Feast Hall with its 12 massive kettles and large ovens that served the 1,000 members. The large and well-planned gardens and tidiness of the Great House suggest the beauty in this simple life. You may wish yourself back in the time when problems could be solved with a sip or two of the Society's herb cordial, which promised to "cure all disorders of stomach, liver, kidneys, fevers, rheumatism, coughs and colds."

New Salem, Ill. This prairie town's glory days came in the 1830's when young Abe Lincoln clerked in the local store, studied law at night, courted Ann Rutledge and slept in the Rutledge Tavern loft.

New Salem prospered briefly, then declined. Its restoration vividly recalls the hard, plain life of our pioneers. The doctor's one-room cabin was both office and home. Houses were log cabins sparsely furnished with the few family treasures that survived the rutted wagon trails. Demonstrations of rail-splitting, shingle-splitting, spinning, candle-dipping and soap-making give a sense of the ruggedness of prairie life. Children love the oxen-pulled Conestoga wagon ride through the dusty village roads.

Shakertown At Pleasant Hill, Ky. This old Shaker village, 70 miles southeast of Louisville, has been impeccably restored to its 19th-century state. The Shakers, Quaker offshoots, arrived in Kentucky from New England and settled among the rolling blue grass hills in 1805. A thriving self-contained community, Shakertown quickly became the most prosperous branch of the Shaker tree, with 2,250 acres of woods and lush farmland.

This is one restoration in which you may actually spend the night in one of the restored buildings. After a dinner featuring Shaker specialties in the handsome Trustees House, you can stroll the gaslit lanes, listen to crickets and experience the same solitude the Shakers enjoyed. Then you'll climb the graceful winding double staircase to your "retiring room." Since the Shakers were celibate, every house had separate stairways, one for men, one for women. (One suspicious elder dusted all shoes with flour a night, then checked the upstairs floor next day for floury footmarks to discourage any nocturnal hanky-panky.) All six guesthouses are furnished with beautifully crafted Shaker reproductions. Only 20th-century mattresses, plumbing and electricity have been added. (Note: if you plan to stay overnight, reserve well ahead. Space is limited.)

Colonial Williamsburg, Va. Most famous and elegant of all historic villages, Williamsburg was Virginia's capital from 1699 to 1779. Today the clock has been turned back permanently to the Revolutionary period, the town's liveliest and most historic time. Many fascinating events were played against the backdrop of the bustling town's cobblestone streets and red brick buildings. Patrick Henry demanded redress from the British in the House of Burgesses, now faithfully restored. At the weathered Raleigh Tavern you can sample George Washington's favorite ale.

When you visit, take time at first for the short film that sets the stage for your tour. Then wander along the once-fashionable Duke of Gloucester Street, enjoy the colonial muster on the green, nibble ginger cookies fresh and hot from colonial ovens and let weavers, potters and other craftsmen show you their 200-year old skills. The flavor of the colonial period is so rich you half-expect to bump into Tom Jefferson rounding the next corner.

There isn't room to list all the many excellent historic villages now located around the U.S. The following are just a few more that are extra-special.

Columbia, Calif. An authentic Gold Rush town, vividly restored, now part of the Calif. State Historic Park system.

Solving, Calif. A Danish village, 35 miles north of Santa Barbara, at its liveliest during "Danish Days" in September.

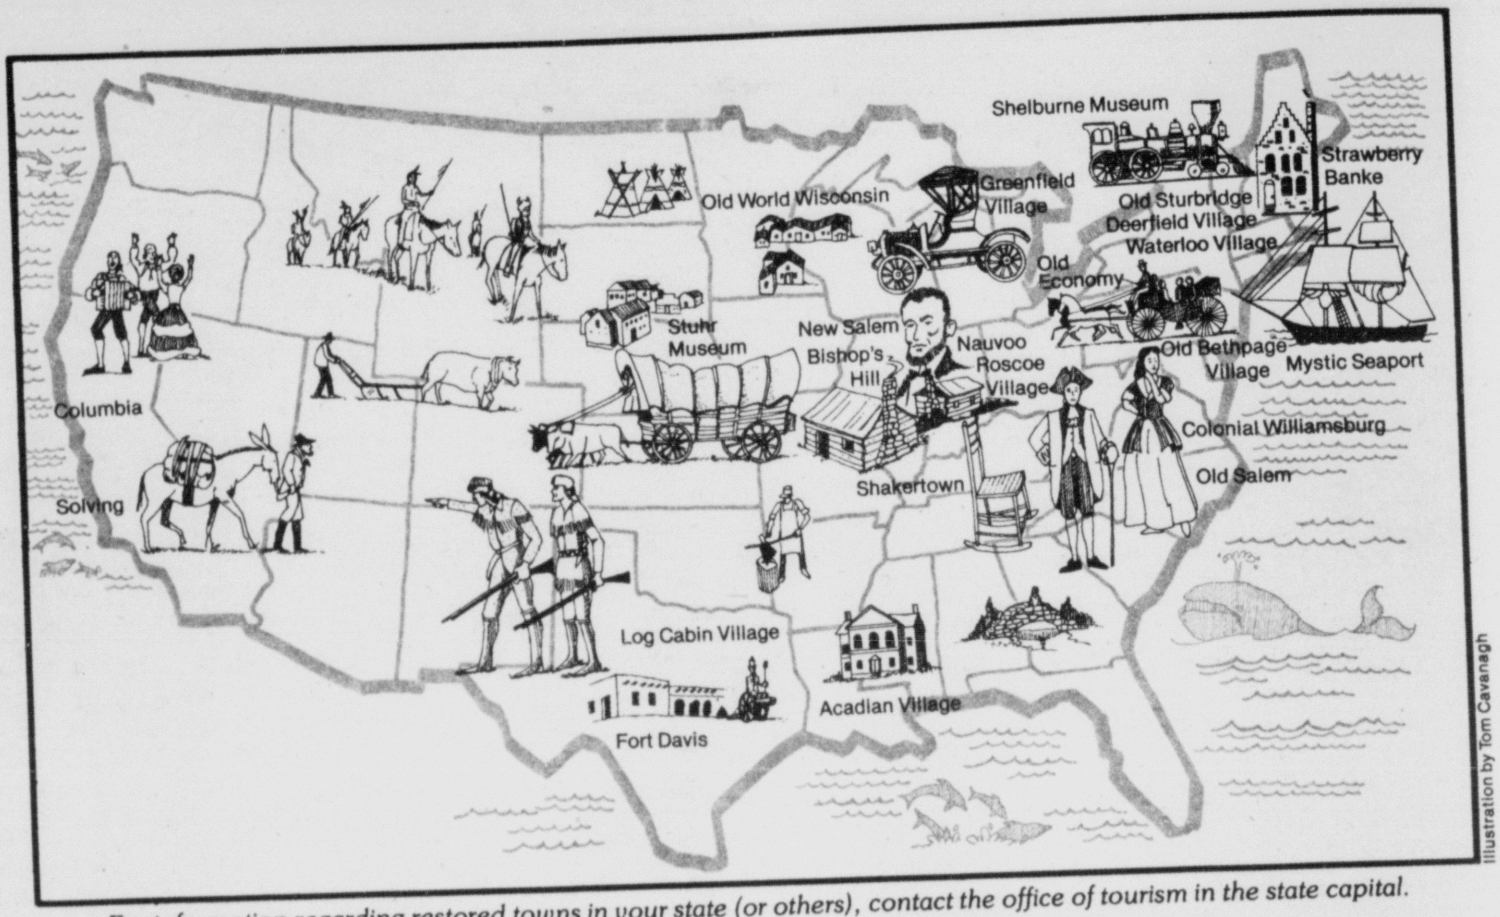

Illustration by Tom Cavanagh

For information regarding restored towns in your state (or others), contact the office of tourism in the state capital.

Bishop's Hill, Ill. A 19th-century Swedish religious community, this was once a way station for all Scandinavian emigrés passing through the Midwest.

Nauvoo, Ill. An authentic Mormon village, built by the sect before the great march to Utah. Recently restored and refurbished, Brigham Young's house is especially notable.

Acadian Village, Lafayette, La. A reconstructed early French community of the 1800's, with the original houses moved to a new site.

Deerfield Village, Mass. Scene of two bloody Indian massacres, this prosperous 17th- and 18th-century town is a treasure trove of elegant antiques and early architecture.

Old Sturbridge, Mass. A collection of genuine New England farmhouses, shops and other buildings assembled as a re-created village, rich in artifacts and authentic detail.

Stuhr Museum, Grand Island, Neb. An outdoor museum village consisting of actual Nebraska prairie buildings of 1870-1890 vintage.

Strawberry Banke, Portsmouth, N.H. The original colonial seaport that grew into Portsmouth, with authentic 17th-century houses painstakingly restored and furnished with first-rate period pieces.

Roscoe Village, Coshocton, Ohio. A restored Ohio-Erie Canal town of the early 19th century in bucolic setting, with authenticity the name of the game.

Old Salem, Winston-Salem, N.C. Founded in 1766, this restored 18th-century-Moravian town lies within the city limits of Winston-Salem.

Log Cabin Village, Fort Worth, Texas. Actual pioneer homes of the 1850's, showing Texas life and furnishings.

Fort Davis, Texas. A National Historic Site, this 1854 fort was established by order of Jefferson Davis, then Secretary of War. Renovated and restored by the National Park Service, it is the most extensive example of a Southwestern frontier fort.

Old Bethpage Village, Bethpage Long Island, N.Y. The preindustrial age comes to life in this village of shops, houses and costumed "inhabitants" spread over 200 rural acres.

Waterloo Village, Stanhope, N.J. A restored waterside village along the route of the once-trafficked (1820-30) Morris Canal, where youngsters can now take buggy rides in a setting of lazy loveliness.

Shelburne Museum, Shelburne, Vt. Considered by many the finest collection of Americana in the U.S., the "museum" consists of 35 transplanted buildings spanning three centuries, as well as a train station, jail, covered bridge and the old Lake Champlain side-wheeler steamer Ticonderoga.

Old World Wisconsin, Eagle, Wis. A living outdoor museum consisting of all the early ethnic architectural styles found in Wisconsin — 20 to 30 distinctive architectural styles. FW

PEOPLE QUIZ / By John E. Gibson

Is the way you answer a question revealing? Does self-mockery make a good impression?

MANNERISMS THAT GIVE PEOPLE AWAY

TRUE OR FALSE?

1. The way a person answers a simple question tells you a lot about his personality.

2. Even if we do our best to control give-away mannerisms, the face leaks information regarding the personality in any face-to-face conversation or interview.

3. When a person looks at you, and puts his hands on his hips while doing so, what he's thinking about you probably can be best expressed as %#!*&!!

4. Lack of twisting, squirming or head-and-body, leg-and-arm movements is indicative of calmness.

5. Just as bragging about your accomplishments puts people off, poking fun at yourself for minor weaknesses and embarrassing moments can't help but make a favorable impression.

ANSWERS

1. True. Psychological studies at Virginia Commonwealth University show that it definitely does and cite the following example: You ask a person a leading question, such as "How would you feel if you were caught telling a lie to an important person?" If he uses the pronoun "I," as in "I would feel terrible, bad and guilty," it's explained that the person recognizes the possibility of being in such a situation and acknowledges his personal responsibility for his behavior. On the other hand, if he answers "You'd feel bad, terrible and guilty," or "It would feel terrible and bad," or simply "Feel terrible and bad," the person does not speak for himself; he literally disclaims responsibility for his emotions or projects them on some unidentified person. Tests have shown that persons who answer in such a fashion tend to be anxiety-ridden.

2. True. Research conducted by psychologists at Ohio State University and the University of Windsor, Ontario points out: "During face-to-face conversation people not only talk to each other, they look at each other." And the eyes, it was found, communicate a variety of information about a person's attitude, intentions and aspects of his personality and outlook. Subjects who scored high in abasement (low self-esteem, a tendency to feel guilty and to accept blame, to feel better when giving in to avoid a fight than when having their own way) looked away markedly more often to the left during the interview than persons low in this characteristic.

3. True. University of California studies show that "the arms-akimbo position tends to be used by communicators who wish to indicate a negative feeling to their addressees."

4. False. University of Montana investigators, for example, made a careful study of the body movements and gestures of courtroom witnesses. They found that subjects decreased conspicuous body movements during the stress of cross-examination, as compared to direct (friendly) questioning. It's concluded that in many cases nervous tension and general feeling of stress can inhibit gestures and bodily movement.

5. False. Investigators at Indiana University point out that people seem to enjoy seeing others ridiculed or kidded. Sometimes, however, people also seem to enjoy ridiculing themselves. They voluntarily display, mostly in exaggerated form, their weaknesses and vices, together with embarrassments, humiliations and setbacks they have suffered. The Indiana study, using men and women university students as subjects, however, showed that "self-disparagement affected person perception adversely — and that compared to the person who disparages others, the self-disparager was perceived as less intelligent, less confident, less witty."

HIS STAR IS ON THE RISE

After all his success as a singer and a composer, Kris Kristofferson now is making it big in Hollywood.

Kristofferson: success has brought confidence.

By Patricia Baum

Eight years ago, Kris Kristofferson, one-time Rhodes Scholar and Army captain, was pushing a broom around a Nashville bar, emptying ashtrays at a recording studio and digging ditches. A dropout, he had moved to the Country and Western music capital to become a songwriter. But, seemingly destined to remain a would-be, he had resignedly concluded that "by the time my songs ever become hits, I'll be dead."

Today, still in his prime at 40, Kris has been hailed by Johnny Cash and other music stars as the most gifted lyric writer in the country-music industry. His songs have risen to the top of the charts and have been performed by scores of stars. And because he began singing to promote his own songs, he fast became a popular performer. Moreover, Kris has made it in Hollywood as well, with eight films to his credit. The latest, A Star Is Born, has solidly established him as one of the screen's most exciting male stars.

He was launched in mid-1969 by singer Roger Miller, who recorded Kris's "Me and Bobby McGee." Kris parlayed his hard times in Nashville and a whole troubled past—his frustration with Army life as a young man, an unsuccessful first marriage — into moving autobiographical ballads. Nashville's most literate songwriter, he used poetry and a dash of wit to craft songs that poignantly conveyed loneliness, love and heartbreak.

Kris has taken a long time, though, to feel confident about his performing talent. One of the first times Kris sang for his supper, at a Nashville steakhouse some seven years ago, he remembers, "I looked at the people eating and knew I was spoiling it. I was so embarrassed I split without taking the money."

This attitude followed him into his film work. Working with such experienced actresses as Ellen Burstyn in Alice Doesn't Live Here Anymore, he was perpetually nervous about his ability to "keep up with the company." He was especially apprehensive pitted against Barbra Streisand in A Star Is Born. Making that film, according to Kris, was "the hardest thing I'd been through since Ranger school."

Now that the ordeal is over, he believes his portrayal of the self-destructive rock singer is his best performance yet. Star has given him a sorely needed measure of confidence as he embarks on his next film venture, Semi-Tough, and has prompted him to cautiously predict, "I think I have a future in acting."

He certainly seems to—if he can retain that appealing honesty and not turn into another Hollywood untouchable. So far, Kris indicates he can adeptly handle the fame that has confused, if not corrupted, many a star. He's still slightly awed by it all: "Fame has let me off easy. Because I'm a movie star, people automatically assume that I'm a nice guy. I'll just have to keep reminding myself to work very hard to really be one."

Patricia Baum is a well-known free-lance writer and author of Another Way of Life: Communal Living; Cuba: Continuing Crisis and other books.

A fence can bring neighbors closer together.

Sometimes it's the small things that cause the biggest problems between neighbors.

In my case the bone of contention was the one Mrs. Parker found buried in her prize begonias. So I built this fence from plans I got at the Help Center. And you know something, good fences make good neighbors.

It works the other way 'round too. I got all the free help I needed from Jim Clark, my Georgia-Pacific Registered Dealer. His Help Center is loaded with remodeling ideas, building projects, and helpful hints for do-it-yourselfers.

Take the free Projects Booklet. It's got simple, step-by-step plans for 20 interesting and useful home projects. And all of them as easy to build as my fence. There's a whole section of the Help Center that's filled with exciting new ideas on remodeling with wall paneling. And another with helpful free booklets that show you how to choose and use building materials like a pro.

The Help Center at your neighborhood Georgia-Pacific Registered Dealer has all the help you need. And it's free. But isn't that what good neighbors are for?

IF YOU HAVE IRON POOR BLOOD ALL THE VITAMINS IN THE WORLD WON'T HELP

Iron poor blood is the most widespread nutritional ailment in America today. And taking vitamins can't help, because vitamins don't contain iron.

What you need is Geritol, every day. Geritol is so rich in iron, just one tablet contains more iron than even a pound of calf's liver. Plus vitamins important to your health.

Geritol's iron can actually build your blood day by day. That's what makes it different from vitamin pills—and so important to you.

MONEY

Timing Those Term Accounts

When Jim received a sizable year-end bonus, he wanted to do two sensible things with it: put it into a savings account that would pay him the highest possible interest rate and leave it there until it was time to pay the next installment on his daughter's college tuition.

But when Jim investigated, he found it was impossible to accomplish both goals. According to the bank's published rules for "term savings" accounts, he would have to keep his savings on deposit for 14 months in order to get 6½ percent interest—a healthy 1¼ percent higher than the interest on a regular account from which money can be withdrawn at any time. Yet the tuition payment had to be made within 11 months.

When Jim mentioned this ruefully to a bank officer one day, he discovered that there's enough flexibility to term accounts so that the bank could accommodate his situation. Jim deposited his bonus for the 11-month period at 6¼ percent interest—one-quarter percent less than the 14-month period paid, but still a full percentage point more than he would have gotten otherwise.

Moral: if you have money you can put away for a specific length of time—but not the period which matches exactly the formal time-deposit periods listed by the bank—discuss the problem with a bank executive. Most banks and savings-and-loan associations will work out a term account with a maturity date that suits your purposes, and the account will still pay a higher rate of interest than the ordinary passbook rate.

PEOPLE AND YOU

Easing The Pain Of Jealousy

The best cure for jealousy, of course, is discovering that you were mistaken and that there's no cause for anxiety. But when that happy solution eludes you, you may be able to help yourself through the difficult days by borrowing actions from the opposite sex.

Seems researchers have discovered that women have certain ways of trying to calm themselves and men have another set of actions. Keeping your own sex's instinctive behavior and adding the other sex's may double the balm and even eliminate the cause of your jealousy. For example, while jealous women often feel completely devastated emotionally, in a daze, insecure, less able to cope with other aspects of life, fearful and inadequate, men often respond actively rather than passively.

Men are likely to confront the other person and ask for an explanation of the situation. Sometimes this direct action produces a discussion which eliminates the cause and problem. When the situation is hopeless and jealousy is well founded, women's reactions may be more constructive. Although men often turn their worry inward and feel guilty and angry with themselves for being jealous, women accept their feelings and allow themselves to express them. Women's tendencies to talk to close friends about their feelings give them support and an emotional outlet. But the common reaction of men to blow off steam by getting drunk leaves their problem intact when they're sober again. —Shirley Sloan Fader

NEW HOPE IN THE DISCOVERY AND TREATMENT OF INHERITED DISEASES

Potential for some diseases, including diabetes and many birth defects, can be passed on through the genes, tiny elements that determine our makeup. Now researchers are starting to understand how to detect the "bad" ones.

By Paula Dranov

Some of the most exciting medical advances in recent years have come in the field of genetics, the biological study of heredity and its variations. We now know that genes not only control the color of our eyes and hair and whether we have the right number of fingers and toes but that they also can determine whether or not we'll be susceptible to such illnesses as heart disease, diabetes and other life-threatening diseases. Here are some of the facts and some of the good news about genetic advances.

WHAT ARE GENETIC DEFECTS?

Simply stated, genetic defects are disorders and diseases with which some people are born. Many, such as Down's syndrome—the medical name for mongolism—are obvious at birth. Others don't become evident until weeks, months or even years later.

The array of genetic diseases is staggering, but of the 1,500 that have been identified, most are extremely rare. Not so rare, however, are diseases like diabetes, heart disease and some other illnesses.

WHAT CAUSES GENETIC DISEASES?

Inherited diseases and disorders usually are caused by flawed genes. Geneticists know that of the thousands of genes we each carry on our 23 pairs of chromosomes, between eight and 10 are likely to be defective. Rarely do these bad genes make their presence known. But under some circumstances they can—and do—cause trouble.

HOW ARE THE CARRIERS OF GENETIC DISORDERS IDENTIFIED?

It usually takes only a simple blood test. These tests have become particularly important to families who have reason to fear these three so-called "ethnic diseases":

- Sickle Cell Anemia. This blood disease occurs most frequently among blacks and can now be identified in the carriers.
- Tay-Sachs' Disease. Jews of Eastern European descent are most prone to this always fatal disease. Doctors now urge all Jewish couples of child-bearing age and from this background to come in for testing when they marry.
- Thalassemia. Italians, Greeks and Near Easterners run the greatest risk of thalassemia, a blood disease that is fatal in its most severe form. Although carriers now can be identified through blood tests, the tests can't show whether or not the fatal form is present.

Needless to say, the overwhelming majority of couples tested for these diseases will be reassured that they run no risk of passing them on. For the others, help is available in genetic counseling.

WHO SHOULD HAVE GENETIC COUNSELING?

The greatest need is among couples who already have had an abnormal child, who have seen a certain type of genetic disease in their families and who have been identified as carriers of a specific disorder.

In addition, women over 35 who wish to have a baby have been seeking counseling in ever-greater numbers because of publicity

H. Armstrong Roberts

Five percent of all babies are born with genetic defects, but new knowledge could significantly reduce the risks of these disorders.

about the increased risk of giving birth to a mongoloid child as the age of the mother advances.

WHAT IS GENETIC COUNSELING?

For couples who have something to fear from genetic disorders, counseling is a means of learning what their risks are and what medical means are available to reduce those risks. Basically, counseling can tell them what the genetic disease they face means in medical, emotional and even financial terms. Just as important, the counseling can correct the misinformation people have about genetic diseases and reassure parents that it's not their fault that a child is affected.

HOW CAN GENETIC DISEASES BE DIAGNOSED DURING PREGNANCY?

There are two methods of prenatal diagnosis. The best known is amniocentesis. In this procedure, a long needle is inserted into the mother's abdomen to draw fluid from the amniotic sac where the fetus is developing. An analysis of that fluid will tell doctors whether or not the genetic problem they're looking for is present.

The other new procedure is ultrasound, a method of scanning the mother's abdomen with high-frequency sound waves to ascertain the position of the fetus, to measure the infant's head size and to monitor the rate of fetal growth and development.

WHAT ABOUT HEART DISEASE AND DIABETES?

These are the diseases doctors say have a genetic component. They tend to run in certain families. High-risk individuals frequently can be identified through blood tests and regular checkups. A susceptibility to heart disease, for instance, may be indicated by an inherited condition called hyperlipemia—an abnormally high level of fatty substances in the bloodstream. This condition can be counteracted to a significant extent by diet. Diabetes can be controlled through medication and proper diet. Preventive measures—regular checkups, weight control—can reduce the risk in susceptible families.

WHERE ARE COUNSELING AND TREATMENT AVAILABLE?

The National Genetics Foundation has established a Genetic Counseling and Treatment Network to provide diagnosis, treatment and counseling to people concerned about genetic disorders of all varieties. Genetic counseling also is available through medical centers, teaching hospitals and clinics. The March of Dimes maintains a directory of genetic-counseling units throughout the United States.

Grass Seed Is For The Birds! Zoysia Saves Time, Work, Money

By Mike Sandin
Agronomist

Every year I see people pour more and more money into their lawns. They dig, fertilize and lime. They rake it all in. They scatter their seed and roll and water it.

Birds love it! Seeds which aren't washed away by rain give them a feast. But some seed grows, and soon it's time to weed, water and mow, mow . . . until summer comes to burn the lawn into hay, or crabgrass and diseases infest it.

That's what happens to ordinary grass, but not to Amazoy Zoysia.

"MOWED IT 2 TIMES," WRITES WOMAN

For example, Mrs. M. R. Mitter writes me how her lawn ". . . is the envy of all who see it. When everybody's lawns around here are brown from drought ours just stays as green as ever. I've never watered it, only when I put the plugs in . . . Last summer we had it mowed (2) times. Another thing, we never have to pull any weeds — it's just wonderful!"

And from Iowa came word that the state's largest Men's Garden Club picked a Zoysia lawn as the "top lawn — nearly perfect" in its area. Yet this lawn had been watered only once all summer up to August!

Cuts Your Work, Saves You Money

Your deep-rooted, established Amazoy lawn saves you time and money in many ways. It never needs replacement . . . ends re-seeding forever. Fertilizing and watering (water costs money, too) are rarely if ever needed. It ends the need for crabgrass killers permanently. It cuts pushing a noisy mower in the blistering sun by 2/3.

CHOKES OUT CRABGRASS

Thick rich, luxurious Amazoy grows into a carpet of grass that chokes out crabgrass and weeds all summer long. It will NOT winter kill. Goes off its green color after killing frost, regains fresh new beauty every Spring — a true perennial!

For Slopes, Play Areas, Bare Spots

End erosion of slopes with Amazoy. Perfect answer for hard-to-cover spots, play-worn areas.

Your Own Supply of Plug Transplants

Established Amazoy gives you Zoysia plugs to plant in other areas as desired!

DROUGHT AND WEAR RESISTANT

Amazoy lawns take cookouts and parties — children playing on it won't hurt it, or themselves! Stays green right thru scorching heat and drought!

NO NEED TO RIP OUT PRESENT GRASS PLUG AMAZOY INTO OLD LAWN, NEW GROUND OR NURSERY AREA

Just set Amazoy plugs into holes in ground like a cork in a bottle. Plant 1 foot apart, checkerboard style. Every plug 3 sq. inches.

When planted in existing lawn areas plugs will spread to drive out old, unwanted growth, including weeds. Easy planting instructions with order.

PATENTED STEP-ON PLUGGER IS ..... FREE WITH ORDERS OF 600 PLUGS OR MORE

Amazoy exclusive! No one else can offer you this patented 2-way plugger. Saves bending, time, work. Light, rugged, invaluable for transplanting. Cuts away competing growth as it digs plug holes

Every Plug Guaranteed to Grow In Your Area • In Your Soil

- AMAZOY WON'T WINTER KILL—has survived temperatures 30° below zero!
- AMAZOY WON'T HEAT KILL—when other grasses burn out, Amazoy remains green and lovely!

Plug Amazoy into an entire lawn or problem areas. Plug it into poor soil, "builder's soil," clay or even salty, sandy beach areas. I guarantee every plug to grow . . . from part shade to full sun! Any plug failing to grow in 45 days replaced FREE. Since we're hardly in business for the fun of it, you know we're 100% sure of our product.

If it isn't Amazoy, you're not getting the plugs that made Zoysia famous.

Accept No Substitutes

Consumer protective agencies constantly warn consumers, "Be sure you're getting the brand you're paying for; watch out for bait and switch people." So look for the name Amazoy if you want the real thing — the world's best known zoysia. Our pre-cut plugs (full 3 sq. in.) look different, ARE different. Why take chances with an untried grass? There really is no substitute.

WE SHIP PREPAID

Some nurseries charge for "handling and delivery" of their orders. Delivery charges on a typical 300 plug and plugger order shipped "collect" only a few hundred miles costs you at least $4.56 to as much as $13.91 — larger orders or greater distances, of course, cost even more! Also, collect shipment in many areas requires you to go pick up your order. But we deliver to your door AT NO EXTRA CHARGE. Our delivery is free from sea to shining sea!

ARMOUR'S ARMOURY

TAKE A LOOK

Some see the sea from where they live,
Some see the open fields.
To some, atop a ridge or hill,
A gorgeous landscape yields.

Some view the mountains rising high,
Some watch a river flow,
But from our house these other things
We see and some you know:

One way a street, one way a house,
A house that is immense.
That leaves two other views we have,
And both the same: a fence.

Observations™

Time to listen. More than a million workers were laid off this winter as factories were shut down because natural gas was unavailable. Home heating by gas was threatened in many areas despite turned-down thermostats. For over 20 years, government regulation has operated to keep natural gas prices artificially low. In our view, this attempt to "protect" the consumer has led to misuse and waste of natural gas, and contributed directly to today's problems. Now there is a growing recognition by others that the removal of price regulation on new natural gas is a vital ingredient to any long-term solution. Below, some significant examples of that view:

The Washington Post

Enforcing conservation or increasing production "requires getting rid of the absurd and obsolete structure of gas price controls that encourages Americans to use too much of it for the wrong things. The country is going to have to pay more for the stuff, unless it wants to institutionalize the winter gas shortage as an annual event." Jan. 27, 1977

THE MILWAUKEE JOURNAL

"The pricing mechanism is the best way to allocate a scarce premium resource. Gradual deregulation of natural gas is the best way of bringing that about. When will Congress see the light?" Feb. 14, 1976

The New York Times

"Mr. Carter evidently wants 90 days to devise an overall energy policy, including his campaign pledge to deregulate prices for 'new' gas . . . . Restricting wasteful and non-essential consumption is even more important than increasing the supply. Natural gas is a premium fuel, fully combustible, nonpolluting and easy to transport. Neither increases in gas production nor effective conservation can be achieved while it is sold (in terms of comparative heat content) at half the price of coal and a fifth the price of oil. It should not be wasted on non-essential uses." Jan. 25, 1977

THE EVENING SUN (Baltimore)

"The plain fact is that artificially low prices on interstate gas have done two things. They have diverted much of this energy into the uncontrolled intrastate markets . . . . And this in turn has meant that the diminishing overall supply of gas has been unfairly allocated, with industry and residential owners in non-gas-producing states facing severe shortages." July 30, 1976

The Phoenix Gazette

"A free market would do a much better job of fairly distributing the natural gas supply than a government-regulated market ever could." Feb. 7, 1976

THE PLAIN DEALER (Cleveland)

"The only sensible solution is to allow free market forces to determine the wellhead price of . . . gas. To do otherwise is to hamper expansion of the economy and creation of new jobs through industrial expansion and commercial and residential construction. The choice is simple: Pay more for natural gas or promote unemployment." Oct. 16, 1976

THE CHRISTIAN SCIENCE MONITOR

"The best thing would be for Congress to do away with gas price regulations entirely. . . ." July 30, 1976

Quick Diagnoses That Save Sick Plants

Plant problems? Here's how to diagnose the most common ones. Steve Smith, a Florida county extension ornamentalist, says if you discover a plant with burned leaf tips or brown margins, you need to reduce the amount of fertilizer you are feeding the plant. This also could mean you are being too stingy with the water. Yellowing and dropping leaves are a signal of gas fumes, overwatering, poor drainage or not enough air. Small leaves indicate too little water or that the plant is existing in tight or heavy soil. Weak growth or light green or yellow spots on healthy green foliage is a sign of too little fertilizer, root rot or that the light is too intense. A house plant that is yellowing, wilting or has "soft growth" is exposed to excessive heat or has a root injury. Plants with small leaves and long internodes indicate too little light or too high temperature. Most foliage plants do best at temperatures between 60° and 70° F. If the leaves are heavy with grime, use soapy water, a soft cloth and a gentle touch. While watering your plants, keep these points in mind: don't use cold water, as it shocks the plant. Only a dash of water can make the plant miserable. Often the soil in the bottom of the container becomes dry, causing the plant to wilt or die. Plants are like people in that they like their food served at regular intervals. Reduce fertilization during the winter months. The best suggestion on feeding plants is simply to follow the directions on the food container. If you do not want to buy a special house-plant fertilizer, mix one teaspoon of a complete garden fertilizer in one quart of water. Apply this solution every four to six weeks.

The Best Way To Bake A Potato

Baked potatoes are tastiest if they're wrapped in pierced foil, baked between 400°-425° F. for 50 to 60 minutes and served immediately from the oven, say researchers at the University of Idaho's agricultural program. They reported that most restaurant baked potatoes are served at an "on the plate" temperature of less than 160° F. The ideal temperature is 200° F., reached when a potato is taken from the oven and split just long enough to add salt, butter or sour cream.

Quick Takes

An apple can clean your teeth better than a toothbrush can, says Dr. Loren Tukey of Pennsylvania State University. An apple's efficiency rate as a tooth and gum cleaner is 95.5 percent, which is more than 30-percent better than a toothbrush's. . . . The most encouraging salary increase in the last 10 years occurred among women, according to the Federal Job Information Bureau. Starting salaries for women college graduates are 81-percent higher today than they were 10 years ago. . . . If you think 53 million stale crackers aren't worth their salt, you're not in the hauling and storing business. The city of Denver is paying $20,000 to have the crackers, leftover from old fallout shelters, taken off municipal hands. The U.S. Office of Emergency Preparedness has decided they now are inedible. . . . The average American family has cash assets of $2,100, according to a new study by the Detroit Bank and Trust Co. The study estimates that the average family has $50 cash on hand, $250 in checking accounts, $1,500 in savings accounts and $300 in U.S. Government savings bonds. . . . While coffee prices have been grabbing the headlines recently, another commodity desired by American consumers is selling at record-high levels. World cocoa prices have more than tripled in the last 13 months, meaning that shoppers will be paying higher prices than ever for chocolate products. Many of the big chocolate manufacturers have raised the price of candy bars from 15 to 20 cents, and analysts don't discount the possibility of the quarter candy bar unless cocoa prices stabilize.

A Do-It-Yourself SAT Cram Course

As the race for college acceptance tightens, study programs designed to prepare the student for the College Board Scholastic Aptitude Test (SAT) are flourishing. If you or your child plan to take the SAT soon, here are some of the coaches' tips:

1. If you don't know the answer, don't guess. Go on to the next question. A wrong answer counts against you; the trick is to get as few wrong and as many right as possible.
2. Do the easy questions first. Sometimes the first sections of tests are loaded with the hardest questions.
3. On the reading comprehension questions, quickly scan the passage and then the questions so you know what to look for when you go back to read the question carefully.
4. If you have taken the test and done poorly, take it again. It is offered six times during the year, generally November through June. Frequently, those who take the SAT a second time develop a test-taking strategy and improve their scores significantly.

Will Kids Start Getting Better Instead Of Bigger?

American children may soon stop growing taller than their parents in each generation. A set of 14 computer-drawn growth charts based on 20,000 children measured in the past 15 years shows a leveling off of growth during the past decade. Before 1965, according to the National Center for Health Statistics, six-to-11-year-olds were about a half-inch taller each decade. "Perhaps we have reached the limits of our genetic potential regarding growth," speculates Dr. Peter V. Hamill, chairman of the center's task force. Or, suggests Dr. Francis Johnson, study-group member, "the general leveling off could mean that factors such as good nutrition, pure water and freedom from childhood diseases are making their maximum contribution." Physical height is greater now than when the country was founded: an average 18-year-old boy 200 years ago measured 5'7.1"; today's average 18-year-old stands 5'9.6". The average 18-year-old girl is now 5'4".

If The Shoe Wears, Get It Fitted

You can tell what's wrong with your shoes by the particular way they wear, says the Shoe Service Industry Council. For example, if your shoe curls at the toe, the shoe is too long. If the sole wears unevenly or if the heel pushes under, the shoe is too short. And if your shoes go out of shape, you may be wearing the wrong size. To get the right size, buy shoes in the afternoon — your feet are biggest then. Try on both shoes before buying. To keep shoes in shape, avoid wearing the same pair two days in a row; when possible, wear one pair every third day. Never dry out wet shoes on a radiator.

Is The Ideal Man A Perfect Man?

A man who's a bit of a rogue is more attractive to women than a great guy who always does the right thing, says San Diego psychiatrist Dr. Harold Greenwald. He offered this definition of a "rogue": "He'll fail to be on time for appointments; bet at the track or play poker with the guys half the night; sometimes refuse to shave on weekends; possibly use salty language." If a man acts in such ways all the time, or even frequently, women won't find him appealing at all — but if he lapses into such behavior now and then, most women will like him better, Greenwald insists. It's the guy who acts like a saint most days and a sinner once in a while who really captivates women."
